Former Officials Of Cuba Escape To U.S. Safety

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Five former Cuban government officials, who said they had been just one jump ahead of rebel firing squads for the last four months, landed here Saturday in a small boat.

They said they had been hunted "like dogs" ever since Fidel Castro seized control Jan 1, and they charged that the rebels robbed them of all personal possessions, including jewelry and clothing.

All asked for political asylum in the United States.

ELUDE PATROLS

The men identified themselves as:

Felipe Gonzalez Sarrain, 36, former secretary to the mayor of Havana under President Fulgencio Batista.

Pedro O. Santana, a first lieutenant in the Batista Army who fought in Oriente Province, the rebel stronghold.

Sergio de la Barrera, a former police captain in Havana.

Ricardo Perez Renaldo, an aide to the former minister of government.

Apolonio Garcia Espinosa, a body guard of the former minister of finance.

The refugees said they sneaked out of Havana Harbor early Friday morning in the 26-foot cabin cruiser, Marilyn. They eluded rebel sea patrols and ran aground 200 yards offshore here Saturday.

Immigration officers immediately took the men into custody while processing their requests for admittance. They were expected to be allowed to remain in the United States.

Gonzalez spoke briefly with newsmen before he was taken into custody.

He said he had dyed his normally black hair red, grown a mustache and effected other disguises in an effort to avoid capture by the rebels. He charged that the government police had even burned down his fashionable home in Havana in an effort to flush him out of hiding.

Immunization Survey Slated For City Area

Monroe will be one of two Louisiana cities included in a nationwide survey this week to determine how many people under age 40 have been immunized against polio.

Dr. Carroll Summer, Ouachita Parish Health Unit director, announced yesterday that the survey will be conducted Tuesday by 16 women volunteers from the Junior Charity Leabue.

Paul Leaverton, statistician from the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Georgia, will make results of the survey available Thursday.

He arrived here this week to assist in the process, being conducted under auspicies of the Public Health Department.

"We're going to spot check 288 homes in each section of the city, and in that way determine, within 10 per cent, how many persons under 40 have received the anti-polio vaccine — and how many shots they have taken," Leaverton explained.

CONFIDENT

Dr. Summer added, "We think we're pretty well protected against polio in Monroe. The survey will show whether we are, or not."

Working in teams of two, the volunteers will canvass Monroe homes all day Tuesday and Wednesday.

"Don't be surprised if a volunteer rings your doorbell on those days — just give her the information on any polio innoculations which your family has received," the Health Unit director advised.

Workers will also check on the "diptheria immunization status of children five-years-old and under" — to see how many children under 5 are innoculated against diptheria.

Guatemala Gets Alert On Cubans

GUATEMALA (AP)—Guatemala rushed troops to defend its eastern shores Saturday after receiving a warning from the Panamanian government that a landing may be attempted by 400 Cubans who originally sailed for Panama.

The Panamanian Embassy told the Guatemalan government that the Cuban force had changed boats in the Caribbean sea while en route to Panama. It said the Cubans had transferred to a small ship believed flying the Guatemalan flag.

Suspect Held Under Guard In Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — A 23-year-old Negro was held in Rapides Parish jail here Saturday in the rape-slaying of a white housewife in adjacent Evangeline Parish Friday.

Evangeline Parish Dist. Atty. L. O. Fusilier, Ville Platte, denied the prisoner, Ora Lee Rogers of Ville Platte, was taken to Alexandria for fear he would be mobbed.

Fusilier said the 50-year-old jail at Ville Platte was insecure, "and we would transfer any dangerous prisoner to a stronger jail." And, added the district attorney, the officers were just as close to Alexandria as they were to Ville Platte when Rogers was captured.

JAIL UNDER GUARD

At Alexandria, the seventh floor jail is under guard, unlike the situation at Poplarville, Miss., last Saturday when 23-year-old Mack Charles Parker, Negro, was beaten and dragged from jail by a band of hooded and masked men. Parker is still missing.

Fusilier said Rogers made a voluntary statement admitting the knife slaying of Mrs. Lumley Guillory, 36, in her husband's general store at Reddell, 50 miles south of Alexandria. Her husband was away driving a school bus and her daughter was asleep in another room at the time.

State police arrested the 6-foot-2 Rogers while he was headed for his girl friend's home with a new suit and diamonds which officers said were purchased with $800 taken from the store.

Fusilier said Rogers would be formally charged following an inquest Monday afternoon.

DESIRES HEIR TO THRONE

Iran Shah Seeking Princess As Bride

ROME (AP)—The Shan of Iran, still looking for an heir to his ancient throne, heads back to Europe Sunday with matrimony in mind. He has in mind the pretty daughter of Italy's last king.

The word that the Moslem Shah is definitely interested in Princess Maria Gabriella of Savoy, a Roman Catholic, and is ready to try to hurdle the religious obstacles came Saturday from an Iranian royal court spokesman in Rome.

"The marriage would be looked upon with pleasure in Iran if religious difficulties can be overcome," said the spokesman, Chodjaeddine Chafa, Iranian cultural counselor here.

Chafa said the Shah may see Princess Maria on his six-week visit to Europe. The Shan plans to spend some time in Switzerland, where Maria lives with her parents, former King Umberto II and ex-Queen Maria Jose. Maria now is visiting in Portugal with her father.

The handsome, 39-year-old Shah needs to stabilize his position at home by providing a male heir to Iran's Peacock Throne.

The Shah's name has been linked romantically with the princess, but standing between them is that barrier of religion. Under Iran's constitution, the heir to the throne must be brought up as a Moslem.

But the Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano recently pointed out that if Maria Gabriella marries the Shah in the Catholic church, their children would have to be raised as Catholics.

Ship Captain Charges Fire Aid Refused

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—The captain of a Norwegian freighter charged Saturday that a Vancouver city fireboat five miles away refused to give assistance when his ship was swept by an explosion and fire Friday night within sight of land.

Five crewmen were injured, two critically, as the fire, fed by lumber and 700 tons of fuel oil, raged aboard the 1,300 ton freighter Ferngulf for nearly four hours.

Vancouver officials said that city equipment could not be used to aid the stricken freighter because it was outside the city limits.

The fire was brought under control with the help of volunteers from the Canadian destroyer escorts Saguenay and Assiniboine and the U.S. Submarine Capitane, docked at Vancouver. They rushed to the scene in small craft within minutes after the S.O.S. was received from the freighter.

SENDS S.O.S.

William Archer, 52, skipper of the freighter, gave a major share of the credit to the volunteers in bringing the fire under control and keeping his ship from sinking. Local fishermen also helped by removing injured crewmen.

"I sent an S.O.S. for a fireboat and doctors as soon as the explosion occurred," said Archer. "We were told by the city of Vancouver that we were outside their limits."

He said a Royal Canadian Air Force helicopter circled the burning ship at one point but did not attempt a landing.

"We had no doctor on board, so for an hour the injured men had no treatment except for me," he said. "I kept shoving morphine into them."

AS GUEST OF IKE

Churchill Plans 3-Day U.S. Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill pays another call on Washington this week, this time as a three-day personal guest of President Eisenhower.

The visit starting Monday is billed as purely personal and social. But the 84-year-old British leader doubtless will have words of advice on world affairs to pass on to his World War II associate, Eisenhower, and top U.S. officials.

It has been five years since Churchill last came here. He was still prime minister then. He stepped down the next year, but he kept his seat in Parliament and plans to run again in the next election.

NO SPEECHES

During his 1954 call as prime minister, Churchill steered unerringly for waiting microphones, held newsmen spellbound at a jampacked luncheon in a downtown hotel, and generally kept in the headlines.

This time mum is the word for the world-famous orator, at least in the advance billing. He has turned down several invitations to make speeches, including one from the National Press Club.

The cigar-smoking, brandy-sipping elder statesman has suffered several serious illnesses in recent years. Illness forced him to postpone a scheduled trip to Washington last year.

Churchill is expected to arrive at National Airport Monday eve-

Woman Struck By Car, Killed

OAK RIDGE (Special) — A 48-year-old Oak Ridge Negro, identified as Marlene Gryder, was killed instantly shortly after noon yesterday when she was struck by a car.

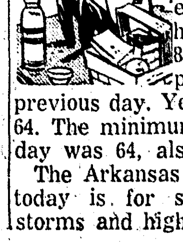
The incident occurred on the Oak Ridge—Epps road, two miles east of here.

Authorities said she was walking along the side of the road and was carrying on a conversation with some other Negro women walking on the other side of the road.

Suddenly, the victim cut over toward the other side and was hit by a car driven by L. D. Engram, about 28, of Rayville, according to officers.

State Police investigated and no charges were reported filed.

Thunderstorms Seen For Area



Persons on picnics and sightseeing trips around the area may have a "damper" placed on their activities today. The weather outlook for the Twin Cities area is for scattered showers and thunderstorms.

The high recorded at Selman Field here yesterday was 87 degrees, as compared to 88 for the previous day. Yesterday's low was 64. The minimum on the previous day was 64, also.

The Arkansas weather view for today is for scattered thunderstorms and high winds.

Fish Leaps, Bites Neck Of Boater

MIAMI (UPI) — A vicious barracuda leaped from the water and hit a three - inch gash in the neck of a startled fisherman sitting in a small boat, the wounded man said Saturday.

Doctors who put six stitches in the gash said they had no reason to doubt the story of the injured man, Lorenzo Mills, 42.

His fishing companion, Willie Stevenson, 38, also backed up the strange fish story.

Mills said, "I know it sounds like the biggest lie in the world but it's the honest truth. His clothes were soaked with blood as he related the tale.

"I was just sitting up in the bow reeling in my line. Just after I lifted the bait out of the water I felt something hit my neck real hard. The next thing I saw was the barracuda—must have been two feet long—jumping back into the water. I didn't even know I was hurt until Willie said to me "that fish cut your throat man.'

"I put my hand on my neck and darn if my fingers didn't sink right in."

The fishermen, in a 14-foot out - board motorboat, hailed a larger boat which put the injured man aboard a Harbor Patrol boat.

An ambulance took Mills to a hospital where doctors said the fish had missed Mills' jugular vein by an inch.

Plane Hits Peak, Five Persons Die

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Spain, (UPI) — An Austrian passenger plane crashed into a peak in the Soller Range about 20 miles north of here Saturday night, killing all five persons aboard.

The plane was on a flight from Palma Son Bonet Airport on this resort island in the western Mediterranean to Munich, Germany.

Reports reaching here said the plane was seen going down in flames. Ambulances and search parties were immediately dispatched to the scene.

Rescue parties found five badly-burned bodies around the charred wreckage. They were identified as that of a woman and a male passenger, the stewardess, pilot and co-pilot.

Fund Requests Planned For Area Colleges

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Three area colleges are included in Gov. Long's administration recommendations for construction fund grants, representing capital outlay for higher education in the upcoming Legislature.

Northeast State in Monroe has $1,000,000 earmarked for it, compared with the $1,200,000 it has been asking.

Louisiana Tech at Ruston is on the ticket for a $1,000,000 recommendation also. Tech has been requesting $1,600,000.

A third $1,000,000 is earmarked for Grambling College, the amount it has asked for.

Eight million dollars is being planned for Louisiana State University improvements. All recommendations are subject to legislative action.

OTHER REQUESTS

Long's budget committee, getting its final recommendations ready, is still struggling over the size of a proposed teacher pay raise. It is marking time over the weekend until the governor returns to the state.

The administration informant said this is the current top level thinking on the amount of capital outlay funds that can be provided:

Seven million dollars for LSUNO, with another million earmarked for the LSU campus here.

Half a million dollars for Francis T. Nichols State College at Thibodaux.

A million each for the other state colleges, compared with the immediate amount of construction funds they have been asking:

McNeese State College $1,200,000.

Northwestern State College $1,144,000.

Southeastern Louisiana College $1,600,000.

Southwestern Louisiana Institute $2,040,000.

Southern University $1,296,000 for the main campus here and $1,925,000 for a New Orleans branch.

FINDS HOME FOR LIFE

Lady Luck Smiles On Blind Wanderer

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. (UPI)—A blind wanderer was "tickled pink" Saturday at having a home, a pension and chewing tobacco for the rest of his life after years in jail.

The fortunes of Everett Morris, 82, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, took a turn for the better when he was arrested last December by a deputy sheriff, who believes a lawman should help people.

Morris, a former leather worker and common laborer, went blind seven years ago in Peoria, Ill. As an old man, with nothing but time on his hands, he began wandering aimlessly about the state, only to be picked up for vagrancy.

Eleven times in the past seven years, Morris served terms for vagrancy, the last sentence at the state penal farm near Vandalia where he heard a fellow prisoner talking about Mount Carmel on the banks of the storied Wabash.

The old man never forgot the town's name. Last December, when his term was completed, Morris was given bus fare to go where he wanted. He had no hesitancy and picked Mount Carmel, hoping for the best.

But he arrived in this city of about 10,000 shortly after Christmas, dead broke, and began wandering around the bus depot where Deputy Sheriff Wallace Compton arrested him.

Compton, however, had a few surprises for Morris. He decided to help the elderly blind man and

Allies Ready To Negotiate Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter flew in from Paris Saturday and told President Eisenhower the Western powers are ready to open negotiations with the Soviet Union for an end to the Berlin crisis and a start on German unification.

He described as very successful his talks with British, French, and West German foreign ministers last week. In an airport arrival statement, he challenged the Soviet Union to show an honest desire to negotiate in the Big Four meeting coming up at Geneva, Switzerland, May 11.

IN AGREEMENT

The Western ministers reached final agreement on a set of proposals to present to the Soviet Union for ending the Berlin crisis and making a start on German unification and control of armed forces.

Officials said proposals in this package may be bargained over separately if the Russians show a sincere interest in negotiation, which State Department authorities consider unlikely.

This was Herter's first exercise in high-level personal diplomacy as secretary of state. Dispatches from Paris reported Allied diplomats were favorably impressed with his work. The assignment was carried out somewhat in the manner of Herter's cancer-stricken predecessor, John Foster Dulles.

The new secretary, whose walking is impaired by arthritis, appeared relaxed despite a busy week of meetings and a long overnight flight from Paris.

Within two hours Herter had flown by helicopter to Gettysburg, Pa. There he conferred with Eisenhower on the sun porch of the President's farm home for 75 minutes, then returned to Washington.

Both Herter's airport statement and White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, in relaying

Churchill Plans 3-Day U.S. Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill pays another call on Washington this week, this time as a three-day personal guest of President Eisenhower.

The visit starting Monday is billed as purely personal and social. But the 84-year-old British leader doubtless will have words of advice on world affairs to pass on to his World War II associate, Eisenhower, and top U.S. officials.

It has been five years since Churchill last came here. He was still prime minister then. He stepped down the next year, but he kept his seat in Parliament and plans to run again in the next election.

NO SPEECHES

During his 1954 call as prime minister, Churchill steered unerringly for waiting microphones, held newsmen spellbound at a jampacked luncheon in a downtown hotel, and generally kept in the headlines.

This time mum is the word for the world-famous orator, at least in the advance billing. He has turned down several invitations to make speeches, including one from the National Press Club.

The cigar-smoking, brandy-sipping elder statesman has suffered several serious illnesses in recent years. Illness forced him to postpone a scheduled trip to Washington last year.

Churchill is expected to arrive at National Airport Monday eve-

Fish Leaps, Bites Neck Of Boater

MIAMI (UPI) — A vicious barracuda leaped from the water and hit a three - inch gash in the neck of a startled fisherman sitting in a small boat, the wounded man said Saturday.

Doctors who put six stitches in the gash said they had no reason to doubt the story of the injured man, Lorenzo Mills, 42.

His fishing companion, Willie Stevenson, 38, also backed up the strange fish story.

Mills said, "I know it sounds like the biggest lie in the world but it's the honest truth. His clothes were soaked with blood as he related the tale.

"I was just sitting up in the bow reeling in my line. Just after I lifted the bait out of the water I felt something hit my neck real hard. The next thing I saw was the barracuda—must have been two feet long—jumping back into the water. I didn't even know I was hurt until Willie said to me "that fish cut your throat man.'

"I put my hand on my neck and darn if my fingers didn't sink right in."

The fishermen, in a 14-foot out - board motorboat, hailed a larger boat which put the injured man aboard a Harbor Patrol boat.

An ambulance took Mills to a hospital where doctors said the fish had missed Mills' jugular vein by an inch.

Woman Struck By Car, Killed

OAK RIDGE (Special) — A 48-year-old Oak Ridge Negro, identified as Marlene Gryder, was killed instantly shortly after noon yesterday when she was struck by a car.

The incident occurred on the Oak Ridge—Epps road, two miles east of here.

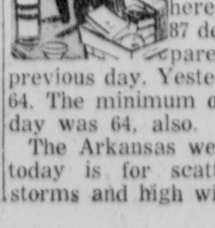
Authorities said she was walking along the side of the road and was carrying on a conversation with some other Negro women walking on the other side of the road.

Suddenly, the victim cut over toward the other side and was hit by a car driven by L. D. Engram, about 28, of Rayville, according to officers.

State Police investigated and no charges were reported filed.

Thunderstorms Seen For Area

Persons on picnics and sightseeing trips around the area may have a "damper" placed on their activities today. The weather outlook for the Twin Cities area is for scattered showers and thunderstorms.



The high recorded at Selman Field here yesterday was 87 degrees, as compared to 88 for the previous day. Yesterday's low was 64. The minimum on the previous day was 64, also.

The Arkansas weather view for today is for scattered thunderstorms and high winds.

Plane Hits Peak, Five Persons Die

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Spain, (UPI) — An Austrian passenger plane crashed into a peak in the Soller Range about 20 miles north of here Saturday night, killing all five persons aboard.

The plane was on a flight from Palma Son Bonet Airport on this resort island in the western Mediterranean to Munich, Germany.

Reports reaching here said the plane was seen going down in flames. Ambulances and search parties were immediately dispatched to the scene.

Rescue parties found five badly-burned bodies around the charred wreckage. They were identified as that of a woman and a male passenger, the stewardess, pilot and co-pilot.

Fund Requests Planned For Area Colleges

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Three area colleges are included in Gov. Long's administration recommendations for construction fund grants, representing capital outlay for higher education in the upcoming Legislature.

Northeast State in Monroe has $1,000,000 earmarked for it, compared with the $1,200,000 it has been asking.

Louisiana Tech at Ruston is on the ticket for a $1,000,000 recommendation also. Tech has been requesting $1,600,000.

A third $1,000,000 is earmarked for Grambling College, the amount it has asked for.

Eight million dollars is being planned for Louisiana State University improvements. All recommendations are subject to legislative action.

OTHER REQUESTS

Long's budget committee, getting its final recommendations ready, is still struggling over the size of a proposed teacher pay raise. It is marking time over the weekend until the governor returns to the state.

The administration informant said this is the current top level thinking on the amount of capital outlay funds that can be provided:

Seven million dollars for LSUNO, with another million earmarked for the LSU campus here.

Half a million dollars for Francis T. Nichols State College at Thibodaux.

A million each for the other state colleges, compared with the immediate amount of construction funds they have been asking:

McNeese State College $1,200,000.

Northwestern State College $1,144,000.

Southeastern Louisiana College $1,600,000.

Southwestern Louisiana Institute $2,040,000.

Southern University $1,296,000 for the main campus here and $1,925,000 for a New Orleans branch.

Allies Ready To Negotiate Berlin Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Christian A. Herter flew in from Paris Saturday and told President Eisenhower the Western powers are ready to open negotiations with the Soviet Union for an end to the Berlin crisis and a start on German unification.

He described as very successful his talks with British, French, and West German foreign ministers last week. In an airport arrival statement, he challenged the Soviet Union to show an honest desire to negotiate in the Big Four meeting coming up at Geneva, Switzerland, May 11.

IN AGREEMENT

The Western ministers reached final agreement on a set of proposals to present to the Soviet Union for ending the Berlin crisis and making a start on German unification and control of armed forces.

Officials said proposals in this package may be bargained over separately if the Russians show a sincere interest in negotiation, which State Department authorities consider unlikely.

This was Herter's first exercise in high-level personal diplomacy as secretary of state. Dispatches from Paris reported Allied diplomats were favorably impressed with his work. The assignment was carried out somewhat in the manner of Herter's cancer-stricken predecessor, John Foster Dulles.

The new secretary, whose walking is impaired by arthritis, appeared relaxed despite a busy week of meetings and a long overnight flight from Paris.

Within two hours Herter had flown by helicopter to Gettysburg, Pa. There he conferred with Eisenhower on the sun porch of the President's farm home for 75 minutes, then returned to Washington.

Both Herter's airport statement and White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty, in relaying

Sheriff Predicts Break In Case

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — Sheriff Henry Reid said Saturday night "there should be a definite break" over the weekend in his investigation of the four-week-old slaying of an Elton druggist.

Reid said he has arrested a West Lake industrial plant worker for questioning and added, "We feel sure we know where the second man is."

FINDS HOME FOR LIFE

Lady Luck Smiles On Blind Wanderer

MOUNT CARMEL, Ill. (UPI)—A blind wanderer was "'tickled pink" Saturday at having a home, a pension and chewing tobacco for the rest of his life after years in jail.

The fortunes of Everett Morris, 82, formerly of Columbus, Ohio, took a turn for the better when he was arrested last December by a deputy sheriff, who believes a lawman should help people.

Morris, a former leather worker and common laborer, went blind seven years ago in Peoria, Ill. As an old man, with nothing but time on his hands, he began wandering aimlessly about the state, only to be picked up for vagrancy.

Eleven times in the past seven years, Morris served terms for vagrancy, the last sentence at the state penal farm near Vandalia where he heard a fellow prisoner talking about Mount Carmel on the banks of the storied Wabash.

The old man never forgot the town's name. Last December, when his term was completed, Morris was given bus fare to go where he wanted. He had no hesitancy and picked Mount Carmel, hoping for the best.

But he arrived in this city of about 10,000 shortly after Christmas, dead broke, and began wandering around the bus depot where Deputy Sheriff Wallace Compton arrested him.

Compton, however, had a few surprises for Morris. He decided to help the elderly blind man and

Area Woman Loses Lengthy Custody Battle

WINNSBORO (Special)— Mrs. Ella V. Fore, of Winnsboro, has lost a lengthy battle to gain custody of her grandson whose parents were killed in an auto crash in France, Sept. 7, 1957.

She was notified Saturday by her attorney that the U.S. Supreme Court has dismissed her appeal for custody of Donald, 4.

The child's parents, Master Sgt. and Mrs. Donald Fore Sr., were rushing to a hospital near Poitiers, France, where Mrs. Fore was to have her second baby when the car in which they were riding hit a bridge. The couple were killed. The child was thrown clear of the wreckage and escaped injury.

A sister of Mrs. Fore, Mrs. Jacobine Toth of Cleveland, Ohio, flew to France and brought little Donald home with her. The child's mother and aunt were from Germany.

She was met in New York by Mrs. Ida Tillery, a sister of the boy's father of Louisville, Miss. She had a Mississippi court order giving her custody of the child, but a New York court refused to honor this order and Mrs. Toth took Donald to Cleveland.

Probate court there gave her custody of Donald. The master sergeant's mother, Mrs. Ella Fore of Winnsboro obtained a Louisiana court order giving her custody of the child and went to Cleveland where she filed a writ of habeous corpus. The Cuyahogh County Court of Appeals granted her custody of the child, but Mrs. Toth and her husband, William, appealed the decision to the Ohio Supreme Court which reversed the county court and gave them the child.

This decision was then appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court.

lodged him in a nursing home while raising funds for his upkeep.

There were some protests against the treatment of Morris.

"Some people told me I was going to make Mount Carmel a haven for bums," Compton said. But I've always figured that the bigger half of a lawman's job is to help people."

Despite the protests, the fund grew as businessmen, churches, service clubs and even a few blind persons contributed. The money paid Morris' room and board at the nursery. Compton, meanwhile, contacted welfare officials and learned Morris was eligible for a state blind pension.

The pension secured Morris' future and life - long stay in the nursing home where he found three of his greatest pleasures—listening to television, sitting in the sun and a plug of tobacco. Also, the pension provided him with a little spending money.

Some money—about $173 — remained in the fund Compton raised. But the deputy planned to keep it in the bank.

"We'll use it to bury him when the time comes," Compton said.

traces of the destroyed metal hangars were found in a steady trail for more than a mile.

A deluge of rain lashed the Marysville area during the storm, causing chemicals at the Ar-Ex drug store to ignite in the basement. The fire was put out in a short time and damages were not determined.

The strong winds blew a 700-pound boat 150 yards and piled it into a car parked on a residential street. The boat was on wheels. Boat owner Don Roberts said he saw a funnel bear down on the airport.

A wind-fanned forest fire was brought under control Saturday several miles away from Webster, a village of 600 population in northwestern Wisconsin.

The woodlands in that area have been without appreciable rainfall for 10 days.

But the rains were welcomed by residents of the dry North Woods and farmers in the spring wheat region stretching westward across Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Forest and grass fires swept across thousands of acres of land and burned out five farmsteads in Minnesota Friday.

Midsummer heat broiled a broad area from the Western Plains to the Appalachian Mountains.

The temperature in Chicago bounded to 90 at 3 p.m. That was a record for the date.

Heat of the 90-degree kind was reported from states as far apart as Florida and Minnesota.

"Through this survey, we will determine which age groups have not received innoculations against polio. Recently, paralytic polio cases have shown a sharp increase in pre-school children," Dr. Summer explained.

PUBLICIZED

"Anti-polio shots were more publicized a few years ago, and children born since then apparently have missed out on the innoculations," he warned.

He stressed that the same type polio epidemic which struck Detroit last year might hit any age groups in Monroe who have not received the series of four innoculations.

"When we know the outcome of this survey, we'll conduct a drive to innoculate those age groups and area residents who have failed to receive vaccinations," Dr. Summer mentioned.

Leaverton, assisted by Miss Sara Welch of the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, helped plan the survey here during the past week.

"George Parsons of the Monroe Planning Commission and George Wylie of the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce helped us map out the cities," Leaverton explained.

again in the Legislature for a 40-million bond issue for long-range improvements.

The State Board of Education again favors a 33-million bond issue for the state colleges. So far, Long has appeared cool toward the two bond proposals.

The first press conference hint he ever gave about the extra oil revenues collected by the state this year pointed to some construction help for LSU and the colleges.

That 59 million in oil bonus money will deflate to about 49 million for the coming fiscal year. The windfall will shrink even faster with budget committee planning to use about 30 million to balance the operating budget of state expenses.

Some four million is expected to be found for institutional improvements.

There are strong hints Long will find a sprinkling of funds to start the St. Claude Avenue traffic tunnel under the Industrial Canal in New Orleans. The tunnel project reaches way back to the 1948 gubernatorial campaign.

Funds to put the Simmesport single-span bridge in first class condition are being considered, although not enough to build a new one.

The Industrial Canal tunnel, which could cost as much as 14 million now, originally was planned with the state, federal and local governments each paying a third.

Long's highway department has just completed bonding 30 million dollars for highway work this fiscal year. It plans to bond another 30 million next fiscal year. In addition to regular highway revenues, the governor could suggest using some of this money for the Industrial Canal dream.

As for the old horse-and-buggy Simmesport bridge, it reaches high in importance because Rep. Buford Smith has been howling Long promised to do something about it back in 1956.

Now Long is running for governor again.

As Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick of Jefferson Davis Parish suggested, how Long plans his spending will be tied directly to his new gubernatorial bid.

dian volunteers also were in the rescue party.

Vancouver Fire Chief Hugh Bird said department regulations forbid dispatching the powerful fireboat to aid the freighter. He said the first responsibility of the fireboat was to protect the city's harbor installations.

While crewmen and volunteers battled the flames, the freighter drifted to within about a half mile of shore.

For a time, it was feared that another explosion that would endanger waterfront homes in West Vancouver.

Police on shore moved about 50 families from their homes but the second blast never materialized.

Archer said the explosion apparently originated in the ship's engine. The ship was heavily damaged. Archer said the area midships was destroyed. The ship was finally taken in tow when the fire was out and pulled into dry dock in Vancouver about 3 a.m. edt.

The State Board of Education again favors a 33-million bond issue for the state colleges. So far, Long has appeared cool toward the two bond proposals.

The first press conference hint he ever gave about the extra oil revenues collected by the state this year pointed to some construction help for LSU and the colleges.

That 59 million in oil bonus money will deflate to about 49 million for the coming fiscal year. The windfall will shrink even faster with budget committee planning to use about 30 million to balance the operating budget of state expenses.

Some four million is expected to be found for institutional improvements.

There are strong hints Long will find a sprinkling of funds to start the St. Claude Avenue traffic tunnel under the Industrial Canal in New Orleans. The tunnel project reaches way back to the 1948 gubernatorial campaign.

Funds to put the Simmesport single-span bridge in first class condition are being considered, although not enough to build a new one

The Industrial Canal tunnel, which could cost as much as 14 million now, originally was planned with the state, federal and local governments each paying a third.

Long's highway department has just completed bonding 30 million dollars for highway work this fiscal year. It plans to bond another 30 million next fiscal year. In addition to regular highway revenues, the governor could suggest using some of this money for the Industrial Canal dream.

As for the old horse-and-buggy Simmesport bridge, it reaches high in importance because Rep. Buford Smith has been howling Long promised to do something about it back in 1956.

Now Long is running for governor again.

As Rep. Claude Kirkpatrick of Jefferson Davis Parish suggested, how Long plans his spending will be tied directly to his new gubernatorial bid.

Ship Captain Charges Fire Aid Refused

dian volunteers also were in the rescue party.

Vancouver Fire Chief Hugh Bird said department regulations forbid dispatching the powerful fireboat to aid the freighter. He said the first responsibility of the fireboat was to protect the city's harbor installations.

While crewmen and volunteers battled the flames, the freighter drifted to within about a half mile of shore.

For a time, it was feared that another explosion that would endanger waterfront homes in West Vancouver.

Police on shore moved about 50 families from their homes but the second blast never materialized.

Archer said the explosion apparently originated in the ship's engine. The ship was heavily damaged. Archer said the area midships was destroyed. The ship was finally taken in tow when the fire was out and pulled into dry dock in Vancouver about 3 a.m. edt.

FOR LUCE CASE TACTICS

Morris Censure Drive Weakening

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Homer E. Capehart's threat to seek Senate censure of Sen. Wayne L. Morse for his tactics in the Clare Boothe Luce fiasco appeared to be fizzling out Saturday for lack of support.

However, bitterness generated by the sometimes bizarre verbal fight over confirming the former playwright-actress as ambassador to Brazil may leave its mark for a long time to come.

Capehart said he would confer with other Republican senators and with Senate parliamentarians before deciding on what definite moves to make against the Oregon Democrat who led the fight against Mrs. Luce.

But a check of many senators revealed virtually no support for the rotund Indiana Republican who has tangled with Morse more than once before.

Most senators appeared to be glad the wrangle over Mrs. Luce was behind them. Also, they still recall the bitterness and delay caused by the Senate's last censure action in 1954 which led to the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) being "condemned" for two breaches of conduct but not formally "censured."

Morse, who once denounced Capehart as a "tub of rancid ignorance" during an exchange on the Senate floor, sat tight and said he would welcome any move Capehart wanted to make against him.

"If he thinks a resolution of censure is called for, let him offer it," Morse said.

Mrs. Luce, confirmed 79 - 11 Wednesday by the Senate, resigned her ambassadorial post Friday before she was ever sworn in.

But Capehart promptly kept the controversy going by saying the Senate should censure Morse, particularly because the Oregon Democrat called Mrs. Luce's New York doctor to inquire if she had

Committee will not begin hearings on Reid until later this month. Although no members of the committee have openly announced their opposition, Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) and others have said they intend to fully explore Reid's qualifications.

Fulbright warned the White House in an interview earlier this week that the Senate will reject any diplomatic appointees who are not fully qualified.

The Arkansas Democrat said his feeling was that the adminis- ever been under psychiatric treatment.

As for that being improper conduct, Morse said Capehart should "read the record. It has been thoroughly covered."

Fulbright said his position was not aimed at Reid or any other nominee. He pointed out that he had taken the same stand as far back as 1945 when he questioned the nomination of then Postmaster General Frank Walker as an alternate delegate to the original United Nations General Assembly in San Francisco.

Officers Seize Moonshine Still In Mobile Home

MOBILE (UPI) — Federal and city officers Saturday seized a moonshine whisky still set up in a home in the midst of a residential area here.

City patrolmen said the still, about average in size, was in the building in the center of the residential area. The resident of the house, a Negro, was arrested on a charge of possession of an illegal still.

Officers said the still was destroyed along with five barrels of mash.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, on the Missouri River was named that because for the bluff on which the town is located was once the site of Indian pow - wows.

Sub Research Center For Allies Opens

LA SPEZIA, Italy (UPI)—Nine Western nations Saturday opened an anti-submarine research center at La Spezia with a warning from the NATO Atlantic commander that a "tremendous" Soviet submarine fleet threatens Allied sea life lines.

U.S. Admoral Jerauld Wright, the Atlantic commander, warned at the dedication ceremonies in the Mediterranean port that the Western powers at present lack the power to overcome the threat from th Soviet subs.

Russia is known to have about 500 submarines. The 1958-59 edition of the authoritative naval encyclopedia Jane's Fighting Ships estimated another 75 under construction, including three nuclear-powered vessles. The Soviet sub fleet is about double the size of the U.S. Navy sub fleet.

Wright said that as far as is known, Russia has no atomic subs in operation "as yet." But he said overall the West was faced with a "tremendous Soviet submarine fleet."

The U.S. Navy assumed the major share of the cost of the new anti-submarine center which was expected to run into the millions of dollars.

Britain, Canada, Denmark, France; Germany, Italy, Holland, and Norway also are sharing in the center.

It will be staffed by 20 senior scientists from the nine nations, with 60 to 80 assistants. The base will be directed by SACLANT, the Atlantic command with headquarters at Norfolk, Va.

Little Richard Saved

In a world that may seem frequently to be overrun with selfishness and greed, something happens every once in a while to show that most people have warm, sympathetic hearts and that they are willing to lend their efforts free of charge in the cause of kindness.

Such a case was that in which spunky Little Richard, a blue tick coon hound, was rescued from a limestone tomb after being trapped for six days and nights.

The 2½-year-old dog scrambled into bright sunlight after 200 people had worked off and on most of the time since he was found trapped in the rocky vise six days earlier.

Taken to an animal hospital in Tulsa, Okla., Little Richard flipped his tail side to side, scratched a tick and then dozed off. The veterinarian said the hound had every chance to pull through." The veterinarian had stood by throughout the night as workers scratched at the gritty limestone and stubborn granite. He said the dog lost about 10 pounds of the 60 he weighed before the ordeal.

Larry Wilson, 20, who was hunting with Little Richard when the hound went into the jumble of fissured rock and fell into the crevice, said:

"It sure feels good. I started out with a pick to dig him out, then we got help from everybody."

The time put in by those who were at the scene of the rescue would have been worth thousands of dollars during the six-day ordeal. At best, the dog, in monetary value, would have been worth only a fraction of that amount. Few, if any, of those who worked expected any kind of pay or reward other than the satisfaction of helping to free a creature in distress. They gave their time freely and eagerly.

At such times as this, human sympathy and compassion and assistance count more than money.

Mississippi's Laws

Every time an unusually outrageous crime occurs, somebody wants to enact a new law against such an offense, even though the statute books may already been loaded down with such laws.

Suggestions are being made in a number of states, particularly those in the north, that Mississippi should follow Virginia's example and enact an anti-lynching statute.

It happens that our neighbor state has one of the strictest criminal codes in any of the 50 states. It has three statutes under which lynchers can be prosecuted and put to death. If 50 more such laws were to be enacted, the legal protection against lynching would be no greater than it is now, since all that is required now far the extreme penalty is obtaining a conviction under the laws that exist.

In Mississippi, section 2238 of the criminal code defines kidnaping as a capital offense.

Section 2215 makes murder a capital offense.

Section 1195 makes being an accessory before the fact in either crime a capital offense.

In a lynching, all three of these laws would be violated. Three capital offenses would be committed.

What advantage would there be in adding a fourth capital offense to the crime of lynching?

Of course, demands for laws that are useless or worse are not confined to Mississippi.

The state of Maryland may not have reached the ultimate in ridiculous legislation but it is a strong candidate on the most-foolish-laws list. The Maryland legislature recently put through a bill permitting Washington county to offer a bounty of $3 for each great horned owl that is killed. It was charged that the owls were killing so many young wild turkeys and rabbits that the hunting season was spoiled.

The joker in this is that the Maryland legislature also passed a bill setting a fine of $70 for killing certain birds, one of which is the great horned owl. Anyone who collected the $3 bounty for killing an owl might have to pay a $70 fine, which would leave him with a net loss of $67. There's not really much inducement in that.

Delaware's legislature, stirred up by an increase in the crime rate, has passed a bill making whippings mandatory for people convicted of robbery. The bill says 20 to 40 lashes for the first offense and not less than 30 for each subsequent conviction. The bill had not yet been signed by the governor, who was debating whether to approve or reject it.

Brutality has never been any more successful in ending crime than has imprisonment. Occasionally some state comes up with a brutality law but public sentiment soon brings about its repeal.

The number of lashes applied in whipping is not an accurate measure of the severity of punishment. An expert wielder of a bullwhip could easily kill a man with 20 lashes or less. The legislature is thus leaving up to the man with the whip or his superiors the question of whether the prisoner shall be beaten to death or lightly whipped, even though the number of lashes might be as high as 40.

Many foolish laws are enacted and those passed during the heat of temper or excitement are seldom wise.

County—Coming And Going

Connecticut's Gov. Abraham Ribicoff is leading a drive to do away with his state's eight county governments, in existence since 1666. He argues that turning county functions over to the state would save taxpayers about $500,000 a year. Counties have never been particularly important anyway in Connecticut's local government scheme. As is generally true in New England, the newly devised township system took root more firmly than the English transplant.

For years county government has been under sporadic attack for its failure to adapt to 20th Century needs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, when governor of New York, compared the county to an "oxcart"; the National Municipal League once stigmatized it as "at best an expensive mystery . . . at worst a happy hunting ground for unsavory courthouse gangs."

Such assaults have done little to dislodge the county from its place. If the legislature goes along with Gov. Ribicoff, Connecticut would become only the third state to get een particularly important anyway along without county governments. The others are tiny Rhode Island and sprawling Alaska. And Alaska, still in the process of setting up its state government, is thinking about adding a layer of counties to the present structure.

If anything, the recent trend has been toward reinvigoration rather than abolition of the county. On the theory that metropolitan problems normally follow county rather than city lines, political reformers have been campaigning to turn jobs like planning, transportation, and water pollution control over to government established in 1957 by ular example is the metropolitan the larger unit. The most spectac- Dade County (Miami), Fla., but toddling steps have been taken in numerous other areas.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAY'S

Labor Leaders Blamed For Out-Pricing Goods

The outpricing of American commodities is, in a measure, due to the unstatesmanlike attitude of the labor leaders who stimulate inflation by demanding increases in wages which produce increases in prices. As a result the purchasing value of the dollar goes down. In a word, as compared with the dollar in 1940, the purchasing value of the dollar is now 48 cents. Higher wages can mean a lowered value for the dollar. This process can continue until the dollar is worth little or nothing.

Again one may use the automobile industry as an example. The price of the American car in 1957 and 1958 encountered resistance, resulting in sufficient unemployment in Michigan as to be a serious problem and at the same time an increased import of European cars in the United States which became a competitive factor in 1958. Fortunately, it now appears that the trend in both categories is not as severe in 1959. Nevertheless, outside of the United States American cars are outpriced and American automobile companies are increasing their investments in foreign countries.

* * *

The government of the United States encourages private investments abroad wherever possible. This is done for political reasons, but it is unrelated to the unemployment problem in the United States which, if continuous and if the numbers increase, may have very serious social effects.

Some labor leaders when they call strikes avoid asking for direct wage increases, but prefer what is euphemistically called "a package deal." This includes various fringe benefits which, by any calculation, amount to increased wages; but the payments are postponed. For instance, maternity benefits for women workers are a form of wages but they are paid out by other means than a weekly check. Similarly, increases in vacations with pay involve the cost of labor by other bookkeeping procedures than hourly wage payments.

All fringe benefits are calculated as cists of operations and go into the price which increases with each round of strikes or threats of strikes. To keep prices down, that is, to keep the cost of production down, management adopts all sorts of labor-saving devices, reducing the manpower engaged in production. Unless this manpower can be absorbed in other industries or in service operations, there must be unemployment, especially as the United States has an increasing population. If the inflation is accelerated, unemployment is bound to increase. There is no use attempting to deal with the question of unemployment unless the inflation is made the center of consideration.

The management of labor unions faces difficult problems. The thoughtful, conservative leadership which is headed by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is always badgered by two groups, the ideological socialists, such as Walter Reuther, who usually have a good press, and the racketeers who cause trouble because they have made unionism a private business and operate without consideration for the welfare of the country.

A combination, for instance, of Harry Bridges, who has taken the Fifth Amendment as to his Communist affiliations, and Jimmy Hoffa, whose union has been expelled from the AFL-CIO for corruption, is a menace to the United States as great as any foreign foe. Harry Bridges recently impudently announced that he, and not the president of Congress, would determine what is the foreign policy of the United States. He said that no matter what the President, the Department of Defense, the State Department or the Congress decided as the policy between the United States and Formosa and the United States and Red China, he, Harry Bridges, private individual, of alien origin, would have to approve that policy so far as it could be implemented by the shipment of arms. In a word, he established a veto power for himself. This is an intolerable situation in any country for any individual. When Bridges and Hoffa combine, these two men could control the transportation operations of the entire nation and could imperil the national defense. They are therefore a menace to the country and should be so regarded by all other labor executives as well as by the government.

In the present circumstances in which this nation finds itself, the peril of inflation and the peril of both socialistic and hood labor union management cannot be disregarded even by those members of Congress who received union campaign contributions directly or indirectly, by check or under the table.

Living Off U.S. Not Easy For All

NEW YORK (AP) — The big problem in America today is—how can the government live off everybody when everybody is trying to live off the government?

Practically every government—federal, state or local—is running short of money. They also seem to be running out of ideas for new taxes.

The City Council here, for example, has just voted a five per cent tax on restaurant checks over a dollar. The tax was voted in an atmosphere of apology to "the little man," a tacit admission that only a cigar store Indian could find a decent meal here for less than a buck.

This abject attitude of polite concern over the plight of the taxpayer, however, isn't going to enable any government to live in the style to which it wants to become accustomed.

* * *

What governments need is the courage to reach firmly into new and unplumbed areas of the public purse and pluck boldly therefrom the money it wants.

Here are a few tentative suggestions:

Why not tax pedestrians? If drivers have to fork up money to get a license to use the city streets, why shouldn't pedestrians be made to pay for the privilege of wearing out the city sidewalks?

The issuance of $10 annual pedestrian licenses would not only add millions of dollars in revenue to most big municipalities. It would enable them to weed out reckless walkers unable to pass periodic inspection tests.

Why not also sell baby buggy licenses? Why should an infant, at the very start of its existence, get the idea there are any free rides in life?

It might even be a good idea to put a $15 tax—split equally between local, state and federal governments—on birth itself, payable at the hospital by the parents before they would be allowed to take their child home.

* * *

A few other ideas:

Taxes on girl watching.

Taxes on park bench sitting. Philosophers such as Bernard Baruch might object to these, but those who use public services ought to pay at least part of the costs.

Taxes on umbrella carrying. The government might also consider compulsory liability insurance here for the victims of this vicious practice.

Taxes on the public wearing of Phi Beta Kappa keys and Rotary Club lapel buttons.

Taxes on flower pots. The only danger here is that city dwellers might choose to let their pots lie fallow, and insist on being cut in for benefits under the federal soil bank program.

Special tax stamps to be affixed to letters written to Congress complaining about taxes.

When you get right down to it, the field of taxation is practically limitless. Anyone who thinks he's seen the end of new taxes just doesn't know what lies ahead.

Such as maybe a burial tax stamp. If you tax a guy for the privilege of going underground, isn't that really an inducement to make him want to keep on living?

Minds Swayed In Labor Discussion

WASHINGTON, D. C. — All afternoon they sat there, side by side, bending their heads to confer, nodding in agreement, freezing their expressions to refrain from giving away their thoughts.

Anybody tempted to think that voting on Labor affairs is cut and dried would not have thought so when watching the two U.S. Senators from West Virginia where the high mountaineer spirit of independence fights with the high authority of Labor leadership.

Political courage is a relative thing. It takes little of it for men from Nevada and Idaho, or Mississippi and Georgia to support antiboss Labor measures, such as the ones which Senator McClellan was laying before the Senate. But for West Virginia Senators to defy the union chiefs takes plenty of what is called in the sporting circles—moxie.

* * *

Never mind how Randolph and Byrd finally decided. The point is that they sat there and weighed the evidence in deep and earnest contemplation. What a contrast they made! Robert Byrd, just past 40, is delicate of limb and feature, deeply religious, extremely solemn, a self-made young man who knows from personal experience how unromantic, how grinding poverty can be, and how very much the arrival of trade unionism meant to his people.

Jennings Randolph in his vigorous mid-50s is florid of complexion and often of oratory, a man of outflowing friendship and bonhommie, who came to the House of Representatives during the New Deal, and came this year to the Senate after more than a decade in private enterprise.

If you think that the evidence on Labor legislation is black vs. white, and that the moral issue is right vs. wrong, you would not have thought so after listening two hours to the Senate debate. These were some of the arguments that swayed the minds of men:

By Lausche of Ohio: That the right to do business is just as sacred in his conception of Liberty as the right to free speech. Hence, he would support legislation to outlaw Labor picketing when it takes the form of business-busting.

By Kennedy of Massachusetts: That competition is the nature of the American economy. There is Business vs. Business, a battle in which thousands of firms go bankrupt every year. There is Business vs. Labor unions. It is a running fight in which business tries to avoid being organized, and in which unions try to sign up all possible members. The Federal government must not outlaw peaceful picketing, which is the union's best weapon.

By McClellan of Arkansas: That organizational picketing, even when peaceful, is used for blackmail. Many a business is coerced into signing union contracts which benefit not the worker but the racketeer. He had a thousand witnesses before the Rackets Committee to prove the point.

* * *

By Curtis of Nebraska: That McClellan was right. By refusing to cross a picket line at the Waldorf Astoria hotel, the Teamsters Brotherhood had thrown their weight into a Barber Shop dispute and isolated one of the greatest hotels in the country. The Teamsters, by their arbitrary use of power, could almost as easily isolate a city.

By Dirksen of Illinois: That McClellan was right. Dirksen read to the silent Senate floor a letter in which a union spokesman threatened by sinister but legalistic insinuations to break a small business-man unless he agreed to sign a union contract, without regard to the wishes of his workers.

By Kennedy: That McClellan was wrong. McClellan couldn't see a union without seeing a racketeer. Dirksen and Curtis were talking about misuses of union power. Kennedy himself, said Kennedy, was as much against rackets and misused power as McClellan, Curtis, Dirksen and anybody else. Kennedy was willing to legislate against Labor crime, said Kennedy, but not willing to legislate against Labor itself on the argument that all Labor was criminal. The right to organize, the right to picket, the right to bargain must be protected if Liberty and economic improvement are to survive.

BASCOM TIMMONS

House Ready To Pay Labor Chiefs

The Kennedy labor bill has now moved over to the House of Representatives where there are no panting candidates for the 1960 Presidential nomination.

But if the House is devoid of patriots aspiring to head the national tickets next year and lead their parties on a great crusade, it has numerous members, both Democrat and Republican, ready to repay the labor bosses for assistance rendered in 1958 and previous years and willing also to make an obliging advance payment for expected aid in their 1960 campaigns. So if any labor legislation emerges between now and the next Presidential election it will be the Kennedy bill or one equally innocouous.

The next move for the legislation will be in the House Labor Committee, the chairman of which is conservative Representative Graham A. Barden of North Carolina. In the 85th Congress the Barden Committee sat on the bill. There are 20 democrats and only 10 Republicans on the House Labor Committee. But there are all sorts of Democrats. In 1958 there were enough Democratic conservatives on the committee to join with the Republicans to delay action.

* * *

At the last minute the Kennedy-Ives bill, which did not differ so much from this year's version of the Kennedy bill, was brought to the House floor under a suspension of rules procedure requiring two-thirds votes for passage and Republicans in about the same proportion against.

There are some vast differences this year. In the first place the Kennedy bill passed the Senate early in the session and even if the Barden Committee's membership and the House membership were the same as last year the task of sitting on the lid would be more difficult.

Actually the Labor Committee has been "liberalized" by replacing retired or defeated members with men indebted for their election largely to labor support. Moreover there are probably 50 more members of the present House who feel they owe their political lives to labor than there were in the House last year.

The ideas of the labor rank and file and those of the labor bosses are not always, maybe never, identical. But it is the labor bosses and not the rank and file which make their wishes known to Congress.

The labor bosses were so sure of their strength this year that they laid down an ultimatum. There could, they said, be no labor legislation at all if it did not contain certain "sweeteners." These "sweeteners" were in the form of specified amendments to the Taft-Hartley labor law. The Senate accepted this dictation and there is every indication that the House will also do so, although perhaps with less celerity than the Senate displayed.

* * *

The numerous people who have seemed to be thoroughly outraged at the manner in which corrupt labor leaders seem able to flaunt and flout the United States may be sure that the reform legislation they will get to cure this is weak indeed. The Senate of the Texas legislature unanimously in a memorial addressed to Congress said:

"The Kennedy bill purports to be legislation designed for the best interest of the general public in the protection of the workingman from the influence of corrupt unions, but in fact the bill is couched in such language as perverts the true intention of the principles ostensibly expressed."

The language of the Texas legislative body is a restrained expression of a widely held viewpoint. The Kennedy bill carries provisions which ostensibly would require more representative union elections, as well as detailed annual union and management reports of financial trusteeship provisions; would slap penalties on management and middleman for bribery of union officials and would make misappropriation of union funds a crime. But no Hoffa is going to shudder at anything in the bill.

And the "sweeteners" dutiably put into the bill by the Senate make it very palatable to the labor leaders who are not thugs and hoodlums but equally as power-hungry as any Hoffa.

* * *

There has been the inevitable speculation as to the effect of the Senate legislation on the political aspirations of the Senate Democratic Presidential candidates. Because it bears his name Senator Kennedy undoubtedly figures to gain much in his quest of the Presidential nomination.

Senators Symington, Johnson and Humphrey did just about as much to win the gratitude of Walter Reuther as Kennedy did. The four most prominently mentioned Democratic Senatorial aspirants for the Presidency formed a solid phalanx to turn back the strengthening amendments offered by Senator John L. McClellan of the Senate Rackets investigating committee

Little Richard Saved

In a world that may seem frequently to be overrun with selfishness and greed, something happens every once in a while to show that most people have warm, sympathetic hearts and that they are willing to lend their efforts free of charge in the cause of kindness.

Such a case was that in which spunky Little Richard, a blue tick coon hound, was rescued from a limestone tomb after being trapped for six days and nights.

The 2½-year-old dog scrambled into bright sunlight after 200 people had worked off and on most of the time since he was found trapped in the rocky vise six days earlier.

Taken to an animal hospital in Tulsa, Okla., Little Richard flipped his tail side to side, scratched a tick and then dozed off. The veterinarian said the hound had every chance to pull through." The veterinarian had stood by throughout the night as workers scratched at the gritty limestone and stubborn granite. He said the dog lost about 10 pounds of the 60 he weighed before the ordeal.

Larry Wilson, 20, who was hunting with Little Richard when the hound went into the jumble of fissured rock and fell into the crevice, said:

"It sure feels good. I started out with a pick to dig him out, then we got help from everybody."

The time put in by those who were at the scene of the rescue would have been worth thousands of dollars during the six-day ordeal. At best, the dog, in monetary value, would have been worth only a fraction of that amount. Few, if any, of those who worked expected any kind of pay or reward other than the satisfaction of helping to free a creature in distress. They gave their time freely and eagerly.

At such times as this, human sympathy and compassion and assistance count more than money.

Mississippi's Laws

Every time an unusually outrageous crime occurs, somebody wants to enact a new law against such an offense, even though the statute books may already been loaded down with such laws.

Suggestions are being made in a number of states, particularly those in the north, that Mississippi should follow Virginia's example and enact an anti-lynching statute.

It happens that our neighbor state has one of the strictest criminal codes in any of the 50 states. It has three statutes under which lynchers can be prosecuted and put to death. If 50 more such laws were to be enacted, the legal protection against lynching would be no greater than it is now, since all that is required now far the extreme penalty is obtaining a conviction under the laws that exist.

In Mississippi, section 2238 of the criminal code defines kidnaping as a capital offense.

Section 2215 makes murder a capital offense.

Section 1195 makes being an accessory before the fact in either crime a capital offense.

In a lynching, all three of these laws would be violated. Three capital offenses would be committed.

What advantage would there be in adding a fourth capital offense to the crime of lynching?

Of course, demands for laws that are useless or worse are not confined to Mississippi.

The state of Maryland may not have reached the ultimate in ridiculous legislation but it is a strong candidate on the most-foolish-laws list. The Maryland legislature recently put through a bill permitting Washington county to offer a bounty of $3 for each great horned owl that is killed. It was charged that the owls were killing so many young wild turkeys and rabbits that the hunting season was spoiled.

The joker in this is that the Maryland legislature also passed a bill setting a fine of $70 for killing certain birds, one of which is the great horned owl. Anyone who collected the $3 bounty for killing an owl might have to pay a $70 fine, which would leave him with a net loss of $67. There's not really much inducement in that.

Delaware's legislature, stirred up by an increase in the crime rate, has passed a bill making whippings mandatory for people convicted of robbery. The bill says 20 to 40 lashes for the first offense and not less than 30 for each subsequent conviction. The bill had not yet been signed by the governor, who was debating whether to approve or reject it.

Brutality has never been any more successful in ending crime than has imprisonment. Occasionally some state comes up with a brutality law but public sentiment soon brings about its repeal.

The number of lashes applied in whipping is not an accurate measure of the severity of punishment. An expert wielder of a bullwhip could easily kill a man with 20 lashes or less. The legislature is thus leaving up to the man with the whip or his superiors the question of whether the prisoner shall be beaten to death or lightly whipped, even though the number of lashes might be as high as 40.

Many foolish laws are enacted and those passed during the heat of temper or excitement are seldom wise.

County—Coming And Going

Connecticut's Gov. Abraham Ribicoff is leading a drive to do away with his state's eight county governments, in existence since 1666. He argues that turning county functions over to the state would save taxpayers about $500,000 a year. Counties have never been particularly important anyway in Connecticut's local government scheme. As is generally true in New England, the newly devised township system took root more firmly than the English transplant.

For years county government has been under sporadic attack for its failure to adapt to 20th Century needs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, when governor of New York, compared the county to an "oxcart"; the National Municipal League once stigmatized it as "at best an expensive mystery . . . at worst a happy hunting ground for unsavory courthouse gangs."

Such assaults have done little to dislodge the county from its place. If the legislature goes along with Gov. Ribicoff, Connecticut would become only the third state to get een particularly important anyway along without county governments. The others are tiny Rhode Island and sprawling Alaska. And Alaska, still in the process of setting up its state government, is thinking about adding a layer of counties to the present structure.

If anything, the recent trend has been toward reinvigoration rather than abolition of the county. On the theory that metropolitan problems normally follow county rather than city lines, political reformers have been campaigning to turn jobs like planning, transportation, and water pollution control over to government established in 1957 by ular example is the metropolitan the larger unit. The most spectac- Dade County (Miami), Fla., but toddling steps have been taken in numerous other areas.

Labor Leaders Blamed For Out-Pricing Goods

The outpricing of American commodities is, in a measure, due to the unstatesmanlike attitude of the labor leaders who stimulate inflation by demanding increases in wages which produce increases in prices. As a result the purchasing value of the dollar goes down. In a word, as compared with the dollar in 1940, the purchasing value of the dollar is now 48 cents. Higher wages can mean a lowered value for the dollar. This process can continue until the dollar is worth little or nothing.

Again one may use the automobile industry as an example. The price of the American car in 1957 and 1958 encountered resistance, resulting in sufficient unemployment in Michigan as to be a serious problem and at the same time an increased import of European cars in the United States which became a competitive factor in 1958. Fortunately, it now appears that the trend in both categories is not as severe in 1959. Nevertheless, outside of the United States American cars are outpriced and American automobile companies are increasing their investments in foreign countries.

* * *

The government of the United States encourages private investments abroad wherever possible. This is done for political reasons, but it is unrelated to the unemployment problem in the United States which, if continuous and if the numbers increase, may have very serious social effects.

Some labor leaders when they call strikes avoid asking for direct wage increases, but prefer what is euphemistically called "a package deal." This includes various fringe benefits which, by any calculation, amount to increased wages; but the payments are postponed. For instance, maternity benefits for women workers are a form of wages but they are paid out by other means than a weekly check. Similarly, increases in vacations with pay involve the cost of labor by other bookkeeping procedures than hourly wage payments.

All fringe benefits are calculated as cists of operations and go into the price which increases with each round of strikes or threats of strikes. To keep prices down, that is, to keep the cost of production down, management adopts all sorts of labor-saving devices, reducing the manpower engaged in production. Unless this manpower can be absorbed in other industries or in service operations, there must be unemployment, especially as the United States has an increasing population. If the inflation is accelerated, unemployment is bound to increase. There is no use attempting to deal with the question of unemployment unless the inflation is made the center of consideration.

* * *

The management of labor unions faces difficult problems. The thoughtful, conservative leadership which is headed by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, is always badgered by two groups, the ideological socialists, such as Walter Reuther, who usually have a good press, and the racketeers who cause trouble because they have made unionism a private business and operate without consideration for the welfare of the country.

A combination, for instance, of Harry Bridges, who has taken the Fifth Amendment as to his Communist affiliations, and Jimmy Hoffa, whose union has been expelled from the AFL-CIO for corruption, is a menace to the United States as great as any foreign foe. Harry Bridges recently impudently announced that he, and not the president of Congress, would determine what is the foreign policy of the United States. He said that no matter what the President, the Department of Defense, the State Department or the Congress decided as the policy between the United States and Formosa and the United States and Red China, he, Harry Bridges, private individual, of alien origin, would have to approve that policy so far as it could be implemented by the shipment of arms. In a word, he established a veto power for himself. This is an intolerable situation in any country for any individual. When Bridges and Hoffa combine, these two men could control the transportation operations of the entire nation and could imperil the national defense. They are therefore a menace to the country and should be so regarded by all other labor executives as well as by the government.

In the present circumstances in which this nation finds itself, the peril of inflation and the peril of both socialistic and hood labor union management cannot be disregarded even by those members of Congress who received union campaign contributions directly or indirectly, by check or under the table.

Living Off U.S. Not Easy For All

NEW YORK (AP) — The big problem in America today is—how can the government live off everybody when everybody is trying to live off the government?

Practically every government—federal, state or local—is running short of money. They also seem to be running out of ideas for new taxes.

The City Council here, for example, has just voted a five per cent tax on restaurant checks over a dollar. The tax was voted in an atmosphere of apology to "the little man," a tacit admission that only a cigar store Indian could find a decent meal here for less than a buck.

This abject attitude of polite concern over the plight of the taxpayer, however, isn't going to enable any government to live in the style to which it wants to become accustomed.

* * *

What governments need is the courage to reach firmly into new and unplumbed areas of the public purse and pluck boldly therefrom the money it wants.

Here are a few tentative suggestions:

Why not tax pedestrians? If drivers have to fork up money to get a license to use the city streets, why shouldn't pedestrians be made to pay for the privilege of wearing out the city sidewalks?

The issuance of $10 annual pedestrian licenses would not only add millions of dollars in revenue to most big municipalities. It would enable them to weed out reckless walkers unable to pass periodic inspection tests.

Why not also sell baby buggy licenses? Why should an infant, at the very start of its existence, get the idea there are any free rides in life?

It might even be a good idea to put a $15 tax—split equally between local, state and federal governments—on birth itself, payable at the hospital by the parents before they would be allowed to take their child home.

TITLE INSURANCE PROTECTS

Home Ownership Can Be Challenged

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Mister, this is my house you're occupying and I'm suing to get it back."

This may sound like a nightmare to you but it could, and has happened. Your home ownership can be challenged at any time.

Such a challenge might cost you your home and all the money you have in it, or, to a lesser degree, might be an expensive nuisance.

"It's amazing, but nevertheless true, that every day intelligent people invest considerable sums of money in a home without protecting themselves against financial suicide," according to Seymour Berger, board chairman of Guaranteed Title and Mortgage Co.

Title insurance is the homeowner's answer for security. The closing fees in the purchase of a home include the bank's guaranty on the value of the mortgage, but if the buyer wants to be fully covered he must take out additional title insurance on his down payment equity, Berger said.

Changing Times magazine says title insurance is unique in three ways:

—Instead of insuring against the mishaps of the future, it protects against the consequences of the past.

—Instead of being bought by annual premiums, there is only one premium, paid when the policy is issued.

—Instead of expiring on a stated date or at death, the coverage continues indefinitely, even extending to your heirs and assigns as long as they hold the title.

If the holder of such insurance has his title contested the burdens of proof and financial liability are assumed by the title company. If the title is invalidated, the insured buyer is compensated in full for what otherwise would have brought total loss.

Most titles check out alright, but a few don't, and those are the ones you have to protect yourself against. There is always the possibility of faulty titles, undiscovered liens and bad deeds, all of which could have been brought about by forgery, false impersonation, or erroneous interpretation of wills, among other things. And the chances of being hurt by a defective title are much greater when purchasing an older house.

There are two types of title insurance for homeowners. One is a record title policy which merely guarantees that your ownership as shown by the policy conforms to the record. Such a policy boils down to insurance against a slipshod or incompetent title examination.

The other type, known as a full coverage policy, not only protects you against defects in the title or record but also against unknown, undiscovered effects. This type is recommended, and it costs only slightly more than the other one.

Harder Wood Project For Laboratory

DENVER (UPI)—The research laboratory of the Denver & Rio Grand Railroad is conducting a series of experiments aimed at changing Colorado soft pine into hardwood by atomic radiation.

Ray McBrian, engineer in charge, said the railroad's interest is in tougher, cheaper longer-lasting railroad ties. But successful culmination of the experiments would be a boon to all industries using wood.

McBrian explained that researchers are looking for a chemical that will penetrate the soft pine and then harden when irradiated to the strength and durability of oak, maple and hickory.

Such impregnated wood hardened under atomic radiation would produce timber that would not warp, crack or rot under most extreme conditions.

Initial experiments have made use of waste materials from atomic reactors as the source of radiation for the hardening process. The impregnating liquid has been urea and formaldehyde.

Four-Foot Alligat or Found In Yard

Does he bite? seems to be the question 20-month-old Tim Hinchey is asking his father Douglas Hinchey, an Enid, Okla., fireman. Hinchey found the four-foot-long alligator in an Enid yard. The residents had never seen it before, but it had been there long enough to wear a path. (AP Wirephoto)

IN SANTA FE AREA

Vigilantes War On Highway Billboards

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The vigilantes still ride out of Santa Fe, when it's moonlight on the mesa and the shadows stretch long from the aspen and the cottonwoods.

Thin-lipped, grim, silent, they turn off their television sets, put out their thinking man's filters, slip into their loafers and out of their adobe houses. Saddling up their station wagons and convertibles, they ride north, jaws set, eyes clear, minds joined in a common resolve to protect a way of life.

There are the billboards on the highway north of town. People in Santa Fe don't like billboards fouling their scenery. So, at night, they cut them down, burn them down, or smear them up in red paint. They do this several times a year.

The billboard vigilantes are only one symptom of the special syndrome distinguishing Santa Fe.

It is a city devoutly determined to be different by remaining the same.

WELCOME

Other cities welcome new industry and business and progress in the form of paved streets. Here, these things are resisted, not always successfully but loudly. In other places, the voice of the artist may cry out alone and unheeded in an attic. In Santa Fe, the free soul is accepted and respected and, far from being ignored, is invited to join civic committees.

Santa Fe, which has a population of 34,000, has no industry to speak of and only enough business to accommodate tourists and legislators, its chief sources of income. Many of its streets remain unpaved, especially in the residential areas, where narrow lanes wind under fruit trees between the lovely earth-tinted adobe homes with their low flat roofs and dark beams jutting out under the eaves.

In one-third the town, it is now against the law to build any building, business or private dwelling, in anything but the adobe style. An artist aroused can be a tiger.

Not long ago some progress-minded radicals managed to push through a paved street in a residential district. The day it was completed an enraged sculptor tore out of his house with a sledge hammer and broke up a long stretch of curb.

Santa Feans can get mad over a variety of things — billboards, paving, street lights, modern buildings of glass and steel, a superhighway cutting across a lovely foothill of the majestic Sangre de Cristo Mountains.

But their most consistent source of irritation seems to come from Texas.

Santa Feans can tolerate Texas tourist money but not Texans. They grumble constantly that Texans are taking over their ski slopes in the winter and their trout streams in the summer.

ENRAGED

Recently many people in town were enraged by a published picture showing several hundred skiers from Texas raising the Lone Star flag on a nearby ski slope.

"Such damned gall!" said a dignified lady of Spanish origin.

In Santa Fe, only the Spanish-Americans are referred to as natives. The Indians are called Indians and everyone else, regardless of how long they've been here, are Anglos. Both Spanish and English are spoken in the Legislature, in the courts and political campaigns.

The first families are Spanish. Many claim to be descended from the old conquistadores who came here in search of gold—an expedition which not only antedated the Mayflower but must have been even more crowded.

Santa Fe's Plaza has seen much of the ebb and flow of history, To begin with, it was an Indian pueblo. Then the Spanish set up shop here. Then the Indians retook the place and held it from 1680 to 1692, until the Spanish recaptured it.

It was at the Plaza that the covered wagons coming down from Independence, Mo., on the Santa Fe Trail ended their journey. It was here that ox-drivers, cowboys and gamblers used to raise hell and criminals were locked in stocks or flogged in public. It was in the plaza that Billy the Kid once sat in chains.

Arthur Godfrey Is Recovering From Operation

NEW YORK (AP)—Arthur Godfrey was reported making satisfactory progress Saturday from his lung cancer operation and was able to get out of bed for short periods.

The radio and television star, 55 years old, was operated on Thursday. Surgeons removed part of his left lung.

A bulletin issued at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center Saturday morning said he had spent a comfortable night and that his condition "continues to be excellent."

Another bulletin at noon said his "post-operative condition continues satisfactory" and that "he gets up for short periods during the day."

Therapy Value Attributed To Pinball Machines

PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI)—Pinball machines are helping psychiatrists and therapists to straighten tilted personalities at the Colorado State Hospital.

Hospital officials maintain that the devices, subject of frequent controversy in law enforcement circles, have great therapeutic value for the mentally disturbed.

The state mental institution now has 14 pinball machines which were donated by Denver County authorities who confiscated them for betting "payoffs." Otherwise, the devices are legal in Colorado.

All the machines are installed in the hospital recreation hall.

"When the bells ring and the lights flash, we know someone is having fun," observes Mrs. Ward Lockhart, who has charge of rehabilitation.

She explained that the hospital rewires the machines so they can be operated without using coins.

Mrs. Lockhart pointed out that pinball machines are a type of recreation associated with normal life—not institutional life — and therein lies their chief therapeutic value.

The late comedian W. C. Fields was an accomplished juggler. Said it took him seven years of practice before he could include juggling in his comedy vaudeville act.

Nicholson To Fill College Dean's Post

James M. Nicholson, who is presently completing course work on the doctor of philosophy degree in business administration at Louisiana State University, has been named Dean of Administration at Northeast Louisiana State College, President George T. Walker announced yesterday.

The appointment, a new post at the college, has been approved by the State Board of Education and is effective June 1.

The new dean will have general direction of the business affairs of the college, including the business offices, operations and maintenance and the auxiliary enterprises or student service facilities.

He has an extensive educational and professional background in business administration work.

A native of Jena, Nicholson is a 1936 graduate of Jena High School. He graduated from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in 1939 with a bachelor of science degree and from LSU in 1948 with a master of business administration degree, with a major in accounting and a minor in economics at both schools. During 1958-59, he has been working on the doctorate at LSU.

He also attended the Economic Mobilization Course for senior officers at the U. S. War College in Washington, D. D., in 1950.

From 1951 - 58, he was employed with the Seaboard Oil Company of Dallas, Tex., serving the last four years as company ecomist and assistant secretary-treasurer and before that as co-head of the audit department. During the three years prior to taking that position, Nicholson was an auditor with the Ethyl Corporation at Baton Rouge.

In 1946-47, he was a laboratory instructor of statistics at LSU, a year in which he made special economic reports for Radio Station WJBO and the Chamber of Commerce at Baton Rouge.

He served four years in the U. S. Navy during World War II, attaining the rank of lieutenant commander and commanding a division of ships from 1942-45.

Prior to the war, he worked for the U. S. Government at Little Rock as an accountant from 1939-42.

Nicholson, who is 40 years old, is married and has two children, aged four and six. He is a Methodist.

Protest March Is Planned By Detroit Negro

DETROIT (AP) — Charles C. Diggs, a former state legislator, said Saturday he will organize a march on Vicksburg, Miss., next Veterans Day, Nov. 11, to protest what he termed the way Negroes are treated in Mississippi.

The Detroit Negro, who was born in Mississippi, said he will make a nationwide appeal to the people of every race, color and creed to join in the march. He is the father of Rep. Charles Diggs, Jr. (D-Mich).

Diggs said his plan was prompted by the recent kidnaping of a Negro prisoner in Poplarville, Miss.

Diggs sent a telegram to Mississippi Gov. James P. Coleman informing him of the plan. He said, "it is my confident hope that the march on Mississippi will provide you with a peaceful demonstration of national concern that will bring about the constructive action demanded by these critical times."

Monroe Native Dies In Florida

Mrs. Janet Nelson Dingee, 79, of Palm Beach, Florida, died Friday at the residence of a son there. A former resident of Monroe, Mrs. Dingee was the last survivor of the Nelson family, early Monroyans who lived on DeSiard Street downtown when this was a residential area.

Funeral services were scheduled for Monday in West Palm Beach.

Mrs. Dingee is survived by a son, Nelson Smith, Palm Beach, Florida; and several nieces and nephews.

California was used as a word for the first time— so far as anybody knows — in a Spanish romantic novel by Garcia Ordonex de Montalvo printed in 1510. He described it as "an island at the right hand of the Indies."

Each year, accidents take more than 42,000 lives in the U. S. among men between the ages of 15 and 64.

Ten Baptist Women Accept Assignments

Ten Baptist women students from Northeast Louisiana State College have been accepted for summer mission and camp work which will take them to scattered parts of the United States.

Five will go to Ridgecrest, N. C. as members of a staff of 400. They are Shirley Crow, Juliana Hales, and Pamelia Fuller, all from Monroe, and Barbara Lowery and Pat Shackleford, both of West Monroe. Applications by these students were made to the Ridgecrest Baptist Assembly and they are due at Ridgecrest June 1. Their duties will include dining hall duty, assisting the registrar, and clerking in the gift shop.

Mollie Guin of Kelly will be one of a 200-member staff at Glorieta, located 18 miles out of Santa Fe, N. M. She will begin summer work July 14.

Bonnie Wales, West Monroe; Elaine Knight, Monroe; and Nelwyn Cook, Baskin, will go on the Home Mission Board working in Fresno, Calif., Wichita,Kan., and Oklahoma City, Okla., respectively. They will be directed by field missionaries in each location, working from June 6 to August 15.

Brenda Gambrell, Ferriday, is on the reserve list and expects to receive a mission, though no definite assignment has been given her yet.

Each year approximately 400 to 500 college students are chosen for work as summer missionaries through applications to the Home Mission Board of the Southern Baptist Convention at Atlanta, Ga. They work with Vacation Bible Schools, take religious censuses, work in camps, and help with general mission work. They receive salaries of $25 a week plus the expenses of room and board, and transportation.

Arthur Kibble of Milwaukie, Ore. was selected by Louisiana Baptist students to serve as a summer missionary to Nigeria, leaving June 5 and returning late in August.

STORY OF A DUCK

'Madame Chiang' On Bayou Throne

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
STAFF WRITER

"Madame Chiang," a Muscovy duck, maintains a throne on Bayou DeSiard — and a decoy nest for snoopers.

We went duck hunting — with a camera — Thursday afternoon. Photographer Bill Coleman, Northeast College student Tommy Parks, instructor Lady Stahl, and the inevitable reporter.

After a grand start of losing my automatic pencil, the four of us roared off from the College Friend Cafe, and tried to find our "borrowed boat."

The second time around Bon Aire drive, we located the G. A. Aden residence (stopped to ask where it was right in front of the place) and found the boat.

A three-seater wooden affair, it clung to the Bayou bank in a direct line across from a tall cypress stump—where we "thought" Madame Chiang was nesting.

ANOTHER

Armed with another pencil borrowed from Lady Stahl, who wisely remained on the bank, the reporter carefully settled on the mid-way perch, Bill Coleman pulled on knee-boots and climbed into the front of the boat.

Tommy Parks shoved us off, jumped in, and we were headed for the duck's hideout.

This particular duck has become a "pet" for the College girls in Dormitory 2, which overlooks the Bayou.

Along with Dean Margaret Newman, they've kept an eye on her all winter and into the spring, named her, and waited to see her eggs hatch out.

Madame Chiang made their bird - watching easy by daily flights to the top of a cypress tree.

Apparently she was scanning the Bayou for a good nesting spot, because last month she settled on the tall stump jutting out of the water, about 10 feet off shore.

FINGERS CROSSED

The Co-eds kept their fingers crossed that snakes and turtles wouldn't discover the nest and gulp down the eggs.

We slipped across the Bayou, and as Parks paddled up to the stump we began to think that maybe a water creature had eaten duck-egg dinner.

Nothing left in the hollowed-out stump but a few feathers. A few feet off, on the bank, several girls were "sunning", unaware of the "tragedy."

Back on the bank we had just left, about four houses down, stood Madame Chiang, pecking at her feathers and easily seen from the cypress.

Midway between her and us was another stump, twice as large and barely jutting above water.

We headed for there.

Nine cream - colored. slightly larger than big chicken eggs, were clustered in a fluff of duck down and due to hatch within 30 days.

Bill stood up to get the picture, the boat rocked unpleasantly, the reporter glanced down at the murky brown water and wondered if her extent of swimming knowledge (the dead man's float) would be called into practice.

CHEERILY

"You don't think I'd be out here if I couldn't swim," the photographer commented cheerily.

Mission half-accomplished, Tommy paddled the boat toward Madame Chiang.

We ground to a halt on the water weed - surrounded bank. Madame Chiang paid us no attention, kept right on stuffing her bill into her feathers. Pure white and plump, she has a ridge of red color just above her pale yellow bill, and yellow webbed feet.

Bill edged along the bank until he was opposite the "Oriental" beauty. She forgot her feathers long enough to pose, Bill clicked the camera, and she took off across the water, skimming the surface in a semi-circle until she landed approximately 100 yards downstream, on the same side of the bayou.

The "Dorm 2" residents comment that she leaves her nest in early morning and late afternoon, for brief feeding spells. Her "high" nesting spot in the tall thin cypress stump was one unusual feature that drew us to the bayou.

Ducks, including the Muscovy, which is native to America from Mexico to Brazil, seldom nest high above ground.

Her "real" nest, although close to the water like a duck's should be, was the shocker.

Because this duck, with true "Oriental" ingenuity to match her name, has set up a "decoy" nest in the tall cypress, for snoopers.

Dancer Stunned By Ex-Gambler's Marriage Plans

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Strip-tease dancer Candy Barr returned to her nightly routine at a Sunset Strip nightspot Friday, still a little stunned by ex-gambler Mickey Cohen's declaration that he wanted to marry her when "we both are free."

Miss Barr, 23, was arrested early Thursday at the Largo night club when Los Angeles authorities were advised her $15,000 appeal bond on a Texas narcotics conviction had been revoked.

Cohen couldn't stop deputies from jailing the green-eyed dancer, but about 30 telephone calls, a two-page telegram and the promise that he would indemnify the bondsman in Dallas, Tex., led to "withdrawal of the withdrawal" Thursday. The bond was reinstated and Candy went free.

Mickey, whose divorce still isn't final, confessed he told the bondsman on the telephone he would like to marry Miss Barr but that "there's nothing definite. It would be silly to rush."

Miss Barr commented, "he's never mentioned anything like that to me, but this is very interesting."

There are approximately 460,000 professional nurses practicing in the U.S. today, an increase of 30,000 since 1956 and of 58,000 since 1954.

Nehru Under Pressure To Shift Policy

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru was under heavy political pressure Saturday to revise Indian foreign policy in light of angry Chinese Communist blasts against Indian "intervention" in Tibet.

Reliable sources said some members of his cabinet had advised him to be more wary of the Chinese situation and to reform his policy accordingly, but that Nehru still was convinced his policy of neutrality between East and West was best.

Close associates said Nehru's policy is to be just and honest and to criticize his friends as well as his enemies if he found their actions displeasing. But he believes even in backing his enemies if he thinks they are right.

RELATIONS STRAINED

The Tibetan situation has strained relations between Delhi and Peiping badly and Nehru's foreign experts have been reviewing the whole affair, especially to find out why Peiping's anger against India reached such heights.

Political experts said there must be something more behind Peiping's harsh criticism than the mere fact that India granted political asylum to the Dalai Lama, the God - King of Tibet. They expressed belief these factors may be involved.

Venus Shot Delay Matter Of Months

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) —A delay in U. S. plans to shoot space probes at the planet Venus, forced by technical reasons, probably amounts to only a matter of months instead of years, the Air Force's top missile expert said Saturday.

The probes had been scheduled for next month.

Lt. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever said the "most difficult technical problem had to do with the scientific payloads" of the Thor-Able and Atlas - Able rockets originally scheduled for launching June 3 and 4.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), which has overall supervision of the nation's scientific explorations of space, announced the postponement Friday.

NASA said problems developed in both the payloads and the rockets, which were to be used to launch them, and added that the next likely date for a Venus shot would be Jan. 13, 1961.

Schriever, making his first visit to the Air Force Missile Test Center since his recent appointment as Commander of the Air Research and Development Command, said he was unaware that the postponement had been called.

But he told reporters at a news conference that he felt the situation involved a mere rescheduling of the shots rather than an indefinite postponement.

"It's not a matter of years," he said. "It's probably only a matter of several months."

Schriever said the Air Force was sticking to its original target of next July for initial operational capability of the Atlas Intercontinental Ballistic Missile despite difficulties the missile has experienced in recent test flights at the Cape.

"The problem has been quit annoying but not fundamental," Schriever said. "I see no reason at this time to back off from our original schedule."

Schriever said he considered the Soviet Union "somewhat ahead" of the United States in development of Intermediate Range Ballistic Missiles—weapons with a range of 1,500 (nautical) miles.

But he said that in the race to develop Intercontinental Ballistic Missiles, "We are just about even with them."

Youth Is Found Guilty By Jury

WHEATON, Ill. (AP) — Charles Melquist was found guilty Saturday of murdering Bonnie Leigh Scott, a 15-year-old high school girl he maintains regarded him "as just a big brother."

Melquist, 22 Sunday, appeared calm as he heard the Du Page County Circuit Court jury verdict which called for 99 years in prison.

Castro Calls For Greater Aid By U. S

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Cuba's Fidel Castro called Saturday for vastly greater sacrifices by the United States to bolster the economies of Latin American countries.

In effect, he urged a Marshall Plan for Latin America to prevent social upheavals which he said might bring Communist dictatorships.

The bearded Cuban Premier, who flew here Friday after visits to the United States, Canada and Brazil, spoke to the Committee of 21. This is the economic branch of the Organization of American States which opened a conference here Tuesday.

Castro rocked the usually sedate conference by his blunt hour and 20-minute speech. He was frequently applauded and at the end was praised by many delegates.

Fervently, he declared the United States had made great sacrifices to help restore Europe after the war and to aid nations of the Middle East. Now, he said, the United States must devote similar sacrifices to bring economic well-being to the Western Hemisphere.

Speaking with a daring not voiced by other delegates here, he declared United States help to Latin America is not sufficient.

His solution, he said, was the only one which could spark economic growth and provide better living conditions for Latin nations of the hemisphere.

Auto Hits Truck, Three Detroit Men Are Killed

SCOTTSBORO, Ala. (UPI) — Three Detroit men were killed when their automobile slammed head-on into a tractor trailer truck about nine miles from here Saturday.

The dead were identified as Edward Leon Gibbs, 43; Lester Bown Price, 46; and David Lewis House, 38. Officers said they believed Price formerly lived at nearby Hollywood before moving to Michigan.

The Highway Patrol said the victims' car apparently was on the wrong side of the road when it collided head-on with the truck on Highway 72. The truck driver was slightly injured.

Letha Irene Pride, a 12 - year - old cow near Princeton, N. J., set a world's record by producing 1,733 pounds of butterfat as well as 34,810 pounds of milk in 365 days. That is about four times the average of the usual cow.

Reds Push Ahead In Oil Rich Iraq

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — The Communists will succeed in completing their hold on strategic oil-rich Iraq if Premier Abdel Karim Kassem bows to their latest demands for more military and political strength, Middle East diplomats said Saturday.

"If Kassem grants the Communist demands, we can't see what can stop them," one Western diplomat said.

Communist newspapers in Baghdad have been clamoring demands that Reds be taken into the government, Kassem is expected to enlarge his cabinet shortly.

The Reds also are demanding weapons for the "people's resistance" forces, which already constitute a veritable Red Militia.

The diplomats had hoped that Kassem would use the army to control the Communists. But they believe now it will be too late to halt the Reds if he gives into their latest demands.

(Recent arrivals from Baghdad reported a Communist - inspired anti-Western campaign with the United States a major target. In Washington, government officials said Americans have been increasingly harassed and threatened in recent months. Point Four operations were virtually at a standstill because of what one official called "sabotage."

(Reports reaching Istanbul Saturday said Iraq had taken military measures to prevent anti-Communist Kurdish tribesmen from fleeing into Turkey. A tribe of 700 men, women and children crossed into Turkey last week according to reports which have not been denied by Turkish authorities.

(Saturday's reports said Iraqi troops arrested members of the Rikan tribe when they tried to cross the border. The reports also said that fighting continued in northern Iraq between Communist-sympathizing Barzani tribesmen and rightist Rashid tribesmen.)

The diplomats said the Iraqi army has not reacted noticeably to the growing Communist power since the abortive mutiny in Mosul last March.

Sixty - eight per cent of all people employed in the United States drive to work in automobiles.

Three out of four American men shine their own shoes, according to a shoe polish firm, which said one of the reasons for this is the shortage of shoeshine boys.

Auto Hits Truck, Three Detroit Men Are Killed

SCOTTSBORO, Ala. (UPI) — Three Detroit men were killed when their automobile slammed head-on into a tractor trailer truck about nine miles from here Saturday.

The dead were identified as Edward Leon Gibbs, 43; Lester Bown Price, 46; and David Lewis House, 38. Officers said they believed Price formerly lived at nearby Hollywood before moving to Michigan.

The Highway Patrol said the victims' car apparently was on the wrong side of the road when it collided head-on with the truck on Highway 72. The truck driver was slightly injured.

Letha Irene Pride, a 12 - year - old cow near Princeton, N. J., set a world's record by producing 1,733 pounds of butterfat as well as 34,810 pounds of milk in 365 days. That is about four times the average of the usual cow.

MAY COMPLETE CONTROL

Reds Push Ahead In Oil Rich Iraq

CAIRO, U.A.R. (UPI) — The Communists will succeed in completing their hold on strategic oil-rich Iraq if Premier Abdel Karim Kassem bows to their latest demands for more military and political strength, Middle East diplomats said Saturday.

"If Kassem grants the Communist demands, we can't see what can stop them," one Western diplomat said.

Communist newspapers in Baghdad have been clamoring demands that Reds be taken into the government, Kassem is expected to enlarge his cabinet shortly.

The Reds also are demanding weapons for the "people's resistance" forces, which already constitute a veritable Red Militia.

The diplomats had hoped that Kassem would use the army to control the Communists. But they believe now it will be too late to halt the Reds if he gives into their latest demands.

(Recent arrivals from Baghdad reported a Communist - inspired anti-Western campaign with the United States a major target. In Washington, government officials said Americans have been increasingly harassed and threatened in recent months. Point Four operations were virtually at a standstill because of what one official called "sabotage."

(Reports reaching Istanbul Saturday said Iraq had taken military measures to prevent anti-Communist Kurdish tribesmen from fleeing into Turkey. A tribe of 700 men, women and children crossed into Turkey last week according to reports which have not been denied by Turkish authorities.

(Saturday's reports said Iraqi troops arrested members of the Rikan tribe when they tried to cross the border. The reports also said that fighting continued in northern Iraq between Communist-sympathizing Barzani tribesmen and rightist Rashid tribesmen.)

The diplomats said the Iraqi army has not reacted noticeably to the growing Communist power since the abortive mutiny in Mosul last March.

Sixty - eight per cent of all people employed in the United States drive to work in automobiles.

Three out of four American men shine their own shoes, according to a shoe polish firm, which said one of the reasons for this is the shortage of shoeshine boys.

Truman Has Reunion In U. S. Capitol

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Former President Harry S. Truman had a reunion Saturday with his old White House staff after coming upon three even more familiar faces on his early morning stroll.

Passing a photographic studio near his downtown hotel, he stopped short and gestured his cane at a picture in the window. It was a family group portrait of him, his wife, Bess, and their daughter, Margaret.

"Well, look here," he told reporters walking with him. "They don't give a darn what they put in their windows."

With a chuckle, he added that "Margaret sure hates that picture."

Truman, here for a round of speeches, get-togethers with old friends, and testimony before congressional committees, had a big surprise in store for him Sunday.

It will be unveiled when he speaks at ceremonies dedicating the new two million dollar National Guard Memorial Building which will house the National Guard Assn. of the United States.

The surprise for Truman was arranged as a climax to events including a parade featuring more than 1,200 flags of National Guard units, described by sponsors as the biggest massing of military colors in history.

Among those represented will be Battery D, 129th Field Artillery Battalion, Missouri National Guard, which Truman commanded as a captain in World War I.

The jovial ex - President appeared to enjoy his walk immensely Saturday morning.

He tipped his hat to the ladies and boomed out hearty "good mornings" to passersby including one man who greeted him with a "hello, Mr. President, it looks like old times."

Truman's 10 - block walk took him by one of Washington's newer office buildings where the Associated Press has ground floor offices. He noticed the name on the door, remarked that he did not realize that wire service had moved, and was asked if he would like to drop in.

"I'd love to," Truman said. "You fellows have been spying on me. Why not reverse the thing?"

For a brief time, he watched news reports on the wire and chatted good-naturedly with employes manning the desks and teletype machines.

"You fellows don't look very wide awake to me," he grinned.

Miss Barbara Pitschel, a political science student at the University of Chicago, was invited by one of the reporters to join their morning walk with the ex-President.

When she was introduced to Truman, he offered to answer any question on politics she wanted to throw at him.

"Who's your candidate for President in 1960?" Miss Pitschel asked.

"That's a very good question. All these fellows have been asking me that one," Truman said. "I'll give you the same answer I've given them. I don't know yet who he will be. I hope to make up my mind who to support at the convention when he will be chosen."

Bride Of Three Months Is Slain

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A bride of three months, Maria Wright, 25, was shot to death and her husband, Lemont Wright, 41, critically wounded in a shooting following a quarrel at their home late Friday night.

Police said Wright apparently shot his wife three times with a pistol and then wounded himself in the head with the same weapon. A four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Wright by a former marriage, Dianna, was awakened by the shots and ran to a neighbor's apartment.

Mrs. Wright was shot twice in the chest and once in a leg.

Mrs. Wright was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Mistretta of the Donaldsonville area. Mistretta said he knew of no reason for the quarrel. His daughter was in jovial mood when she telephoned her mother yesterday. Mistretta described Wright as "a real nice, quiet, fine boy from a nice family in Ruston."

Mistretta said the couple married three months ago after becoming acquainted a year ago in the right-of-way department of the highway commission where both were employed at that time.

Salk Says Polio Shots May Give Longer Immunity

HARROGATE, England (UPI)—Dr. Jonas E. Salk said Friday the anti-polio vaccine which he developed may give immunity to the disease much longer than anticipated "even by those who have been among the more optimistic."

Speaking before the Royal Society of Health, Salk compared his vaccine, which is based on "killed" polio virus, with live-virus types now being tested.

"I have tried to present available data in support of the thesis that a killed-virus vaccine for poliomyelitis may well do many of the things that heretofore were considered possible only through the use of a living-virus vaccine," Salk said.

The scientist, who is commonwealth professor of experimental medicine at the University of Pittsburgh, was installed as a fellow of the Royal Society.

MRS. JIMMY HARVEY BURKS

A Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Smith And Jimmy Harvey Burks

A double ring ceremony was held in Memorial Presbyterian Church, in West Monroe, on April 24, at 7:30 p.m., uniting in marriage Miss Marca Yvette Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard B. Smith, to Jimmy Harvey Burks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mitchell Burks, all of West Monroe.

Mrs. Jack W. White at the organ accompanied Miss Madeline Brown, soloist, who sang, "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Lighting the candles were Sharon Reitzammer and Marilynn Dodd.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of slipper satin with square neckline and sleeves that came to a point over the hands; the long train fell from a gracefully gathered waist and the net veil was attached to a tiara of seed pearls. At the other end the bride's tiered cake had pastel pink roses and held a miniature bride and groom. Miss Billy Wilson registered the guests.

Following the reception, they left for a wedding trip to Arkansas. For traveling the bride chose a brown linen dress with white accessories and the orchid from her bouquet.

The couple will make their home in West Monroe.

Playday At Pine Wood For Intermediates

Bright sunshine helped to make the Intermediate playday at Pine Wood a great success. Registration showed that 260 people from 20 troops took part. A troop from Newellton, two from Epps, and two from Farmerville, made it really a council - wide affair.

Some of the activities observed were: Girls of Troop 15 proudly conducting the opening flag ceremony, Troop 1 helping fly - up Troop 51 in laying and following trails for Tenderfoot requirements, Troop 26 and the Farmeville girls doing trail signs and hikes together, Troop 33 showing the Newellton girls around building and grounds, experienced Scouts sharing skills with the fly-up troops. Troops from Epps and Troop 57 gained practice in fire-building and enjoyed a fire-building contest. Troop 57 had a weiner roast, Troop 53 and Troop 36, maybe others, cooked campfire stew, their favorite one - pot meal, Troop 40 cooked hamburgers on tin can stoves.

Troop 61 had the ambitious girls. Accompanied by their leader, Miss Dorothy Jenkins, and Mrs. Charles Overton, they went to camp early enough to cook pancakes on tin can stoves for breakfast. They also prepared their noon meal.

Many groups went on nature scavenger hunts, practically everbody walked to the river, Troop 32 lashed a table to complete requirements for the Campcraft badge, groups gathered in the shade to sing together. All in all, it was a happy day spent away from the everyday routine of life. That kind of thing is good for all of us. We hope the Brownies had a good day Saturday, particularly since theirs had had to be postponed once.

Bulletins describing summer opportunities are now available for troops and should be distributed at meetings this week. Swimming for all classifications from non-swimmer through junior lifesaving, cooking, sewing, and pottery instruction, in addition to day camping, are being offered. Girls of the Twin Cities look forward to these opportunities to increase their skills, and classes are always filled. Parents should read the bulletins carefully and follow registration procedure as outlined.

Something like 350 applications have been received for day camp at Pine Wood for the two sessions. Of course, the camp can't accommodate that many, but the quotas in each group are set to allow for cancellations.

Bastrop will have a playday next Saturday. Let's hope they have good weather.

One of the loveliest teas of the spring season was given on Saturday from the hours of three to six for Mrs. James T. Harris by four hostess friends of the honoree, who were Mrs. G. W. Pomeroy, Misses Elizabeth and Frances Langford, and Mrs. E. N. Jackson, in the home of Mrs. Pomeroy at 1303 Speed Avenue.

An array of spring blossoms in various hues were attractively arranged at various points and in the entrance hall where Mrs. Pomeroy, attired in a soft chiffon print greeted the guests at the door.

Receiving in the spacious living room were Mrs. Harris, lovely in a white linen sprinkled with rhinestones; Miss Elizabeth Langford, in a model of pale pink French voile; Miss Frances Langford, in an electric blue imported linen, and Mrs. E. Guests were invited into the dining room by Mrs. Aimee Cook and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf. The tea table which was overlaid with a heavily cut-work, white embroidered Victorian cloth made a perfect setting for the two traditional hand - painted Bavarian china tea and coffee services in white with etchings of pink roses and purple fruit and which were placed at each end of the table. In the center of the table was a beautiful arrangement of pink Fiji mums, orchid and purple asters interspersed among clusters of frosted grapes of the same hues which filled a tall Dresden compote with matching china candelabrum holding tapers and blending in with the china tea and coffes services.

In the gum paneled family room a tea table, placed near the glass paneling and overlooking the patio, was overlaid with a beautiful imported Brussel's linen cloth with inserts of Battenberg lace. At one end of the table was an old English silver service and on the opposite end a picturesque arrangement of yellow roses in a low brass bowl.

Out on the patio, viewed from the glass paneled family room, punch was served from a large white and pink antique china bowl hand painted with blue flowers on the inside and placed at one end of a glass - topped, pink iron-embossed table. Of unusual beauty was a large arrangement of pink roses showing from beneath the glass and placed on the iron grillwork holder in a lovely china bowl. A matching iron settee and chairs were informally grouped on the patio for seated groups.

At the piano during the afternoon were Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. Everett Zeagler and Miss Joann Richardson.

Pouring coffee in the dining area, in the family room, and serving punch on the patio, were the following friends of the honoree: Mrs. Ben Oliphint, Mrs. J. E. Walsworth, Mrs. Jack T. Jackson, Mrs. H. B. Cruthirds, Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. G. E. Boggs, Mrs. D. Ross Coates, Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. W. M. Nolan, Mrs. Patrick Suidy and Mrs. Thomas Pitt.

Seidenspinner, Sr., Miss Maibel Hood, Mrs. Oscar Cloyd, Mrs. Walter Halbert, Mrs. Robert Farr Mrs. Charles Chisholm, Mrs. Mary Lee Barbee, Miss Helen Hunt, Mrs. C. C. Lucky, Mrs. Wade Cotton, Mrs. Thomas Frazer, and Miss Esther Tarver, Miss Fran Guthrie and Mrs. Charles Mulhearn.

Around 300 guests called during the tea hours.

Early nylons were 30 denier, a measure of the thickness of the yarn. These 30 denier nylons still are available, but women prefer the much sheerer 10, 12 and 15 denier — yarn only one - half to one - third as heavy as the 30 denier and, naturally, more fragile.

Molasses is rich in assimilable iron and in calcium. You make cookies for your youngsters? Then it's a good idea to choose a recipe in which molasses is used as all or part of the sweetening.

Rehearse Your Make-Up For Dress Colors

Not since Julius Caesar met Cleopatra, dressed in an Oriental rug, have there been so many colors in one costume to put make-up finesse to the test.

"So, why not use your first new hat, as rich in colors as Prince Ahmed's magic carpet, to try out your make up?" asks a Hollywood expert.

Which one will it be, when there are so many colors in your hat bidding competitively for one lipstick shade?

Try out two or three in your lipstick wardrobe. Among the other things that will influence your choice of a lipstick shade, besides the dominant color in your hat, will be your complexion tone. If that's as delicate a pink as a sugared dragee, your best choice of a lipstick shade will be keyed to the softest color in your hat. It might be a shimmering rose or a pink 'n' orange, which, chameleonic in character, looks pink, if there's pink in a hat, or it is just as obliging, if the softest color is orange.

But suppose your make-up accents a lingering sun tan and the tint is tawny. Your best lipstick choice would be a dazzling, vibrant red shade: a clear, clear red, for example, which can take on as many colors as a brilliant window of Louis Tiffany glass.

There are other make-up colors to consider besides lipstick shade. One is the colorful eyeshadow you elect to wear. An iridescent blue or green, can, for instance, make a single lipstick shade and a hat of many assertive hues blend into a symphony of harmonious color.

Another important tip: When you go to buy your new hat, wear a simple dress, and carry in your handbag two or three different lipstick shades, in a range of colors, for a try-on of effects. This dress will be the one you'll be wearing with your bright new hat.

In the gum paneled family room a tea table, placed near the glass paneling and overlooking the patio, was overlaid with a beautiful imported Brussel's linen cloth with inserts of Battenberg lace. At one end of the table was an old English silver service and on the opposite end a picturesque arrangement of yellow roses in a low brass bowl.

Out on the patio, viewed from the glass paneled family room, punch was served from a large white and pink antique china bowl hand painted with blue flowers on the inside and placed at one end of a glass - topped, pink iron-embossed table. Of unusual beauty was a large arrangement of pink roses showing from beneath the glass and placed on the iron grill-work holder in a lovely china bowl. A matching iron settee and chairs were informally grouped on the patio for seated groups.

At the piano during the afternoon were Mrs. P. A. Poag, Mrs. Everett Zeagler and Miss Joann Richardson.

Pouring coffee in the dining area, in the family room, and serving punch on the patio, were the following friends of the honoree: Mrs. Ben Oliphint, Mrs. J. E. Walsworth, Mrs. Jack T. Jackson, Mrs. H. B. Cruthirds, Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. C. E. McKenzie, Mrs. G. E. Boggs, Mrs. D. Ross Coates, Mrs. Corbin Turpin, Mrs. W. M. Nolan, Mrs. Patrick Suidy and Mrs. Thomas Pitt.

Assisting in the other courtesies were Mrs. Warren Bread, Mrs. Hugh Murry, Mrs. Raymon Goodman, Mrs. D. V. Loflin, Miss Juanita Porter, Mrs. A. S. Gunter, Miss Nelle Coulter, Mrs. J. L. Seidenspinner, Sr., Miss Maibel Hood, Mrs. Oscar Cloyd, Mrs. Walter Halbert, Mrs. Robert Farr Mrs. Charles Chisholm, Mrs. Mary Lee Barbee, Miss Helen Hunt, Mrs. C. C. Lucky, Mrs. Wade Cotton, Mrs. Thomas Frazer, and Miss Esther Tarver, Miss Fran Guthrie and Mrs. Charles Mulhearn.

Around 300 guests called during the tea hours.

Early nylons were 30 denier, a measure of the thickness of the yarn. These 30 denier nylons still are available, but women prefer the much sheerer 10, 12 and 15 denier — yarn only one - half to one - third as heavy as the 30 denier and, naturally, more fragile.

Rehearse Your Make-Up For Dress Colors

Not since Julius Caesar met Cleopatra, dressed in an Oriental rug, have there been so many colors in one costume to put make-up finesse to the test.

"So, why not use your first new hat, as rich in colors as Prince Ahmed's magic carpet, to try out your make up?" asks a Hollywood expert.

Which one will it be, when there are so many colors in your hat bidding competitively for one lipstick shade?

Try out two or three in your lipstick wardrobe. Among the other things that will influence your choice of a lipstick shade, besides the dominant color in your hat, will be your complexion tone. If that's as delicate a pink as a sugared dragee, your best choice of a lipstick shade will be keyed to the softest color in your hat. It might be a shimmering rose or a pink 'n' orange, which, chameleonic in character, looks pink, if there's pink in a hat, or it is just as obliging, if the softest color is orange.

But suppose your make-up accents a lingering sun tan and the tint is tawny. Your best lipstick choice would be a dazzling, vibrant red shade: a clear, clear red, for example, which can take on as many colors as a brilliant window of Louis Tiffany glass.

There are other make-up colors to consider besides lipstick shade. One is the colorful eyeshadow you elect to wear. An iridescent blue or green, can, for instance, make a single lipstick shade and a hat of many assertive hues blend into a symphony of harmonious color.

Another important tip: When you go to buy your new hat, wear a simple dress, and carry in your handbag two or three different lipstick shades, in a range of colors, for a try-on of effects. This dress will be the one you'll be wearing with your bright new hat.

Real spring weather has been with us this week—bestirring everyone to be up and out. We've had parties for out of town visitors, children's outdoor parties, spring dances, the flower show, and plain party-type parties, not to mention the spring travelers.

The BILL JACKSONS, both former Monroyans, arrived early this week from their home in Trinidad. With their children, DANNY, DOUG, and POLLY, they will be at the Garnier apartments for the next few weeks.

MRS. CHARLES PRICHARD of Natchez and Alexandria is here visiting her brother, W. C. HOLSTEIN. She was seen at Bayou DeSiard country club Wednesday, lunching with ALDA GRAVES and JEAN STRICKLAND. Mary was showing the girls pictures of her granddaughter, who reigned as queen of the Natchez Pilgrimage for two weeks earlier this spring. Her queen's gown was a work of art.

Jean was describing their trip to New Orleans last weekend—the D. A. STRICKLANDS, MAIDYE JEAN, D. A., and JAN WEST. The group went down for the New Orleans Charity Horse show, and made a number of other points of interest. Maidye's friend, MISSIE VILLERE, was riding in the show. Also seen at Bayou DeSiard country club was BUDDY HENRY, who was hosting a supper party of ladies from Winnsboro Saturday night. Buddy now teaches at Ole Miss, and was over for the weekend. The party was in honor of his mother's birthday.

MRS. ALLEN TURPIN, SR., and MRS. EMMA ALEXANDER returned Thursday from Birmingham, Alabama, where they attended the national convention of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century. Mrs. Alexander was a delegate from the Edward Doty chapter in Bastrop. Mrs. Turpin is corresponding secretary general. Mrs. Alexander appeared on the program Wednesday night, giving a dramatic reading from "The White Cliffs".

Visiting from New Orleans is MRS. JOHN S. LAND, who is the guest of the ROY LEDBETTERS. Helen honored her mother with a luncheon for a few friends at the Bayou DeSiard country club on Thursday. The table in the private dining room was covered with a pink cloth and set with ruby glassware. Pink-to-rose-red roses were used as the centerpiece. Mrs. Land wore a mauve linen dress with matching hat. The menu consisted of the tri-salad plate with finger sandwiches, and the cold lemon tart for dessert.

The HAYNES HARKEYS, the JACK HOWARDS, and the JOHN RUDISILLS returned Wednesday night from a five-day trip to New York. They did some real big-city things like visit the Stock Exchange go to the theater and some television shows, and see the Yankees-Baltimore game Sunday afternoon.

Last weekend MRS. CHARLES DE LA VERNE was the guest of the GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., in their home on Country Cub road. Saturday morning Marie Louise invited a few friends in to meet the visitor. Red and white roses from the garden were arranged in an antique covered bowl on the mantel. Vogue roses in a mass arrangement centered the dining table, where coffee was served. At the end of the table, Marie Louise's other end of the table, Marie Louise's oyster gravy was served with tiny hot biscuits.

At noon Saturday, FRANCES HUEY and SUE STUBBS honored Mrs. De la Verne with a luncheon at the Bayou DeSiard country club. An arrangement of snowballs in a silver bowl centered the table in the private dining room. The menu included crabmeat au gratin, asparagus, and a compote of assorted sherberts. Guests in addition to Marie Louise and the guest of honor were ANNA SLAGLE, ANNA BROWN, and NANCY WEAKS.

Saturday night was a big night locally, with several interesting parties around town. The FRED COTTONS and the FRED KINGS sent out clever invitations with country-style Old South spelling, bidding friends to the King residence for supper. The hostesses were dressed mammy-style, and the hosts wore blue jeans and straw hats .... Guests gathered in the back yard, which was lit with torches. A life-size stuffed mammy doll stood beside the table, which was centered with a miniature bale of cotton and red verbena. Barbecued chicken, Cole slaw, baked beans, watermelon rind preserves, chocolate cake and coffee were served to the eighteen guests.

The "Fantasy Ball" sponsored by Beta Sigma Phi sorority for the benefit of the cancer drive was held last Saturday night. The Frances roof presented a most festive appearance, with the pillars and the bandstand completely "papered" with varicolored balloons. Two large nets of balloons were swung from the ceiling and released over the heads of the dancers mid-way through the evening.

The DICK DICKENHORSTS and the SOL COURTMANS were hosts at a dinner party on the porch of the Bayou DeSiard country club last Saturday night. Two large containers shaped like champagne glasses held spring flowers on the wall. The buffet table was centered with a large arrangment of mixed flowers, and small bouquets were used on each table. Cornish game hen with wild rice dressing was served to twenty-five couples. After dinner, the guests joined the club members dancing to the hi-fi in the ballroom.

We noted a number of dressed up ladies at one or another of these parties. For instance, there was DOLL BIEDENHARN, looking particularly lovely in grey-green, with a green and white Empire sash tied in a vertical bow. . .and JULIE KEMP looked like a little girl in a red organza with big, big sleeves.

FERN BAILEY wore a bone lace sheath, and SUE HINCKLEY, blue chiffon with a deep-V neck front and back. . . . ROBERTINE COBB'S pink and white check featured a wide white organdy collar. Belt and shoes were solid pink. . . Turquoise roses printed on white silk formed the dress and matching coat worn by BERNICE BARTLETT. . .SHIRLEY SMALE chose strapless lime green sheer taffeta. . .Green belt and shoes accented DOT SEARCY's sheer printed shirtwaist in greens and yellows. . JUNE M'HENRY's organza was printed with big blue and green polka dots and was made with the new big sleeves. . A rose of the material caught the flowing back panel of JEAN HAMILTON's turquoise chiffon. . ELEANOR HORTON wore strapless white chiffon with a red sash . . . .and a green taffeta sash emphasized the Empire line of ELIZABETH HANKS' white pleated nylon.

This week saw the last gathering of a Wednesday bridge club that has been meeting lo! those many years. They are dissolving and will re-organize on another day of the week at a later date. TEEDEE DIXON invited the group for lunch on this last Wednesday. The dining table was centered with pink roses and phlox in an epergne with pink candles. The menu consisted of Teedee's extra-good congealed tuna salad, with toasted asparagus sandwiches and peach pickle. Strawberry ice cream in meringue shells was dessert. Cindy Wakefield and Betty Moore were prizewinners at bridge.

Our favorite child story of the week is about the six-year-old who got interested in his loose tooth during church last week. He worked it to and fro and finally pulled it out during the sermon. His mother had to take him out as he insisted on showing tooth and gap to all those around him. Luckily, most of those around had been six once themselves, and understood his elation.

The LOUIS HALLS were hosts at a Kentucky Derby party yesterday. A group of friends gathered to see the race on television, and then treated to a Kentucky type menu of "Bourbon, burgoo, and beaten biscuits". The burgoo, a real Derby-type speciality is cooked out - doors in a black iron pot. Incidentally, MRS. LOUIS HALL, SR., of St. Louis, is here visiting her children at this time.

Young Miss DENISE DOWNING was three years old on Wednesday, and celebrated at a home party. She wore her new cowgirl outfit. Twenty - three little friends gathered for ice cream cups and red birthday cake with white roses and white ribbons.

MARGARET TERZIA celebrated her fourth birthday with a trip to Bernstein park Saturday. About forty children shared the occasion. They took turns riding the ponies, and saw all the zoo animals. Sack lunches of sandwiches, potato chips, and cup cakes were served. Favors were lollipops with whistles.

On his seventh birthday Friday, BUDDY TERZIA had a party at his home on Loop road. The guests were twelve children from Buddy's first grade class. The playhouse in the yard was decorated with balloons and the children "fished" through the windows for their favors. The birthday cake was decorated with a tugboat and had boat-shaped candles.

For our poem today, here are Oliver Wendel Holmes' thoughts on the line "Man wants but little here below":

Little I ask; my wants are few: I only wish a hut of stone (A very plain brownstone will do) That I may call my own;—And close at hand is such a one, In yonder street that fronts the sun. I care not much for gold or land; Give me a mortgage here and there, Some good bank stock, some note of hand, Or trifling railroad share. I only ask that Fortune send A little more than I shall spend. Jewels are baubles; 'tis a sin To care for such unfruitful things; One good-sized diamond in a pin, Some, not so large, in rings; A ruby, and a pearl, or so Will do for me—I laugh at show. Thus humble let me live and die, Nor long for Midas' golden touch; If Heaven more generous gifts deny, I shall not miss them much. Too grateful for the blessing lent Of simple tastes and mind content.

Kappa Kappa Iota Tea Given By Delta Chapter

Delta chapter, Kappa Kappa Iota, honorary teacher's Sorority invited guests to a tea in the Homemaking department of West Monroe High School on Saturday, April 25, between the hours of three and five.

Officers of the chapter formed the receiving line. They were Mrs. W. D. McGee, president; Mrs. Carter C. Cozine, vice president; Mrs. G. E. Boggs, secretary; Miss Dorothy French, treasurer.

Arrangements of spring flowers were placed throughout the reception rooms. The tea table, covered with a white cutwork cloth, was decorated with a half - circle of Chinese fern, Dutch iris in the center, surrounded by yellow roses. Miss Hermione Driskill, past president and Mrs. Francis J. Ortis served refreshments.

Mrs. Warren McGee and Mrs. Marvin Hill alternated at the guest book. Mrs. John F. Blackston was general chairman of the tea.

For an extra special lamb stew, use shoulder chops cut in large pieces.

If you're typical, it isn't raining three - fourths of the time when you wear a raincoat.

Like a flavor that resembles licorice? Use anise seed in bland cookies and small cakes.

ALVA, Okla. (AP) — Mrs. Eva Wood, head of the home economics department of Northwestern State College, says those good smells coming from the kitchen can mean the family is to get a meal not up to par with nourishment. She says the good smell comes from cooking meats and vegetables in too much water, which takes away much of the vital food values.

If you use a meat - tenderizer, you can pan fry beef chuck.

Bono Nostrorum Holds April Club Meeting

The Bono Nostrorum Club held its April meeting in the home of Miss Ethel Watson, Mrs. H. J. Brown and Mrs. H. J. Murray were co - hostesses.

The Vice President, Mrs. C. N. Underwood, acted as presiding officer and called on Miss Kate Talbert who read a paper prepared by Mrs. C. W. Jones. Theodore Dreiser was the subject of this interesting biographical sketch. His poverty - stricken existence and unmoral sisters and brother probably accounted for his attitude toward society and his doctrine of Fatalism and of Determination. It was stated that "with a soul full of pity for the misery he had seen around him he wrote with unprettied realism."

In reviewing Dreiser's novel "An American Tragedy", Miss Virgie Evans called it a criticism of the social conditions in the early twenties. According to the speaker's interpretation of the lenghty book, Dreiser sought to show that Clyde's downfall came about because of social inequality and lack of privilege.

The business session included a report by Mrs. H. G. Tillman, chairman of Community Improvement Contest, and also a discussion of needs and project. Contributions from members to Heart Fund and Crippled Children Fund were made to appointed chairmen.

During the social hour delicious refreshments were served, Mrs. Mary Mapp was a guest and members present were Mrs. E. D. Baker, Mrs. H. J. Brown, Miss Virgie Evans, Mrs. B. N. Hixon, Mrs. M. K. McConnell, Mrs. T. J. McKay, Mrs. H. L. Murray, Mrs. Maud Parham, Mrs. C. N. Underwood, Miss Ethel Watson.

Ever add drained minced canned clams to cooked potatoes you are browning for a fine hash?

Fantasy Ball Success For Cancer Society

Beta Sigma Phi sorority held its Fantasy Ball for the benefit of the American Cancer Society Saturday night April 25th on the Hotel Frances Roof.

The Roof was decorated with hundreds of multi-colored balloons, which lined the walls, pillars and the front of the bandstand. Clusters of balloons were suspended from the ceiling and during the evening, dancers were showered with balloons from mesh bags hung from the rafters.

Mrs. W. A. Hinckley, dance chairman, Mrs. E. H. Bailey and Mrs. Hugh Williams greeted the guests at the door.

The highlight of the evenings festivities was a dance exhibition by Mrs. R. M. Simonton, Miss Elizabeth Hanks and Mr. Jack McMillan.

Fred Huenefeld, Jr., master of ceremonies, introduced Miss Hanks and Mr. McMillan, who performed an English Waltz. Mrs. Simonton and Mr. McMillan performed to Latin rhythms with a ChaCha, Mambo and a Rhumba.

Northeast State Students Are Initiated Into College Honor Society

Fifty Northeast State students were initiated into the college Honor Society preceding the annual banquet, which was held this year in the Crystal Ballroom of the Virginia Hotel. Invitation to membership is based on scholarship, Miss Fran Guthrie, president, explained.

Northeast's President George T. Walker addressed the banquet group, comprising initiates, other members and guests. He emphasized the great things which are in store for the future, based on the wonderful developments which have been made in recent decades.

"Man is the capstone of God's creation," he said, "and it is through man's vision and work that we can enjoy the splendid material results of his labor."

Dr. Walker pointed to the Honor Society members the bases of scholarship study, thought, and work. Study, he explained, will prepare the individual for the chance which may come. To act is easy, he said; to think is difficult. The speaker underlined the value of work in stating that "all growth depends upon activity."

Banquet tables held attractive arrangements of varied flowers and white candles. White gladioli, pink roses, mock orange blossoms and large white daisies added to the beauty of the setting, and white cards marked the places for the large group.

Mrs. Ann Eubanks of Bastrop sang two selections, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "One Alone." She was accompanied by the pianist, Miss Elaine Allen. Adding variety to the program was a humorous reading, "The Natural Superiority of Men," given by Miss Mickey Burford. Homer Rouse, vice president of the organization, gave the invocation and Dr. Ernest Holloway, dean of men at Northeast, gave the benediction.

New members present were:

Evelene Arrant, Ruby Arthur, Jutta Backhous, Sandra Beach, Ann Barham, Geven Barnes, Francis Biggar, Rubye T. Brooks, Gary Brashier, Camille Camp, William P. Camp, Jr., Linda M. Clark, Annie Adeline Clark, Theodore J. Coenen, Ronald Doyle, Peggy Ann Earl.

Girl Scout Day Camp Registration Begins

First of all, we want to reassure all of you who enrolled your daughter for day camp during the first week of registration that she has a place. The list of names published was a list of those enrolled for at least their third year, and represented only about a fourth of the girls actually registered. As of now, capacity has been reached for several age groups for the first session. About sixty registrations have been received for the second session already. Add to the list of old timers, Marilyn Denoux, Jamie Corley, Loretta Jones, Nancy Pounds, Anna Margaret Miller, Bonnie Baldo, Irma White, Paula and Anna Lea DuBos, Virginia Allen, Kathy Parrish, all of whom have attended for two seasons or more.

The Brownie playday was rained out on the 18th, but it will be held on May 2.

Troop 18 has a high registration, in what will be the seventh year for some of the girls. This is a group that majors in camping. They have veteran camper, Lucy Huckabee to lead them. Mrs. Huckabee is assisted in leadership by Mrs. Q. L. Cloninger. The following girls have enrolled for another year of scouting: Ann Adams, Linda Blair, Donna Bowers, Frances Byrd, Margaret Barlow, Sandra Cloninger, Martha Guyton, Sissi Loftin, Judy Otwell, Doris Solomon, Ronnie Smith, Louise Weir, Judy Willis.

The program committee announces that it is making plans for the usual swimming classes for the month of June. They have secured the services of Red Cross water safety instructors to teach classes ranging from non-swimmers through junior life-saving. The Girl Scout swimming classes have been a most popular activity during the 12 years they have been conducted, many excellent swimmers among our young girls having had no other instruction.

At least one cooking class will be conducted during the summer. If possible, there will be a sewing class. Pottery will be offered again, with activities based on the badge. Along with four weeks of day camping this program offers fun and adventure and an opportunity to learn skills during the summer months.

A folder describing registration procedure and giving other details of summer opportunities will be given to girls at their troop meetings soon. Parents should read carefully and act promptly, as all classes are necessarily limited in number.

Town-Country Garden Club Holds Meeting

The April meeting of the Town and Country Garden Club was a tour of the Iris Gardens of Mr. Harry Hipp. Members met and motored together to Mr. Kipp's home in Calhoun. Mr. Hipp, a nationally known authority on hybridization of iris, showed the group many beautiful new iris, some of which he had developed. He demonstrated the method of planting, the best type of soil, and drainage for iris.

Two outstanding varieties the Garden Club especially enjoyed were the lovely white Cascade and a new variety Mr. Hipp developed, the Katherine Foster, named in honor of Dr. Katherine Foster, of Monroe.

West Oak Garden Club Has Meeting

Mrs. O. E. Brandon and Mrs. R. F. Taichman were hostesses to the West Oak Garden Club which held its April meeting at the United Gas Building. The vice-president, Mrs. L. T. Harper, called the meeting to order and asked for reports from the various officers and committee chairman. Mrs. Pat Thompson discussed plans for an arrangement which was to be made to be entered in the flower show sponsored by the Monroe Garden Club on April 28.

At the conclusion of the business Mrs. Harper introduced the guest speaker for the evening's workshop, Mrs. Ouida Nettles. Before criticizing constructively the arrangements brought by the club members, Mrs. Nettles gave a resume of the points which are checked by flower show judges. Then the speaker made helpful comments on each arrangement, in some cases actually demonstrating what changes could be made to improve the arrangement. Afterward Mrs. Nettles made an arrangement from the materials on hand, showing the lines to follow according to the container and the flowers and foliage. Her low curving lines and placement of flowers was very attractive.

The hostesses served refreshments to: Mesdames Joseph H. Kern, Anthony Scarpulla, Louis Evangelista, E. O. Gorman, Harper, W. A. Lambert, R. J. Goza, Jr., W. A. Gray, W. M Jones, W. S. Nash, Thompson, Nettles, and Mrs Malcolm Smith, guest from Brownsville, Tennessee.

Give Hair The Brush

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brushing the hair increases the wave.

After a set, and especially after a permanent, women should brush the hair first in the opposite direction of the wave, then back in line, Bernard said. This makes the hair hold its shape. If hair is oily, brush vigorously before washing to clean it, but only lightly after the shampoo to prevent over-stimulation. The finer the hair, the finer the brush should be.

J&L TO INSTALL FURNACE

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. plans to install a second basic oxygen furnace shop as part of a three-year 234-million dollar capital spending program, Avery C. Adams, president, told the annual meeting on Thursday.

Wonderful combination for a spread for crackers: cream cheese, anchovies and a little finely - grated mild red onion.

Fantasy Ball Success For Cancer Society

Beta Sigma Phi sorority held its Fantasy Ball for the benefit of the American Cancer Society Saturday night April 25th on the Hotel Frances Roof.

The Roof was decorated with hundreds of multi-colored balloons, which lined the walls, pillars and the front of the bandstand. Clusters of balloons were suspended from the ceiling and during the evening, dancers were showered with balloons from mesh bags hung from the rafters.

Mrs. W. A. Hinckley, dance chairman, Mrs. E. H. Bailey and Mrs. Hugh Williams greeted the guests at the door.

The highlight of the evenings festivities was a dance exhibition by Mrs. R. M. Simonton, Miss Elizabeth Hanks and Mr. Jack McMillan.

Fred Huenefeld, Jr., master of ceremonies, introduced Miss Hanks and Mr. McMillan, who performed an English Waltz. Mrs. Simonton and Mr. McMillan performed to Latin rhythms with a ChaCha, Mambo and a Rhumba.

Northeast State Students Are Initiated Into College Honor Society

Fifty Northeast State students were initiated into the college Honor Society preceding the annual banquet, which was held this year in the Crystal Ballroom of the Virginia Hotel. Invitation to membership is based on scholarship, Miss Fran Guthrie, president, explained.

Northeast's President George T. Walker addressed the banquet group, comprising initiates, other members and guests. He emphasized the great things which are in store for the future, based on the wonderful developments which have been made in recent decades.

"Man is the capstone of God's creation," he said, "and it is through man's vision and work that we can enjoy the splendid material results of his labor."

Dr. Walker pointed to the Honor Society members the bases of scholarship study, thought, and work. Study, he explained, will prepare the individual for the chance which may come. To act is easy, he said; to think is difficult. The speaker underlined the value of work in stating that "all growth depends upon activity."

Banquet tables held attractive arrangements of varied flowers and white candles. White gladioli, pink roses, mock orange blossoms and large white daisies added to the beauty of the setting, and white cards marked the places for the large group.

Mrs. Ann Eubanks of Bastrop sang two selections, "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "One Alone." She was accompanied by the pianist, Miss Elaine Allen. Adding variety to the program was a humorous reading, "The Natural Superiority of Men," given by Miss Mickey Burford. Homer Rouse, vice president of the organization, gave the invocation and Dr. Ernest Holloway, dean of men at Northeast, gave the benediction.

New members present were:

Evelene Arrant, Ruby Arthur, Jutta Backhous, Sandra Beach, Ann Barham, Geven Barnes, Francis Biggar, Rubye T. Brooks, Gary Brashier, Camille Camp, William P. Camp, Jr., Linda M. Clark, Annie Adeline Clark, Theodore J. Coenen, Ronald Doyle, Peggy Ann Earl.

Girl Scout Day Camp Registration Begins

First of all, we want to reassure all of you who enrolled your daughter for day camp during the first week of registration that she has a place. The list of names published was a list of those enrolled for at least their third year, and represented only about a fourth of the girls actually registered. As of now, capacity has been reached for several age groups for the first session. About sixty registrations have been received for the second session already. Add to the list of old timers, Marilyn Denoux, Jamie Corley, Loretta Jones, Nancy Pounds, Anna Margaret Miller, Bonnie Baldo, Irma White, Paula and Anna Lea Dubos, Virginia Allen, Kathy Parrish, all of whom have attended for two seasons or more.

The Brownie playday was rained out on the 18th, but it will be held on May 2.

Troop 18 has a high registration, in what will be the seventh year for some of the girls. This is a group that majors in camping. They have veteran camper, Lucy Huckabee to lead them. Mrs. Huckabee is assisted in leadership by Mrs. Q. L. Cloninger. The following girls have enrolled for another year of scouting: Ann Adams, Linda Blair, Donna Bowers, Frances Byrd, Margaret Barlow, Sandra Cloninger, Martha Guyton, Sissi Loftin, Judy Otwell, Doris Solomon, Ronnie Smith, Louise Weir, Judy Willis.

The program committee announces that it is making plans for the usual swimming classes for the month of June. They have secured the services of Red Cross water safety instructors to teach classes ranging from non-swimmers through junior life-saving. The Girl Scout swimming classes have been a most popular activity during the 12 years they have been conducted, many excellent swimmers among our young girls having had no other instruction.

At least one cooking class will be conducted during the summer. If possible, there will be a sewing class. Pottery will be offered again, with activities based on the badge. RUSTON RECALLS

Bygone Days

By MARTHA McBRIDE
(Staff Correspondent)

RUSTON—The pages of history turn back to reveal the thrilling story of Ruston and Lincoln Parish as the area begins the Diamond Jubilee celebration today. "Mississippi gamblers," "country doctors," and "river-boat captains" have invaded the town as the men have cultivated profuse beards, goatees, sideburns or curled moustaches for the occasion.

One man so typically represented a country doctor with his high-top shoes, cane, top hat and satin vest that a network television show offered him a contract to play such a role on their weekly show.

The women are not to be outdone by men however, as they have donned long calico dresses and starched bonnets of bright hues. A stroll down a city thoroughfare would reveal the horseless carriages which many of the residents have taken out of storage and now drive down the street each day while their long, sleek means of transportation sits at home in the garage until the celebration is over on May 9

Horsedrawn carriages with their occupants can be seen on the highways leading to and from the hill town on each Sunday afternoon as the occupants enjoy the scenery in their full regalia.

HILL-O-RAMA

Many of the older residents of the hilltown will recall many incidents that will be cited during the Hill — O — Rama pageant which will be presented each night next week at James Stadium.

The history of Ruston will be portrayed by the cast of 350 people who were selected from the residents of Ruston. Covered wagons, pioneer families, and Indians will bring the past back vividly as the pageant is presented each night.

While there is no official record of the entrance of the earliest settlers to this parish, some family records have revealed dates of 1803, 1809, and 1811. It was not until 1819 that the United States government recorded a land conveyance. James Parker was the recipient of 240 acres. Land prices were $1.25 an acre in 1820. Some of the men who registered land by 1830 were John Stowe, Ferinand Stowe, Daniel Colvin, Jeptha Colvin, and Harvey Duty.

BELIEF IN GOD

The Pine Hills Church on the site of the present Vienna, was received in 1823 by the Louisiana Baptist Association. Although these people brought beliefs in democracy and freedom of opportunity, they also brought a firm belief in God and freedom of worship.

During the Civil War years the parish was within the boundaries of the area of Jackson parish. Young men were a part of the services in the Confederate Army. The only complete list of a local Company is the "Vienna Rifles", organized in 1861 with H. W. Perrin, captain; J. W. Heard, first lieutenant; and A. G. Cobb, second lieutenant.

In 1873 when the parish was organized it was still feeling the effect of four years of war. The people had started to dream and work for a railroad to open up their territory. Their dream came true in 1883. The new parish — Lincoln — was organized under the governorship of Kellogg, a carpetbag official who ruled following the war. After the radical was removed from office, the North Louisiana people realized they were really beginning a new era of progress.

WIRE ROAD

Up until 1883 the old Indian Trail had become the thoroughfare for stage coaches and freight wagons which made trips between Monroe and Shreveport. The road was named the Wire Road after the first telephone line was erected along the route. In 1882 - 83 the first railroad was laid parallel to the Wire Road. Ruston, located four miles south of Vienna, became the new settlement on that railroad. The deciding factor in the location was a tract made with Robert Russ, a large landowner, who gave two-thirds interest in 640 acres to be used for a town. The new tract was given the name Ruston in honor of Mr. Russ.

In a few short years, Ruston was declared the new parish seat which had originally been Vienna. With the transfer of the seat, many Vienna residents began a move to the town. Among the movers were such names as Graham, Howard, Mayfield, Simmons, Neilson, Murphy, Colvin, May, Kidd, Barksdale, and many more who are still prominent citizens in Ruston. Business was getting under way by 1884. Women with stiffly starched sunbonnets began a journey to the new town to see the calico and bolts of bleaching which were getting to the stores. Ruston fast became an important trading center as stores went up and more people continued to move into the town.

FIRST TRAIN ARRIVES

Allen Russ, son of Robert Russ, was a fireman on the first train which arrived in the town. A large crowd was on hand to welcome the crew. In 1885 Ruston was incorporated after the parish seat was firmly established. The first court was held in February of that year and the judge was John Young of Homer with E. C. McClendon as district attorney.

In 1892 Ruston men and women interested in education began to agitate the question of a state-owned technical school to be founded in the town. At first the idea was for a girls' school, but further thought decided the school ought to be co - educational. The idea was received favorably, and in 1894 a bill was introduced to the legislature. The same year Louisiana Industrial Institute and College was founded, but the institution had a brief period of existence. In later years, the present Louisiana Polytechnic Institute was formed.

Ruston continued to grow and thrive through World War I and II. Ruston and Lincoln Parish sent approximately 2,000 men to World War I and all but 31 of them returned. On through the era of Flappers, bobbed hair, and the radio; through the depression years, and the Atomic Age —Ruston has continued to grow and attract people. As the town celebrates the 75th anniversary of their founding, they will see the progress Ruston has made, but they will also see the horizons that lie before the small city. They will meet these horizons as they have met previous ones. In another 75 years the future generations can look back and recall with even greater enthusiasm the progress and incidents that have occurred during the years.

To begin the gigantic celebration the Jubilee Celebration Ball was held last night at the Ruston Country Club. A cake - baking contest was held yesterday morning and a big carnival took place in downtown Ruston yesterday afternoon.

COMMUNITY WORSHIP

A community worship service will be staged tonight at James field with Rev. Jaroy Weber, pastor of the First Baptist Church, West Monroe, as guest speaker. All the churches of Ruston will dismiss their regular services in order that the people may attend this meeting.

The Grand Jubilee Parade will be staged tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 in downtown Ruston. The La. Tech Band will give a concert at 7 p.m. in the RHS Stadium. One of the highlights of the celebration will be the crowning of the Jubilee Queen on Monday night prior to the Hill - O - Rama pageant. Approximately 75 girls have been nominated for the honor. The queen will be selected on personality rather than beauty and talent. The winner will receive as her award a trip to Nassau after she has reigned over the festivities in Ruston.

A now and then style show will be held on Tuesday afternoon by the ladies of Ruston. Also the contest for the best costumes and beards, ugliest beards, most unusual beard, and various other titles will be Tuesday afternoon which has been designated as Ladies Day. Wednesday is Youth Day and school will be dismissed for the entire day. A youth Activities parade will take place that morning.

On Thursday, Industrial Salute Day, an exhibit of North Louisiana products, antiques, and historical items will open. Friday, Beards and Belles Day, the prizes for the best beards and best dressed ladies will be awarded.

The Time Capsule containing various items of importance to Ruston today will be buried. This will be opened during the Centennial Celebration in 1984. That night the Beard Shaving will take place and prizes will be awarded at this time also. The final performance of the Hill- O - Rama pageant will be presented at the stadium that night. A gigantic fireworks performance will follow each night's performance.

Top West Soldiers Give Stern Advice

PARIS (AP)—The top soldiers of NATO have bluntly told their political bosses to look the Soviet Union in the eye at any summit conference.

"If there is another Munich it won't be our fault," said one gruff general who daily weighs the military implications of threats from Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

This pointed advice to Western diplomats was based on a soldier's faith in the military machine forged in 10 years by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The machine has some bad flaws, the general readily admitted, but it can do the job.

In essence, this was the message given to the 15 NATO nations after they, somewhat apprehensively, set about reassessing their strength in the light of Khrushchev's ominous jabs at Berlin.

The supreme allied commander in Europe, Gen. Lauris Norstad—now adding wrinkles to his still boyish 52-year-old face — flew to Washington to report to the U.S. Congress.

REQUEST

Norstad asked for more missile to beef up his thin defense. The present 21½ divisions in NATO's central European arsenal are not enough, he said. He wants 30 divisions with atomic arms.

Despite these seeming shortcomings, Norstad said his forces could go a long way toward backing up any Western diplomatic decisions. His international staff agrees and there are some trump cards which have strengthened their beliefs.

These soldierly views enabled NATO's diplomats to display confidence and unity when the diplomats gathered in the United States April 4 for the 10th anniversary ceremonies of the organization.

Much of the diplomatic icing is increasingly tempered and strengthened by the judgments coming from Norstad's sprawling, informal headquarters outside Paris.

In this little Pentagon American, British, French and other Allied officers work easily with German ex-Wermacht officers now beginning to play bigger and bigger roles.

ARTICLE OF FAITH

It is accepted here, as an article of faith, that the U.S. Strategic Air Command and the British Bomber Command can adequately deliver the massive H-bomb deterrent to the Soviet heartland if the need arises. A second article of faith is that NATO's force can "hold the pass" in Europe, although the job would be pretty sloppy with the forces now available.

These are the sentiments of a wide range of Allied officers who daily witness the strength — and weaknesses—of the alliance. Interviews with NATO diplomats reflect the same frank admission of many flaws but confidence that NATO can do its job.

The job, simply stated, is to convince the Soviet Union that she can not overrun Europe and will not be allowed to chew up NATO nation-by-nation. To accomplish this, NATO must have diplomatic unity as well as military strength.

However, international rivalries die hard. Just keeping in step takes a disproportionate amount of NATO's time.

President Charles de Gaulle recently pulled his Mediterranean naval forces out of the NATO command picture.

The ships involved were few but the action emphasized De Gaulle's belief that NATO should have national commands rather than international forces under integrated commands.

This is perhaps NATO's most serious internal argument.

The theory of integrated forces is lifeblood to Norstad and his deputy, ruddy-faced British paratrooper Sir Richard Nelson Gale, 62, a warrior whose career started in the World War I trenches of France.

The immediate effectiveness of NATO's forces is a question for both the Soviet Union and the West to ponder.

One factor making them tremendously effective is that Norstad already has the personal power to react immediately to any attack on NATO countries. He has warned in advance he will use atomic weapons.

Technically, Norstad is supposed to consult with his political bosses if he has time. However, the West has recognized in advance that Norstad might not have time, and has given him, in advance, the necessary direction.

Another factor is the push-button quick communications network Norstad now has. His troops are strung from Norway to the remote frontier of Turkey—where giant radars watch Soviet missile shoots—and he can get them into action immediately. American atomic warheads are generally close at hand and American missile units are scattered throughout NATO's forces, mainly in Germany, Italy and Turkey.

A third factor is NATO's sizeable network of supply dumps, ammunition depots, oil pipelines, nuclear stocks, hospitals and other military installations. The atomic devastation of Europe would have to be almost total to wipe out his network.

Without atomic weapons, the NATO force — mainly American, British, Canadian and German troops now that the French are off fighting in Algeria — would probably be run off the battlefield by World War II standards. Yet with atomic weapons they are expected to hold.

TACTICAL FORCE

Backing up the ground troops is a tactical air force which also packs a big atomic wallop. It is made up mainly of British, Canadian and American planes and the number is secret, although probably around 2,000 or more. Lacking are some 300 French fighters, held out of NATO's forces for years because the French demand their own atomic weapons as the price, and the U.S. says no.

Coming into service are American Redstone missiles which can carry atomic warheads 200 miles officially and probably more. These are now in Europe in insignificant quantities, however. The U. S. forces also have air-breathing Matador missiles in quantity and atomic shells are now trimmed down to fit the Army's biggest standard artillery pieces.

With this ground and air atomic firepower, officers at SHAPE confidently expect to be able to spread a belt of destruction through Soviet - held Europe stretching across East Germany, Poland and Czechoslovakia. By this awesome belt of desolation no coordinated Soviet units could pass—at least that is the theory. Beyond this, Strategic Air Command bombers would loose their H-bombs.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Little Boys Baseball, with an increasingly stronger toehold in Louisiana, has its leaders from throughout the state advancing on Alexandria today for the meeting that determines the program's course another year.

George Perry, Ferriday, who has directed Little Boys activities in Louisiana since certain southern areas adopted the program as a "southern style" of youthful baseball, has seen the state program boom to 31 leagues in 26 towns and cities of Louisiana last year, and more are expected to apply for membership this time.

West Monroe, Rayville, Delhi, Tallulah, St. Joseph, Waterproof, Newellton, Winnsboro, Mangham, Oak Grove, Ferriday, Olla, Bossier City, Alexandria, Springhill, Pineville, Metarie, Houma, Tioga, Leesville, Morgan City, Hammond, Thibodaux, and Oakdale completed last summer, and a league, without a state membership, was formed late last season in Catahoula parish for Jonesville, Harrisonburg, and Sicily Island.

So far this year, Perry reports, leagues have been organized at Vidalia, Elizabeth, Buckeye, and Independence. Many of the towns that competed last year are adding new leagues, and a number of towns, including Lake Providence, Bunkie, Hahnville, Berwick, Amite, Bogalusa, Denham Springs, and Belle Chasse, have shown interest and may be ready to play this summer.

"Little Boys Baseball, Inc., is youth baseball 'southern style' and last year a total of 197 leagues with 918 teams performed in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and there was one league franchised in Highwood, Ill." Perry reminded. "Indications are that leagues will be franchised in Arkansas and North Carolina for 1959.

"The 'Welcome Mat' is out to any town interested in joining the Little Boys baseball program," advised Perry who invites all interested to contact him in Ferriday. Or, attend today's open meeting at the courthouse in Alexandria. It starts at 1 p.m.

Casual followers are sometimes confused about Little League and Little Boys League. There is a difference. Little League is the original article on a wider national and international scope.. Little League was first in Louisiana, but lost members to Little Boys for its "southern style" flavor.

The age group, eight to 12 years old, is the same in either league. There are some differences in rules and operational methods. Little League has instituted copyright action against Little Boys for the use of the "Little" title. Actually the purposes of both organizations are very closely related in intent—to provide recreation for the young athletes.

While these baseball programs the supposed to be recreation for the youngsters, there are instances of adult enthusiam (particulary among parents of players) becoming a strain on sportsmanship.

So far we've heard on charges of commercial exploitation of the small fry, but some medical branches have openly criticized Little League as detrimental to youth in formative years of bone growth.

Some leagues for older boys are already claiming the program for small fry is "burning out" the kids. they get fed up with baseball before they are thirteen years old and want no more.

Several hundred boys have reported for Little League in Monroe the past few years, and the mob has grown each spring. From two leagues of four teams, Little League here has swelled to two of six clubs last summer. The Minor League, for all Little League-aged boys who fail to make the "big leagues," have grown even more and about 30 teams are expected to play Minor League ball here this year. Over 300 boys are due to be assigned the various clubs.

Yet the plan to organize a Pelican League in Monroe collapsed because of lack of interest. There just weren't enough boys in the age group from Little League to American Legion Juniors who wanted to play baseball, this including a lot of boys who passed their Little League elgibility since last season.

The Teener League, sponsored nationally by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for the group between the "Littles" and Legion Junior, will play here again this summer, but there's just one league of only four clubs and interest is pretty slack among boys of this bracket. At least one lad who was a Little League All-Star here last year doesn't plan to play baseball this season.

The Teeners, West Monroe's Rebel League, and the American Legion Juniors expect their usual good baseball programs, but there just won't be such a mob of talent to cull with small fry resting on their laurels after Little League and Little Boys Activity.

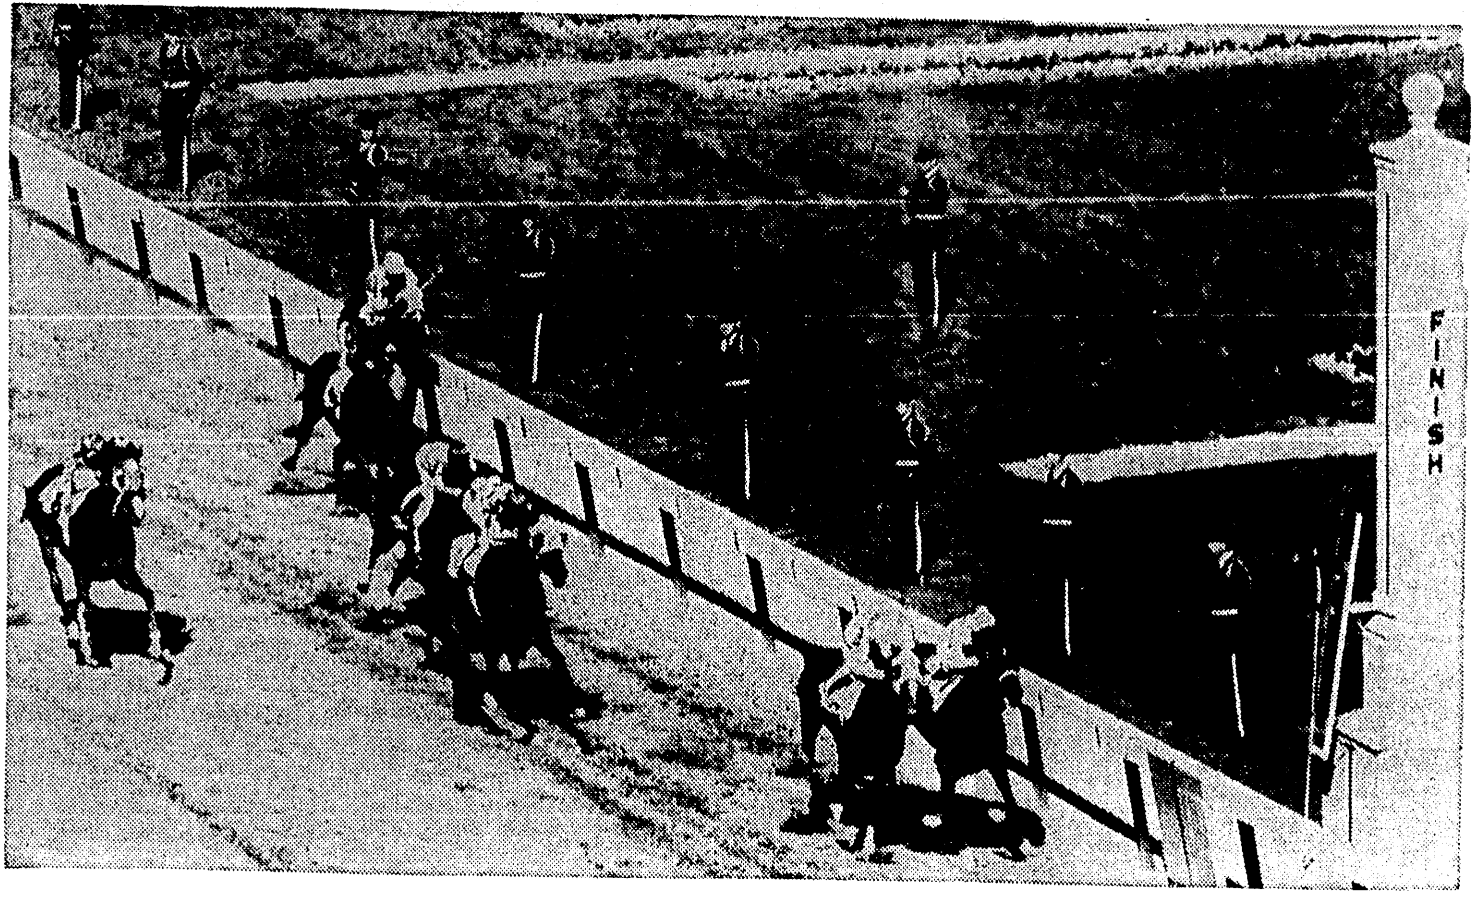
Tomy Lee By Nose In Derby

Withstands Foul Claim By Boland



Overhead View Of Kentucky Derby Finish

By RAY AYRES

LOUISVILLE, KY. (UPI) — Tomy Lee, the cheapest horse Fred Turner Jr., of Midland, Tex. ever bought, streaked along the rail in the stretch at Churchill Downs Saturday to win the 85th running of the $163,750 Kentucky Derby.

With little Willie Shoemaker in the saddle, Tomy Lee, the second foreign - bred horse ever to win America's greatest racing classic, just got to the wire after a terrific stretch battle to beat Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer by a nose in a field of 17 classy three-year-olds.

Shoemaker, who won the Kentucky Derby with Swaps in 1955 but lost the 1957 running when he misjudged the finish line while riding Gallant Man, proudly took Tomy Lee into the winner's circle. They hung the blanket of roses across the withers of his gallant little charger.

Then a foul was claimed against Tomy Lee and for the first time in the history of the race, the blanket of roses was removed from the winner.

Willie Boland, who rode Sword Dancer, claimed the foul against Tomy Lee. But after studying the films of the race, the stewards disallowed the claim. By that time Tomy Lee was half - way back to his barn.

Tomy Lee and Sword Dancer hooked up together shortly after they rounded the turn into the stretch. For almost the entire length of the stretch they battled shoulder to shoulder, head and head, and finally, with a winner's purse of $119,650 hanging in the balance, nose and nose.

But with Shoemaker slashing driving, it was the English-bred colt, who joined Omar Khayyam as the second foreigner to win when he got to the finish line first.

Christopher T. Chenery's First Landing, the 1958 juvenile champion, was third, two and a quarter lengths farther back with Eddie Arcaro on his back.

First Landing, charging between horses on the turn into the straightaway leading to gold and glory, made a bold bid to join the fight at the head of the stretch. But he lacked the punch to get into the battle, although he was a length ahead of Mrs. Jacques Braunstein's Royal Orbit at the finish.

It was one of the fastest Derbys in history. Tomy Lee blazed across the finish line in 2:02 1-5, the seventh fastest running of the race and only four - fifths of a second off the track record set by Whirlaway in 1941.

Tomy Lee's victory was a popular one with the huge crowd which enjoyed a beautiful but hot day with the temperature at 92 degrees. He paid $9.40, $4.80 and $3.80. Sword Dancer returned $9.00 and $6.20, while First Landing paid $4.00.

Boland claimed Tomy Lee bothered Sword Dancer twice. The first time was when the two were half - way around the final bend between the "three - eighths and the five - sixteenths pole," and "again at the quarter pole at the head of the stretch."

Leaving the back stretch with three - quarters of a mile behind him and a half mile still to go in the mile and one - quarter race, Tomy Lee went to the front. Sword Dancer still was back in fourth place but had started to run. At the top of the stretch Sword Dancer charged into the lead and got about half a length in front of his rival.

But half way through the stretch Tomy Lee was right up there with Sword Dancer again and carried off the big prize with his last desperate lunge at the wire.

"I was bumped about five times by the winner," said Boland, who won the Kentucky Derby as an apprentice with Middleground in 1950. "I was fourth on the back side and he (Sword Dancer) started to move real nice. I was about half a length on him (Tomy Lee) when we started to bump. As 'Shoe' went by me he shouted, 'I hope you win it'. Then he passed me right on the money (at the finish)."

JONESBORO, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech took its second straight 12 - 2 victory over Arkansas State in the first game of a doubleheader here Saturday but hurler Billy Jones smothered the Tech bats in the second game, 7 - 2, to gain a split for the hosts.

Freshman Jim Penton pitched Tech to the first game win while Clyde Thompson paced Tech's 8-hit attack with 2-5.

Arkansas State booted away the initial tilt, committing nine errors, three by third baseman Gene Jackman and two by catcher John Gibson.

Three Tech double plays aided Penton in the first game.

EAST TEXAS WINS

Indian Thinclads Beaten In Final Event, 64 To 63

COMMERCE, Tex. (Special) — Leading on points going into the final event, Northeast dropped the baton with half the race remaining in the mile relay to enable East Texas to pull out a narrow 64-63 victory in a dual track meet here Saturday afternoon.

Some of the best times in the nation were turned in during the meet, although wind gusts up to 20 miles per hour prevented any official world records.

Northeast's heralded mile relay team, one of its strong points all year long, seemed a cinch to boost the Indians to a comfortable victory over the Texans. With the Tribe ahead, 63-59, Don Styron led off and gave Northeast a quick lead after one lap. Jim Mouser increased the margin on the second 440, and on the handoff to Dick Hayes, the stick was dropped.

The momentary loss was too much for Indians to recover and East Texas streaked across the wire in 3:19.5, well above the average Northeast time.

Sidney Garton, East Texas State's freshman sensation, equalled the world mark for the century dash, registering a 9.3 to defeat Northeast's Dave Styron. Although Styron's time was not clocked, it was estimated at 9.4 seconds.

Don Styron, the other half of the Tribe's terrific twins, won both hurdle events and approached the world record over the low boards. His time of 22.4 was .3 second shy of the best time.

James Baird of East Texas leaped 24 feet, 9 inches to place first in the broad jump. The Texas jumping jack scratched on a jump of 26 feet, 2½ inches, which would have tied the world record.

Though disappointd with the freak loss in the mile relay, Northeast Coach Lew Hartzog reported he was pleased with the overall performance of the team.

"We were a little tired from the 275-mile trip today, and we lost to the top track team in Texas," he added.

Gents Take Twin Bill From Indians

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special)—Centenary's unhospitable Gentlemen slammed four Northeast pitchers for 11 - 7 win in the first game and then scored two runs in the last inning of the second contest to complete a doubleheader sweep, 5-4, here yesterday.

Centenary, which lost a single game to the visiting Indians yesterday, 5- 1, combed starter Mack Hardwick and relievers Gene Gammil, Louis Kincaid and James Mock for 11 hits in the first game.

Centenary ace Don Stahl, although tagged for nine hits and victim of four errors behind him, went the distance to take victory.

Center fielder Monty Montgomery had a perfect day at the plate for the Gentlemen, getting 4-4 including a home run.

Phil Petras, back at second base for Northeast after a layoff, celebrated his return with 3-4, driving in three runs. Mock had 2-3.

Ford King won the nightcap for Centenary in relief of Dickie Richard when the hosts rallied for two runs in the bottom of the 7th.

Northeast lefthander Terry Reeves went all the way to absorb the loss, giving up seven hits.

Gary Huckabay got 2-3 for Northeast in the second game, the only Indian to get more than one hit, and Mock and Red Rushing slammed doubles.

The defeats dropped Northeast's record to 13 - 10 for the season.

Northeast next plays McNeese in Monroe Friday.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Little Boys Baseball, with an increasingly stronger toehold in Louisiana, has its leaders from throughout the state advancing on Alexandria today for the meeting that determines the program's course another year.

George Perry, Ferriday, who has directed Little Boys activities in Louisiana since certain southern areas adopted the program as a "southern style" of youthful baseball, has seen the state program boom to 31 leagues in 26 towns and cities of Louisiana last year, and more are expected to apply for membership this time.

West Monroe, Rayville, Delhi, Tallulah, St. Joseph, Waterproof, Newellton, Winnsboro, Mangham, Oak Grove, Ferriday, Olla, Bossier City, Alexandria, Springhill, Pineville, Metarie, Houma, Tioga, Leesville, Morgan City, Hammond, Thibodaux, and Oakdale completed last summer, and a league, without a state membership, was formed late last season in Catahoula parish for Jonesville, Harrisonburg, and Sicily Island.

So far this year, Perry reports, leagues have been organized at Vidalia, Elizabeth, Buckeye, and Independence. Many of the towns that competed last year are adding new leagues, and a number of towns, including Lake Providence, Bunkie, Hahnville, Berwick, Amite, Bogalusa, Denham Springs, and Belle Chasse, have shown interest and may be ready to play this summer.

"Little Boys Baseball, Inc., is youth baseball 'southern style' and last year a total of 197 leagues with 918 teams performed in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and there was one league franchised in Highwood, Ill." Perry reminded. "Indications are that leagues will be franchised in Arkansas and North Carolina for 1959.

"The 'Welcome Mat' is out to any town interested in joining the Little Boys baseball program," advised Perry who invites all interested to contact him in Ferriday. Or, attend today's open meeting at the courthouse in Alexandria. It starts at 1 p.m.

Casual followers are sometimes confused about Little League and Little Boys League. There is a difference. Little League is the original article on a wider national and international scope.. Little League was first in Louisiana, but lost members to Little Boys for its "southern style" flavor.

The age group, eight to 12 years old, is the same in either league. There are some differences in rules and operational methods. Little League has instituted copyright action against Little Boys for the use of the "Little" title. Actually the purposes of both organizations are very closely related in intent—to provide recreation for the young athletes.

While these baseball programs the supposed to be recreation for the youngsters, there are instances of adult enthusiam (particulary among parents of players) becoming a strain on sportsmanship.

So far we've heard on charges of commercial exploitation of the small fry, but some medical branches have openly criticized Little League as detrimental to youth in formative years of bone growth.

Some leagues for older boys are already claiming the program for small fry is "burning out" the kids. they get fed up with baseball before they are thirteen years old and want no more.

Several hundred boys have reported for Little League in Monroe the past few years, and the mob has grown each spring. From two leagues of four teams, Little League here has swelled to two of six clubs last summer. The Minor League, for all Little League-aged boys who fail to make the "big leagues," have grown even more and about 30 teams are expected to play Minor League ball here this year. Over 300 boys are due to be assigned the various clubs.

Yet the plan to organize a Pelican League in Monroe collapsed because of lack of interest. There just weren't enough boys in the age group from Little League to American Legion Juniors who wanted to play baseball, this including a lot of boys who passed their Little League elgibility since last season.

The Teener League, sponsored nationally by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for the group between the "Littles" and Legion Junior, will play here again this summer, but there's just one league of only four clubs and interest is pretty slack among boys of this bracket. At least one lad who was a Little League All-Star here last year doesn't plan to play baseball this season.

The Teeners, West Monroe's Rebel League, and the American Legion Juniors expect their usual good baseball programs, but there just won't be such a mob of talent to cull with small fry resting on their laurels after Little League and Little Boys Activity.

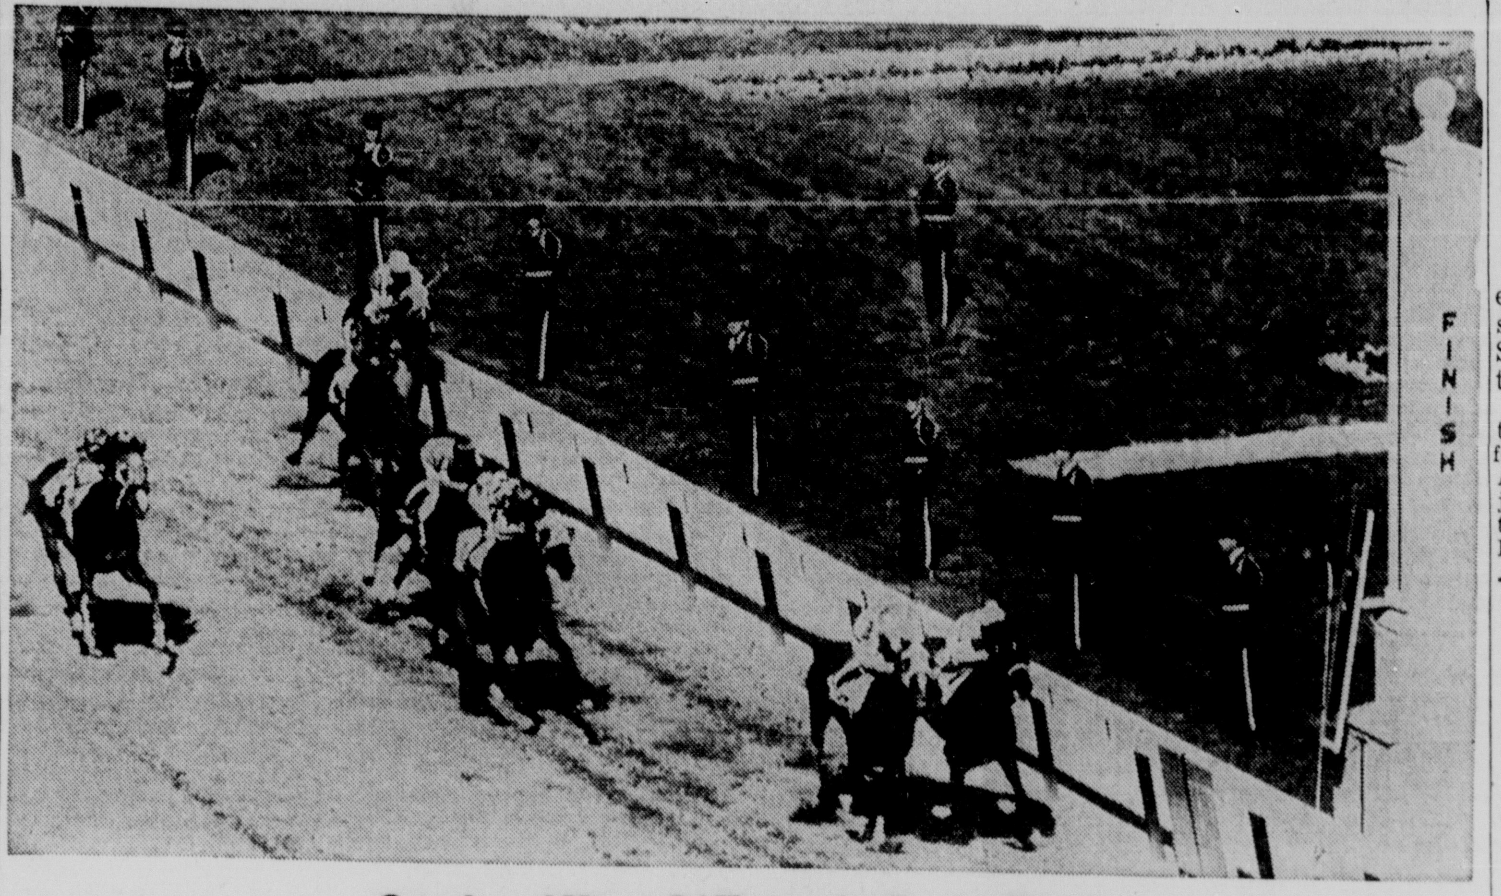
Tomy Lee By Nose In Derby



Overhead View Of Kentucky Derby Finish

Withstands Foul Claim By Boland

By RAY AYRES

LOUISVILLE, KY. (UPI) — Tomy Lee, the cheapest horse Fred Turner Jr., of Midland, Tex. ever bought, streaked along the rail in the stretch at Churchill Downs Saturday to win the 85th running of the $163,750 Kentucky Derby.

With little Willie Shoemaker in the saddle, Tomy Lee, the second foreign - bred horse ever to win America's greatest racing classic, just got to the wire after a terrific stretch battle to beat Brookmeade Stable's Sword Dancer by a nose in a field of 17 classy three-year-olds.

Shoemaker, who won the Kentucky Derby with Swaps in 1955 but lost the 1957 running when he misjudged the finish line while riding Gallant Man, proudly took Tomy Lee into the winner's circle. They hung the blanket of roses across the withers of his gallant little charger.

Then a foul was claimed against Tomy Lee and for the first time in the history of the race, the blanket of roses was removed from the winner.

Willie Boland, who rode Sword Dancer, claimed the foul against Tomy Lee. But after studying the films of the race, the stewards disallowed the claim. By that time Tomy Lee was half - way back to his barn.

Tomy Lee and Sword Dancer hooked up together shortly after they rounded the turn into the stretch. For almost the entire length of the stretch they battled shoulder to shoulder, head and head, and finally, with a winner's purse of $119,650 hanging in the balance, nose and nose.

But with Shoemaker slashing driving, it was the English-bred colt, who joined Omar Khayyam as the second foreigner to win when he got to the finish line first.

Christopher T. Chenery's First Landing, the 1958 juvenile champion, was third, two and a quarter lengths farther back with Eddie Arcaro on his back.

First Landing, charging between horses on the turn into the straightaway leading to gold and glory, made a bold bid to join the fight at the head of the stretch. But he lacked the punch to get into the battle, although he was a length ahead of Mrs. Jacques Braunstein's Royal Orbit at the finish.

It was one of the fastest Derbys in history. Tomy Lee blazed across the finish line in 2:02 1-5, the seventh fastest running of the race and only four - fifths of a second off the track record set by Whirlaway in 1941.

Tomy Lee's victory was a popular one with the huge crowd which enjoyed a beautiful but hot day with the temperature at 92 degrees. He paid $9.40, $4.80 and $3.80. Sword Dancer returned $9.00 and $6.20, while First Landing paid $4.00.

Boland claimed Tomy Lee bothered Sword Dancer twice. The first time was when the two were half - way around the final bend between the "three - eighths and the five - sixteenths pole," and "again at the quarter pole at the head of the stretch."

Leaving the back stretch with three - quarters of a mile behind him and a half mile still to go in the mile and one - quarter race, Tomy Lee went to the front. Sword Dancer still was back in fourth place but had started to run. At the top of the stretch Sword Dancer charged into the lead and got about half a length in front of his rival.

But half way through the stretch Tomy Lee was right up there with Sword Dancer again and carried off the big prize with his last desperate lunge at the wire.

"I was bumped about five times by the winner," said Boland, who won the Kentucky Derby as an apprentice with Middleground in 1950. "I was fourth on the back side and he (Sword Dancer) started to move real nice. I was about half a length on him (Tomy Lee) when we started to bump. As 'Shoe' went by me he shouted, 'I hope you win it'. Then he passed me right on the money (at the finish)."

EAST TEXAS WINS

Indian Thinclads Beaten In Final Event, 64 To 63

COMMERCE, Tex. (Special) — Leading on points going into the final event, Northeast dropped the baton with half the race remaining in the mile relay to enable East Texas to pull out a narrow 64-63 victory in a dual track meet here Saturday afternoon.

Some of the best times in the nation were turned in during the meet, although wind gusts up to 20 miles per hour prevented any official world records.

Northeast's heralded mile relay team, one of its strong points all year long, seemed a cinch to boost the Indians to a comfortable victory over the Texans. With the Tribe ahead, 63-59, Don Styron led off and gave Northeast a quick lead after one lap. Jim Mouser increased the margin on the second 440, and on the handoff to Dick Hayes, the stick was dropped.

The momentary loss was too much for Indians to recover and East Texas streaked across the wire in 3:19.5, well above the average Northeast time.

Sidney Garton, East Texas State's freshman sensation, equalled the world mark for the century dash, registering a 9.3 to defeat Northeast's Dave Styron. Although Styron's time was not clocked, it was estimated at 9.4 seconds.

Don Styron, the other half of the Tribe's terrific twins, won both hurdle events and approached the world record over the low boards. His time of 22.4 was .3 second shy of the best time.

James Baird of East Texas leaped 24 feet, 9 inches to place first in the broad jump. The Texas jumping jack scratched on a jump of 26 feet, 2½inches, which would have tied the world record.

Though disappointd with the freak loss in the mile relay, Northeast Coach Lew Hartzog reported he was pleased with the overall performance of the team.

"We were a little tired from the 275-mile trip today, and we lost to the top track team in Texas," he added.

Gents Take Twin Bill From Indians

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special)—Centenary's unhospitable Gentlemen slammed four Northeast pitchers for 11 - 7 win in the first game and then scored two runs in the last inning of the second contest to complete a doubleheader sweep, 5-4, here yesterday.

Centenary, which lost a single game to the visiting Indians yesterday, 5- 1, combed starter Mack Hardwick and relievers Gene Gammil, Louis Kincaid and James Mock for 11 hits in the first game.

Centenary ace Don Stahl, although tagged for nine hits and victim of four errors behind him, went the distance to take victory.

Center fielder Monty Montgomery had a perfect day at the plate for the Gentlemen, getting 4-4 including a home run.

Phil Petras, back at second base for Northeast after a layoff, celebrated his return with 3-4, driving in three runs. Mock had 2-3.

Ford King won the nightcap for Centenary in relief of Dickie Richard when the hosts rallied for two runs in the bottom of the 7th.

Northeast lefthander Terry Reeves went all the way to absorb the loss, giving up seven hits.

Gary Huckabay got 2-3 for Northeast in the second game, the only Indian to get more than one hit, and Mock and Red Rushing slammed doubles.

The defeats dropped Northeast's record to 13 - 10 for the season.

Northeast next plays McNeese in Monroe Friday.

Kroll Cards 71 To Overtake Hebert In Colonial Tourney

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — War Veteran Ted Kroll fought his way into the lead in the $27,300 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament Saturday with a stretch run 4-under-par 32 on the final nine, besting struggling Lionel Hebert by two strokes.

The Purple Heart recipient from Sarasota, Fla., came home with a 1-over-par 71 as Hebert soared to an 8-over-par 78 under the pressure and terrific wind.

When the final round opens Sunday Kroll will start out with 210 for 54 holes while Hebert has 212.

It was a day of skyrocketing scores as winds of 28 miles per hour with gusts up to 40 swept the 7,021 - yard Colonial Country Club course. The great Ben Hogan, who was bidding for the championship with 136 for 36 holes, faltered to a 7 over-par 77 and dropped three strokes off the pace.

The 39-year-old Kroll, once winner of the World golf championship, but virtually inactive of late, made his lead solid over Hebert, the Frenchman from Lafayette, La., with a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole.

The two had come into the 18th with Hebert a stroke behind. Hebert got his par by two-putting but Kroll went boldly for the birdie. The ball trickled into the cup and Kroll, who started the third round with 139 for 36 holes, had pulled up with a gain of seven strokes.

Hogan, who four times won this tournament in the 40s and early 50s, and Tommy Jacobs of Whittier, Calif., tied for third place at 213. Jacobs pulled up with a 73.

In fifth place is Fred Hawkins of El Paso, Tex., with 214 while tied for sixth are Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., and Don January of Denver, Colo., each with 215.

Only two players were able to shoot under par—Cary Middlecoff of Hollywood, Fla., and Arnold Palmer of Ligonier, Pa.—but it didn't do them a lot of good. Palmer was able to go into a tie for eighth at 216 with his 69. Middlecoff was at 211 with his 69.

"I was very lucky," said Kroll. "for instance, I holed out of a sand trap on 12, a 60-foot shot, and on 10 I was in the rough and hit a bad shot but it rilled two inches from the cup for a birdie."

He said the wind bothered him very much. " Everything I figured the wind was blowing one way it was blowing the other."

McKoin To Meet Cook In Rematch

Clarence Cook, his boxing career to a crawl because of his knockout loss to Johnny McKoin March 10, takes on the rugged little Irishman in a rematch at B&B Arena here May 12.

Far in front before he was knocked out by the smaller McKoin in the sixth round, Cook claims he has had two fights cancelled because of the loss, one in Phoenix and one in Akron, Ohio.

Like the first fight between the two Bastrop fighters, next week's bout will be 12 rounds for the Louisiana welterweight championship if Cook comes in under the 147 - lb. limit. Cook's best fighting weight is 150 lbs. but he came in at 147 even for the last fight.

McKoin is expected to weigh in at 142.

The winner will probably meet former state champion Al Boudreaux in the near future. Both Cook and McKoin have defeated Boudreaux, Irish Johnny having met the Westwego Frenchman several times here.

Boudreaux was recognized locally as the state welter titleholder after beating McKoin but lost to the Bastrop fighter in a rematch. Boudreaux decisioned Gypsy Gomez of Mexico City in his last start here.

Promoter August Baumgartner says a good preliminary program is being lined up. Announcement of the supporting card is expected sometime this week.

The card will get under way at 8 o'clock with the main event scheduled to begin at 9.

Tickets for the ring program are currently on sale in Monroe at Fink's Mens Store on DeSiard and at the City C & A Club in Bastrop.

Seats on the first three ringside rows are selling for $4.00. Reserve seats are priced at $3.00 and general admission is $2.00. Children from 7 to 13 will be charged $1.00 and those under 7 will be admitted free.

Morrow Wins Two Dashes In Salt Lake Meet

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Bobby Morrow won the 100 and 220-yard dashes in the Intermountain AAU Track and Field Championships Saturday, and Brigham Young University took the team title.

Morrow, the Olympic sprint champion running unattached, streaked to victory in the 100-yard dash in 9.6, tying a record set in 1937 by Milton Holt. Morrow, from San Benito, Tex., has run the 100 in 9.3.

Morrow won the 220-yard dash in 21.2 over a sloppy track.

The new Latonia race track in Kentucky, built eight miles from the site of the old course, will be a mile oval with a seven-furlongs infield turf course. It will open its inaugural meeting Aug. 27.

The pink and black colors of the Greentree Stable have appeared 19 times in the Preakness, Pimlico's annual 3-year-old turf feature.

C. V. Whitney's racing stable, led by Silver Spoon and Bug Brush, earned $279,000 during the first three months of 1959.

Badger Faculty To Determine Future Of Bowl

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's faculty will cast the vote Monday that will decide whether the Big Ten will continue to play in the Rose Bowl football game.

The Badger faculty has voted against the game in the past. If it casts a negative vote again it will kill Big Ten participation in the game, because it would leave the conference divided 5-5 on the issue. A majority vote is needed for continued participation.

Five schools have reported in favor of the game. They are Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Michigan State and Purdue. Negative votes have been cast by Minnesota, Ohio, Illinois and Northwestern.

Wisconsin could abstain from voting which would leave a 5-4 tally but this was considered unlikely.

Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Bill Russell of the champion Boston Celtics received $200 each for being voted on the National Basketball Association All-Star team.

NEW REF SLATED

Six-Man Tussle At B&B Monday

Six husky bruisers take over the ring at the B & B Arena Monday night in a main event tag team scramble with no time limit.

The new matchmaking syndicate from New Orleans, which presented the first show last week, made a big hit with the local fans in providing top - notch wrestlers and tomorrow night's card stacks up as another colorful attraction.

Al Massey of New Orleans, Frankie Kovak of Hungary and Harvey Cole of Chattanooga, Tenn., combine talents on one side of the fence against Prince Omar, a newcomer from Tampa, Fla., Firpo Zybysko of New York and Prince Nero from Italy.

Last week Massey dropped a three - fall match to Zybysko with the help of another Zybysko, this one the referee. Firpo and his handle bar mustache will be more on his own this time since a new referee has been imported to officiate.

Kovak and Prince Nero battled to a 15 - minute draw in a prelim last week and the Hungarian figures with an impartial ref things will be different.

Two 15 - minute openers are scheduled to open the action with Cole meeting Prince Omar and Kovak taking on Zybysko.

The six - man affair will be decided by the best two of three falls with no time limit set.

MAY 12

McKoin To Meet Cook In Rematch

Clarence Cook, his boxing career to a crawl because of his knockout loss to Johnny McKoin March 10, takes on the rugged little Irishman in a rematch at B&B Arena here May 12.

Far in front before he was knocked out by the smaller McKoin in the sixth round, Cook claims he has had two fights cancelled because of the loss, one in Phoenix and one in Akron, Ohio.

Like the first fight between the two Bastrop fighters, next week's bout will be 12 rounds for the Louisiana welterweight championship if Cook comes in under the 147 - lb. limit. Cook's best fighting weight is 150 lbs. but he came in at 147 even for the last fight.

McKoin is expected to weigh in at 142.

The winner will probably meet former state champion Al Boudreaux in the near future. Both Cook and McKoin have defeated Boudreaux, Irish Johnny having met the Westwego Frenchman several times here.

Boudreaux was recognized locally as the state welter titleholder after beating McKoin but lost to the Bastrop fighter in a rematch. Boudreaux decisioned Gypsy Gomez of Mexico City in his last start here.

Promoter August Baumgartner says a good preliminary program is being lined up. Announcement of the supporting card is expected sometime this week.

The card will get under way at 8 o'clock with the main event scheduled to begin at 9.

Tickets for the ring program are currently on sale in Monroe at Fink's Mens Store on DeSiard and at the City C & A Club in Bastrop.

Seats on the first three ringside rows are selling for $4.00. Reserve seats are priced at $3.00 and general admission is $2.00. Children from 7 to 13 will be charged $1.00 and those under 7 will be admitted free.

Morrow Wins Two Dashes In Salt Lake Meet

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Bobby Morrow won the 100 and 220-yard dashes in the Intermountain AAU Track and Field Championships Saturday, and Brigham Young University took the team title.

Morrow, the Olympic sprint champion running unattached, streaked to victory in the 100-yard dash in 9.6, tying a record set in 1937 by Milton Holt. Morrow, from San Benito, Tex., has run the 100 in 9.3.

Morrow won the 220-yard dash in 21.2 over a sloppy track.

The new Latonia race track in Kentucky, built eight miles from the site of the old course, will be a mile oval with a seven-furlongs infield turf course. It will open its inaugural meeting Aug. 27.

The pink and black colors of the Greentree Stable have appeared 19 times in the Preakness, Pimlico's annual 3-year-old turf feature.

C. V. Whitney's racing stable, led by Silver Spoon and Bug Brush, earned $279,000 during the first three months of 1959.

Badger Faculty To Determine Future Of Bowl

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin's faculty will cast the vote Monday that will decide whether the Big Ten will continue to play in the Rose Bowl football game.

The Badger faculty has voted against the game in the past. If it casts a negative vote again it will kill Big Ten participation in the game, because it would leave the conference divided 5-5 on the issue. A majority vote is needed for continued participation.

Five schools have reported in favor of the game. They are Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Michigan State and Purdue. Negative votes have been cast by Minnesota, Ohio, Illinois and Northwestern.

Wisconsin could abstain from voting which would leave a 5-4 tally but this was considered unlikely.

Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Bill Russell of the champion Boston Celtics received $200 each for being voted on the National Basketball Association All-Star team.

NEW REF SLATED

Six-Man Tussle At B&B Monday

Six husky bruisers take over the ring at the B & B Arena Monday night in a main event tag team scramble with no time limit.

The new matchmaking syndicate from New Orleans, which presented the first show last week, made a big hit with the local fans in providing top - notch wrestlers and tomorrow night's card stacks up as another colorful attraction.

Al Massey of New Orleans, Frankie Kovak of Hungary and Harvey Cole of Chattanooga, Tenn., combine talents on one side of the fence against Prince Omar, a newcomer from Tampa, Fla., Firpo Zybysko of New York and Prince Nero from Italy.

Last week Massey dropped a three - fall match to Zybysko with the help of another Zybysko, this one the referee. Firpo and his handle bar mustache will be more on his own this time since a new referee has been imported to officiate.

Kovak and Prince Nero battled to a 15 - minute draw in a prelim last week and the Hungarian figures with an impartial ref things will be different.

Two 15 - minute openers are scheduled to open the action with Cole meeting Prince Omar and Kovak taking on Zybysko.

The six - man affair will be decided by the best two of three falls with no time limit set.

AFTER 15-3 DEFEAT

Norman Fired As Detroit Pilot, Jimmy Dykes Hired

DETROIT (UPI) — Bill Norman was fired Saturday as Detroit Tiger manager after the club was walloped for the 15th-time in 17 starts and Jimmy Dykes immediately was named manager.

Dykes, who took over in Cincinnati last season after Birdie Tebbetts was fired, currently is coaching for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tiger General Manager Rick Ferrell said Dykes would come to Detroit immediately and handle the club in its doubleheader Sunday against the New York Yankees.

Dykes becomes the sixth Tiger manager in the last seven years. Norman himself took over during the campaign when Jack Tighe was fired last June 9.

Ferrell said the decision to make the change was made Saturday, as the Senators blasted the Tigers for five home runs and a total of 17 hits. Washington won 15 to 3. Detroit lost its first six games, won one, lost six more, before winning its second game, and now has lost three more in a row.

Ferrell said he made the change because "I feel we have a much better ball club than has been shown. I don't think the potential has been realized. It was the hardest decision I've had to make in baseball."

Ferrell said Norman will be offered a job with the club. Tighe also is still with Detroit as a scout.

"I've always admired Dykes and he has a good big league background as a manager. He did a fine job at Cincinnati last season and before that with the Chicago White Sox," Ferrell said.

The Tigers were criticized in some quarters last season for not hiring a "Name" manager when Tighe was fired. But, "Name" manager or not, the last time Detroit was in contention for the pennant was in 1950 when the team finished second under Red Rolfe and the last flag was won under Steve O'Neill in 1945.

Since O'Neill's World Championship team, the Tigers have operated under Rolfe, Fred Hutchinson, Bucky Harris, Tighe and Norman. Only Rolfe and Tighe managed first division finishes. Tighe's 1957 team wound up fourth.

'I was fired. I didn't quit" Norman said. "It hurts. But I'm like a bad penny and I'll bounce back.

"Nothing has been said to me and it looks like this is the end of my six years with Detroit," Norman said. "If I had to do it over again, I'd do it the same way and make all the same moves. Everyone said I played sound ball, but I didn't win. So what can you do?"

The Tiger pitching staff, reputed to be one of the best in the league, has collapsed this season and allowed 30 home runs in 17 games. Only one pitcher has gone the route and Detroit even lost that game. The Tigers made changes during the off-season in an attempt to get the club into the first division but everything has fallen flat and they haven't been out of the cellar since opening day.

"I still think the team can make the first division and I'm not saying that to make it hard on Dykes," Norman said.

In only a couple of games have the Tigers held leads and usually they have been far behind in the opening innings.

Norman was a rookie as a major league manager, as was Tighe, his predecessor. Both came up through the Detroit farm system as managers and neither had a very large major league background.

SECOND STRAIGHT FOR GIANTS

Braves Fall To S. F., Lose Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The San Francisco Giants soared into the National League lead Saturday, slugging out an 8-5 victory over the Milwaukee Braves before 20,127.

Unleashing a furious 17-hit assault on four Milwaukee pitchers, the Giants made it two in a row in their first series of the season with the Braves. Right-hander Joey Jay, now 1-1, was the victim. The Giants' Jack Sanford achieved his fourth victory against one loss, but needed help from Stu Miller in the eighth and Gordon Jones in the ninth.

Three homers, two by Willie Kirkland and a 2-run clout by Hobie Landrith, plus four singles by Willie Mays, sparked the Giants attack.

Milwaukee rallied desperately for two in the ninth with a pinch homer by Mickey Vernon and a 4-bagger by Johnny O'Brien, but fell short by 3 runs as Jones stopped them.

After Kirkland's first homer, the Giants nipped Jay for a second run in the third on a single by Willie Mays and a double by Orlando Cepeda. In the fourth they put together singles by Daryl Spencer, Andre Rogers and Jim Davenport for a third run and they finally chased Jay in the fifth with a 2-run assault on 3 hits, a hit batsman, a sacrifice and reliever Bob Rush's throwing error.

Trailing 5-0, Milwaukee finally got on the scoreboard via Eddie Mathews' fifth inning 2-run homer, his eighth circuit blow of the season.

In the eighth the Braves loaded the bases on two singles and a walk, and scored a run on frank Torre's sacrifice fly, making it 6-3. But San Francisco came right back at them with a pair in the ninth, Landrith hitting for the circuit after Rodgers' single, to make it 8-3.

Banks, Goryl Bat Cubs To 4-3 Triumph

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ernie Banks slammed a three-run first inning double and Johnny Goryl tripled him home, accounting for all Chicago's runs in a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The Cubs used two relievers to hold off the Phillies for the rest of the game. Rookie right-hander Joe Schaffarnoth, who took over for Dave Hillman in the fifth, got credit for the victory, his first in the National League. He lasted until the eighth, when Don Elston came in.

Gene Conley relieved Morehead and after giving up a triple to Goryl, settled down and held the Cubs to six hits for the rest of the game. The Phils outhit the Cubs 9-8, with Wally Post getting three singles and Richie Ashburn two. Tony Taylor had three singles for the Cubs.

Chicago made short work of Morehead, as Taylor opened up with a single, and George Altman was hit by a pitched ball. Lee Walls drew a walk, loading the bases, and then Banks' double sent the three runners home.

The Phils picked up one run in the third on successive singles by Ashburn, Chico Fernandez and Ed Bouchee.

14-HIT BARRAGE

Red Sox Batter Pale Hose, 5-4

CHICAGO (AP) — The Boston Red Sox' 14-hit barrage, with homers by Jackie Jensen and Pete Runnels, Saturday leveled the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Ike Delock blanked Chicago on three hits for seven innings and gained his third victory against no losses. He had to be rescued in the eighth by Murray Wall.

The White Sox jolted Wall with two runs in the ninth on Bubba Phillips' double and Luis Aparicio's No. 3 homer. But Wall retired the side with the winning run on base when Del Ennis grounded out.

Chicago didn't get a man beyond second base until Nellie Fox, league-leading batter entering the game with .413, belted a triple in the eighth for his only hit in four official trips. Jim Landis' sacrifice fly scored Fox. Then Ennis, in White Sox livery for the first time after being obtained in a trade with Cincinnati, doubled and scored on Al Smith's single.

Boston disposed of starter Barry Latman in three innings with six hits and three runs. Jensen's fourth homer of the season came in the third with two out and bases empty. Frank Malzone followed with a single and Dick Gernert scored him with a triple.

Three other hurlers followed Latman. The Red Sox scored in the sixth off Gerry Staley on Sam White's third straight single, Delock's sacrifice and Don Buddin's single.

Runnels' blast into the right field stands came off Rudolfo Arias in the ninth. His first homer of the campaign proved the decisive blow.

Dallas Long Breaks World Shot Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dallas Long, 18-year-old freshman from the University of Southern California, broke the world's shot put record by five inches Saturday when he pushed the 16-pound ball 63 feet, 7 inches on his last try of the day.

Meet officials said the mark — achieved in a freshman meet prior to Saturday's USC-UCLA dual contest — would be submitted for recognition.

Long also had a put of 63 feet, 2¼ inches — one-quarter of an inch better than Parry O'Brien's world record of 63 feet, 2 inches — But the mark was subject to question. The toe board was found to be one-half inch too low and meet officials quickly made a correction before Long made another attempt.

Although there was no doubt of the validty of the 63-foot, 7-inch put, meet officials said it might be subject to question on one point. It was recalled that international rules normally provide for six attempts, and collegiate regulations allow seven. Long's greatest effort Saturday was on his seventh try.

The 250-pound athlete from Phoenix, Ariz., in an unprecendented official performance, then pushed the shot 61 feet or more six consecutive times. It was not until his last attempt that he hit 63 feet, 7 inches.

O'Brien looked on while Long broke the record he had set in 1956 in Australia.

Long equaled the record of 63 feet, 2 inches in the Easter Relays at Santa Barbara and several other times unofficially broke it. But this was his most concerted bid to break the world's record in official competition.

Norman Fired As Detroit Pilot, Jimmy Dykes Hired

DETROIT (UPI) — Bill Norman was fired Saturday as Detroit Tiger manager after the club was walloped for the 15th-time in 17 starts and Jimmy Dykes immediately was named manager.

Dykes, who took over in Cincinnati last season after Birdie Tebbetts was fired, currently is coaching for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Tiger General Manager Rick Ferrell said Dykes would come to Detroit immediately and handle the club in its doubleheader Sunday against the New York Yankees.

Dykes becomes the sixth Tiger manager in the last seven years. Norman himself took over during the campaign when Jack Tighe was fired last June 9.

Ferrell said the decision to make the change was made Saturday, as the Senators blasted the Tigers for five home runs and a total of 17 hits. Washington won 15 to 3. Detroit lost its first six games, won one, lost six more, before winning its second game, and now has lost three more in a row.

Ferrell said he made the change because "I feel we have a much better ball club than has been shown. I don't think the potential has been realized. It was the hardest decision I've had to make in baseball."

Ferrell said Norman will be offered a job with the club. Tighe also is still with Detroit as a scout.

"I've always admired Dykes and he has a good big league background as a manager. He did a fine job at Cincinnati last season and before that with the Chicago White Sox," Ferrell said.

The Tigers were criticized in some quarters last season for not hiring a "Name" manager when Tighe was fired. But, "Name" manager or not, the last time Detroit was in contention for the pennant was in 1950 when the team finished second under Red Rolfe and the last flag was won under Steve O'Neill in 1945.

Since O'Neill's World Championship team, the Tigers have operated under Rolfe, Fred Hutchinson, Bucky Harris, Tighe and Norman. Only Rolfe and Tighe managed first division finishes. Tighe's 1957 team wound up fourth.

'I was fired. I didn't quit," Norman said. "It hurts. But I'm like a bad penny and I'll bounce back.

"Nothing has been said to me and it looks like this is the end of my six years with Detroit," Norman said. "If I had to do it over again, I'd do it the same way and make all the same moves. Everyone said I played sound ball, but I didn't win. So what can you do?"

The Tiger pitching staff, reputed to be one of the best in the league, has collapsed this season and allowed 30 home runs in 17 games. Only one pitcher has gone the route and Detroit even lost that game. The Tigers made changes during the off-season in an attempt to get the club into the first division but everything has fallen flat and they haven't been out of the cellar since opening day.

"I still think the team can make the first division and I'm not saying that to make it hard on Dykes," Norman said.

In only a couple of games have the Tigers held leads and usually they have been far behind in the opening innings.

Norman was a rookie as a major league manager, as was Tighe, his predecessor. Both came up through the Detroit farm system as managers and neither had a very large major league background.

SECOND STRAIGHT FOR GIANTS

Braves Fall To S. F., Lose Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The San Francisco Giants soared into the National League lead Saturday, slugging out an 8-5 victory over the Milwaukee Braves before 20,127.

Unleashing a furious 17-hit assault on four Milwaukee pitchers, the Giants made it two in a row in their first series of the season with the Braves. Right-hander Joey Jay, now 1-1, was the victim. The Giants' Jack Sanford achieved his fourth victory against one loss, but needed help from Stu Miller in the eighth and Gordon Jones in the ninth.

Three homers, two by Willie Kirkland and a 2-run clout by Hobie Landrith, plus four singles by Willie Mays, sparked the Giants attack.

Milwaukee rallied desperately for two in the ninth with a pinch homer by Mickey Vernon and a 4-bagger by Johnny O'Brien, but fell short by 3 runs as Jones stopped them.

After Kirkland's first homer, the Giants nipped Jay for a second run in the third on a single by Willie Mays and a double by Orlando Cepeda. In the fourth they put together singles by Daryl Spencer, Andre Rogers and Jim Davenport for a third run and they finally chased Jay in the fifth with a 2-run assault on 3 hits, a hit batsman, a sacrifice and reliever Bob Rush's throwing error.

Trailing 5-0, Milwaukee finally got on the scoreboard via Eddie Mathews' fifth inning 2-run homer, his eighth circuit blow of the season.

In the eighth the Braves loaded the bases on two singles and a walk, and scored a run on frank Torre's sacrifice fly, making it 6-3. But San Francisco came right back at them with a pair in the ninth, Landrith hitting for the circuit after Rodgers' single, to make it 8-3.

Banks, Goryl Bat Cubs To 4-3 Triumph

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ernie Banks slammed a three-run first inning double and Johnny Goryl tripled him home, accounting for all Chicago's runs in a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The Cubs used two relievers to hold off the Phillies for the rest of the game. Rookie right-hander Joe Schaffarnoth, who took over for Dave Hillman in the fifth, got credit for the victory, his first in the National League. He lasted until the eighth, when Don Elston came in.

Gene Conley relieved Morehead and after giving up a triple to Goryl, settled down and held the Cubs to six hits for the rest of the game. The Phils outhit the Cubs 9-8, with Wally Post getting three singles and Richie Ashburn two. Tony Taylor had three singles for the Cubs.

Chicago made short work of Morehead, as Taylor opened up with a single, and George Altman was hit by a pitched ball. Lee Walls drew a walk, loading the bases, and then Banks' double sent the three runners home.

The Phils picked up one run in the third on successive singles by Ashburn, Chico Fernandez and Ed Bouchee.

14-HIT BARRAGE

Red Sox Batter Pale Hose, 5-4

CHICAGO (AP) — The Boston Red Sox' 14-hit barrage, with homers by Jackie Jensen and Pete Runnels, Saturday leveled the Chicago White Sox 5-4.

Ike Delock blanked Chicago on three hits for seven innings and gained his third victory against no losses. He had to be rescued in the eighth by Murray Wall.

The White Sox jolted Wall with two runs in the ninth on Bubba Phillips' double and Luis Aparicio's No. 3 homer. But Wall retired the side with the winning run on base when Del Ennis grounded out.

Chicago didn't get a man beyond second base until Nellie Fox, league-leading batter entering the game with .413, belted a triple in the eighth for his only hit in four official trips. Jim Landis' sacrifice fly scored Fox. Then Ennis, in White Sox livery for the first time after being obtained in a trade with Cincinnati, doubled and scored on Al Smith's single.

Boston disposed of starter Barry Latman in three innings with six hits and three runs. Jensen's fourth homer of the season came in the third with two out and bases empty. Frank Malzone followed with a single and Dick Gernert scored him with a triple.

Three other hurlers followed Latman. The Red Sox scored in the sixth off Gerry Staley on Sam White's third straight single, Delock's sacrifice and Don Buddin's single.

Runnels' blast into the right field stands came off Rudolfo Arias in the ninth. His first homer of the campaign proved the decisive blow.

Dallas Long Breaks World Shot Record

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dallas Long, 18-year-old freshman from the University of Southern California, broke the world's shot put record by five inches Saturday when he pushed the 16-pound ball 63 feet, 7 inches on his last try of the day.

Meet officials said the mark — achieved in a freshman meet prior to Saturday's USC-UCLA dual contest — would be submitted for recognition.

Long also had a put of 63 feet, 2¼ inches — one-quarter of an inch better than Parry O'Brien's world record of 63 feet, 2 inches — But the mark was subject to question. The toe board was found to be one-half inch too low and meet officials quickly made a correction before Long made another attempt.

Although there was no doubt of the validty of the 63-foot, 7-inch put, meet officials said it might be subject to question on one point. It was recalled that international rules normally provide for six attempts, and collegiate regulations allow seven. Long's greatest effort Saturday was on his seventh try.

The 250 - pound athlete from Phoenix, Ariz., in an unprecendented official performance, then pushed the shot 61 feet or more six consecutive times. It was not until his last attempt that he hit 63 feet, 7 inches.

O'Brien looked on while Long broke the record he had set in 1956 in Australia.

Long equaled the record of 63 feet, 2 inches in the Easter Relays at Santa Barbara and several other times unofficially broke it. But this was his most concerted bid to break the world's record in official competition.

Furillo Misses Poke By Robinson

CINCY GAINS 3RD PLACE

Redlegs Plaster Dodgers, 16 To 4

CINCINNATI (AP)—Frank Robinson and young Vada Pinson headed another slugging spree for the Cincinnati Reds Saturday that sealed a 16-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and boosted the victors into the National League's No. 3 spot.

In five games this week, including four victories, the Reds have stacked up 52 runs.

Rookie southpaw Jim O'Toole, plagued by wildness this season, lasted to the fifth inning but had to let veteran fireman Willard Schmidt finish up.

A seven-run Redleg bombing in the fourth inning gave O'Toole a 9-3 cushion, and five more Redleg runs in the sixth pulled the game out of Dodger reach.

Robinson hit for the single-double-triple-homer cycle while Pinson boosted his RBI to 22 with a single, a double and a home run.

Walt Dropo's homer for Cincinnati wrapped up the Reds' scoring in the fourth.

Liberal walks from Dodger pitchers plus a half dozen extra base hits helped Cincinnati score the 16 runs with only 13 hits.

A walk, sacrifice and two singles gave Cincinnati a two-run boost in the third inning. But the Dodgers topped that in the fourth with three runs on four singles, Carl Furillo's double and Joe Pignatano's squeeze bunt that scored Rip Repulski.

But from then on, the Reds took command. One run in the sixth on a walk, sacrifice and single was the last Dodger scoring.

Pinson's two-run homer in the eighth closed out scoring.

The Reds streamed through 4 Dodger pitchers with starter Gene Snyder taking the loss.

Pirates Pull Out 2-1 Win Over Cards

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente singled home the winning run with one out in the ninth inning Saturday to break up a 1-1 ball game and give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Harvey Haddix, the winning pitcher, fanned 8 Cardinals as he chalked up his second victory of the season against no defeats on a 5 higger.

Lindy McDaniel, helped by 4 double plays, matched pitches with Haddix until he was relieved in the ninth with 1 out and 1 on. McDaniel was charged with the loss, his second against 2 wins.

The victory blow was Clemente's third hit of the game. He had stroked two doubles previously.

Smoky Burgess, Pirate catcher hit his 10th double of the season and also collected a single to make it 4 consecutive games in which he has collected 2 hits.

Score Fans 13 As Indians Sweep Series Over Yanks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lefthander Herb Score struck out 13 Yankees Saturday as Cleveland whipped New York 5-2 for a two-game sweep of the world champions at Municipal Stadium. Score pitched a six-hitter.

Home runs by Vic Power, Rocky Colvaito and Billy Martin accounted for all Indian runs, although Cleveland also got only six hits off Tom Sturdivant and Jim Coates.

Score was wild at times, making three wild pitches, but was tough in the clutch. His strikeouts included the last two batters he faced, in winning his second game against one loss.

The defeat was the seventh for the Yankees in their last eight games. The loser was Sturdivant, who was trying for his first victory of the season.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Power hit a two-run homer over the right field fence at the 365-foot mark. Scoring ahead of him was Jim Piersall, who was safe at first on a wild throw by shortstop Bobby Richardson.

New York's first run came in the fourth, when Gil McDougald led off with a single, took second on a wild pitch, went to third on an infield out and scored on a single by Yogi Berra. The Yankees tied the score in the sixth, when Elston Howard singled, went to second on a wild pitch, took third on a long fly to right field and scored on a single by Tony Kubek.

Colavito's homer into the left field stands in the sixth inning with two men out put the Indians ahead to stay. The Tribe scored two more runs in the seventh on Martin's homer over the left field fence after George Strickland had led off with a single.

TIGERS MAULED, 15-3

Killebrew Again Paces Nats Win

By DAVE DILES

DETROIT (AP)—Harmon Killebrew hammered his third and fourth home runs in two days and Jim Lemon connected with the bases loaded as the Washington Senators feasted on Detroit pitching for the third day in a row and blasted the Tigers Saturday 15-3.

Detroit manager Bill Norman was fired immediately after the game and Jimmy Dykes was named to succeed him. Norman had replaced Jack Tighe as manager in the middle of last season.

Dykes, a veteran American League manager, has managed the old Philadelphia A's, the Chicago White Sox and the Baltimore Orioles. He also finished last season as manager of the Cincinnati Reds after Birdie Tebbets quit.

Roy Sievers and ex-Tiger Ron Samford of Washington also hit for the circuit. The five home runs were the most ever hit by a Washington club in a nine-inning game. The Senators once hit seven in a extra inning contest. en in an extra inning contest against Chicago.

The Tigers fell apart in the field, committing three errors and making several base-running mistakes in tumbling to their 15th defeat in 17 games. This was Detroit's third straight loss in the club's latest losing streak.

After winning previous games in the series by 9-1 and 4-3 scores, the Senators exploded 17 hits against five Detroit pitchers and plunged the Tigers 10½ games behind the league-leading Cleveland Indians.

Russ Kemmerer spaced seven hits for his fourth victory against a single defeat as Washington climbed above the .500 mark with a 10-9 record.

Lemon batted across five runs with his sixth home run and a double. Killebrew, whose 10th inning home run beat the Tigers' Jim Bunning Friday, delivered a solo blast in the first and a two-run shot in the eighth. In addition, he was hit twice by pitched balls.

Orioles Beat A's Behind Wilhelm, 3-1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baltimore's Hoyt Wilhelm survived a ninth inning scare Saturday and fluttered his knuckleball past Kansas City batters for a 3-1 victory.

The big right-hander limited the A's to five hits while his batter mate, big Gus Triandos, delivered the winning blow — his fifth home run of the year, with Gene Woodling on base in the fourth inning.

The blow came off Ray Herbert, who went the distance for the A's and absorbed his second defeat in three decisions. The pitching victory was Wilhelm's third without a loss and kept his earned run average at less than two per game.

Wilhelm used practically nothing but his dipsy-do pitch as he went into the ninth inning riding the wave of a 3-0, 3-hit shutout. But Whitey Herzog singled with one out. Dick Williams got his second hit of the game, a double to left field, and Herzog stopped at third base. Hector Lopez brought Herzog home with a sacrifice fly to right, but Wilhelm ended the game by striking out his seventh victim — Roger Maris.

Chico Carrasquel, Baltimore shortstop, led off the game with a two-bagger, went to third on Bob Boyd's sacrifice and scored as Lopez threw out Woodling. Triandos' two-run homer looked like nothing but icing until the Athletics staged their mild ninth-inning uprising.

Tomy Lee Cost Mere $6,762 In Two-Horse Deal

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Fred Turner Jr., the Texan who owns Kentucky Derby winner Tomy Lee, purchased the English-bred colt sight unseen as the lesser part of a two-horse deal.

Turner had paid $25,000 for Tuleg, a Tulyar yearling and he wanted another horse to accompany the new purchase to the United States on the plane. Turner authorized Kerr to go as high as $12,000 for Tomy Lee but he was knocked down at the auction for $6,762.

Furillo Misses Poke By Robinson

Los Angeles outfielder Carl Furillo stretches vainly in a stab at catching a poke by Cincinnati's Frank Robinson in the fourth innng Redleg uprising yesterday. Redlegs Plaster Dodgers, 16 To 4

CINCINNATI (AP)—Frank Robinson and young Vada Pinson headed another slugging spree for the Cincinnati Reds Saturday that sealed a 16-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and boosted the victors into the National League's No. 3 spot.

In five games this week, including four victories, the Reds have stacked up 52 runs.

Rookie southpaw Jim O'Toole, plagued by wildness this season, lasted to the fifth inning but had to let veteran fireman Willard Schmidt finish up.

A seven-run Redleg bombing in the fourth inning gave O'Toole a 9-3 cushion, and five more Redleg runs in the sixth pulled the game out of Dodger reach.

Robinson hit for the single-double-triple-homer cycle while Pinson boosted his RBI to 22 with a single, a double and a home run.

Walt Dropo's homer for Cincinnati wrapped up the Reds' scoring in the fourth.

Liberal walks from Dodger pitchers plus a half dozen extra base hits helped Cincinnati score the 16 runs with only 13 hits.

A walk, sacrifice and two singles gave Cincinnati a two-run boost in the third inning. But the Dodgers topped that in the fourth with three runs on four singles, Carl Furillo's double and Joe Pignatano's squeeze bunt that scored Rip Repulski.

But from then on, the Reds took command. One run in the sixth on a walk, sacrifice and single was the last Dodger scoring.

Pinson's two-run homer in the eighth closed out scoring.

The Reds streamed through 4 Dodger pitchers with starter Gene Snyder taking the loss.

Score Fans 13 As Indians Sweep Series Over Yanks

CLEVELAND (AP) — Lefthander Herb Score struck out 13 Yankees Saturday as Cleveland whipped New York 5-2 for a two-game sweep of the world champions at Municipal Stadium. Score pitched a six-hitter.

Home runs by Vic Power, Rocky Colvaito and Billy Martin accounted for all Indian runs, although Cleveland also got only six hits off Tom Sturdivant and Jim Coates.

Score was wild at times, making three wild pitches, but was tough in the clutch. His strikeouts included the last two batters he faced, in winning his second game against one loss.

The defeat was the seventh for the Yankees in their last eight games. The loser was Sturdivant, who was trying for his first victory of the season.

The Indians took a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Power hit a two-run homer over the right field fence at the 365-foot mark. Scoring ahead of him was Jim Piersall, who was safe at first on a wild throw by shortstop Bobby Richardson.

New York's first run came in the fourth, when Gil McDougald led off with a single, took second on a wild pitch, went to third on an infield out and scored on a single by Yogi Berra. The Yankees tied the score in the sixth, when Elston Howard singled, went to second on a wild pitch, took third on a long fly to right field and scored on a single by Tony Kubek.

Colavito's homer into the left field stands in the sixth inning with two men out put the Indians ahead to stay. The Tribe scored two more runs in the seventh on Martin's homer over the left field fence after George Strickland had led off with a single.

Orioles Beat A's Behind Wilhelm, 3-1

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Baltimore's Hoyt Wilhelm survived a ninth inning scare Saturday and fluttered his knuckleball past Kansas City batters for a 3-1 victory.

The big right-hander limited the A's to five hits while his batter mate, big Gus Triandos, delivered the winning blow — his fifth home run of the year, with Gene Woodling on base in the fourth inning.

The blow came off Ray Herbert, who went the distance for the A's and absorbed his second defeat in three decisions. The pitching victory was Wilhelm's third without a loss and kept his earned run average at less than two per game.

Wilhelm used practically nothing but his dipsy-do pitch as he went into the ninth inning riding the wave of a 3-0, 3-hit shutout. But Whitey Herzog singled with one out. Dick Williams got his second hit of the game, a double to left field, and Herzog stopped at third base. Hector Lopez brought Herzog home with a sacrifice fly to right, but Wilhelm ended the game by striking out his seventh victim — Roger Maris.

Chico Carrasquel, Baltimore shortstop, led off the game with a two-bagger, went to third on Bob Boyd's sacrifice and scored as Lopez threw out Woodling. Triandos' two-run homer looked like nothing but icing until the Athletics staged their mild ninth-inning uprising.

Tomy Lee Cost Mere $6,762 In Two-Horse Deal

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Fred Turner Jr., the Texan who owns Kentucky Derby winner Tomy Lee, purchased the English-bred colt sight unseen as the lesser part of a two-horse deal.

In 1956, Turner instructed Bert Kerr of Dublin, Ireland, his European agent whom he never had met, to buy a yearling at the Newmarket, England, sales. He wanted a yearling by the stallion Tudor Minstrel.

Turner had paid $25,000 for Tuleg, a Tulyar yearling and he wanted another horse to accompany the new purchase to the United States on the plane. Turner authorized Kerr to go as high as $12,000 for Tomy Lee but he was knocked down at the auction for $6,762.

LITTLE THEATRE

"Deective Story" has finished its run. To those who worked so hard as director, actors, and crew—our thanks for a major event in Little Theatre history. We hope to see them in another play as soon as possible.

Someone has asked us about the gore in the final scene. Maybe we should not tell professional secrets but it was ketchup and cherry juice. Vinnie Vincent was the hard luck boy, having had four shirts torn off, but no one got sick or was summoned out of town or was forced to leave the cast because of some emergency.

And speaking of casualties — here's the final word on Martha Seiler's one - time broken foot. She was the only girl among twenty - five boys in the N. L. S. C. class that went on the geology field trip. Probably the best cure in the world for a sore foot.

Our lobby decoration for Detective Story was an original creation made by Judy Evans and Ruth Shipman. Contrived out of two pieces of beaverboard, two old newel posts, and a lamp shade, it gave a very clever impression of the entrance to the police station in a tenement section of New York.

After the Saturday night performance, Ivan gave a party for the cast and crew. With husbands, wives and-or dates, the guests numbered about seventy—very crowded but very gay. Buddy Henry was inspired to invite everybody there to another party at his house yesterday.

Everyone was happy to see Frank Breese at the play last Saturday night. He has made a good recovery from his very serious illness. Among others at the theatre we noted Sara Helen Griffin in a cherry red dress, Notie Thatcher, the Reverend and Mrs. Wayne Gray, Dr. Tom Martin and Pat.

Rehearsals for the next production have already begun and Ivan is working with a carpenter on the sets. This will seem a small cast compared to the last two — only seven. We'll tell you about them later. Ivan hopes to get this play on the boards in about three and a half weeks because we have to finish up before the weather gets too hot. This last play, The Country Girl, is a drama about theatre — serious, but not tragic. Originally played on Broadway by Uta Hagen and Paul Kelly, it gained more fame as the vehicle that brought an Oscar to Grace Kelly and very favorable mention to Bing Crosby. This too will be given "in the round" and once again our coffee room will be required for the sets.

As ever, Little Theatre members are active. We saw many of them at the spectacular flower show last Tuesday.

In the speech department at N. L. S. C., three of our recent actors, Billie Sue Swanson, Pat Medaries, and Chuck Morgan are doing one act plays as a part of their course. These plays will be given on May 15 in the Fine Arts Building and are open to the public. And Charlene Correro wrote an original one act play which was entered in a competition at Northwestern on April 25. Thursday the cast performed it for the Monroe Rotary Club.

As we expected, George Brian's production of "Magnificent Obsession" at Northeast was a magnificent success. We hope you were there.

Mrs. Ed Hislop gave a beautiful tea for Louise Lester who will be married to L. T. member Bill Norris on June sixth. Everything was blue — flowers, punch, and the dresses of those who assisted—the bride's favorite color.

See you Wednesday.

Four Are Held For Assault On University Coed

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A slender Negro university coed was seized by four white youths early Saturday and was raped repeatedly before she was rescued, lying bound, gagged and hysterical in the back seat of their car.

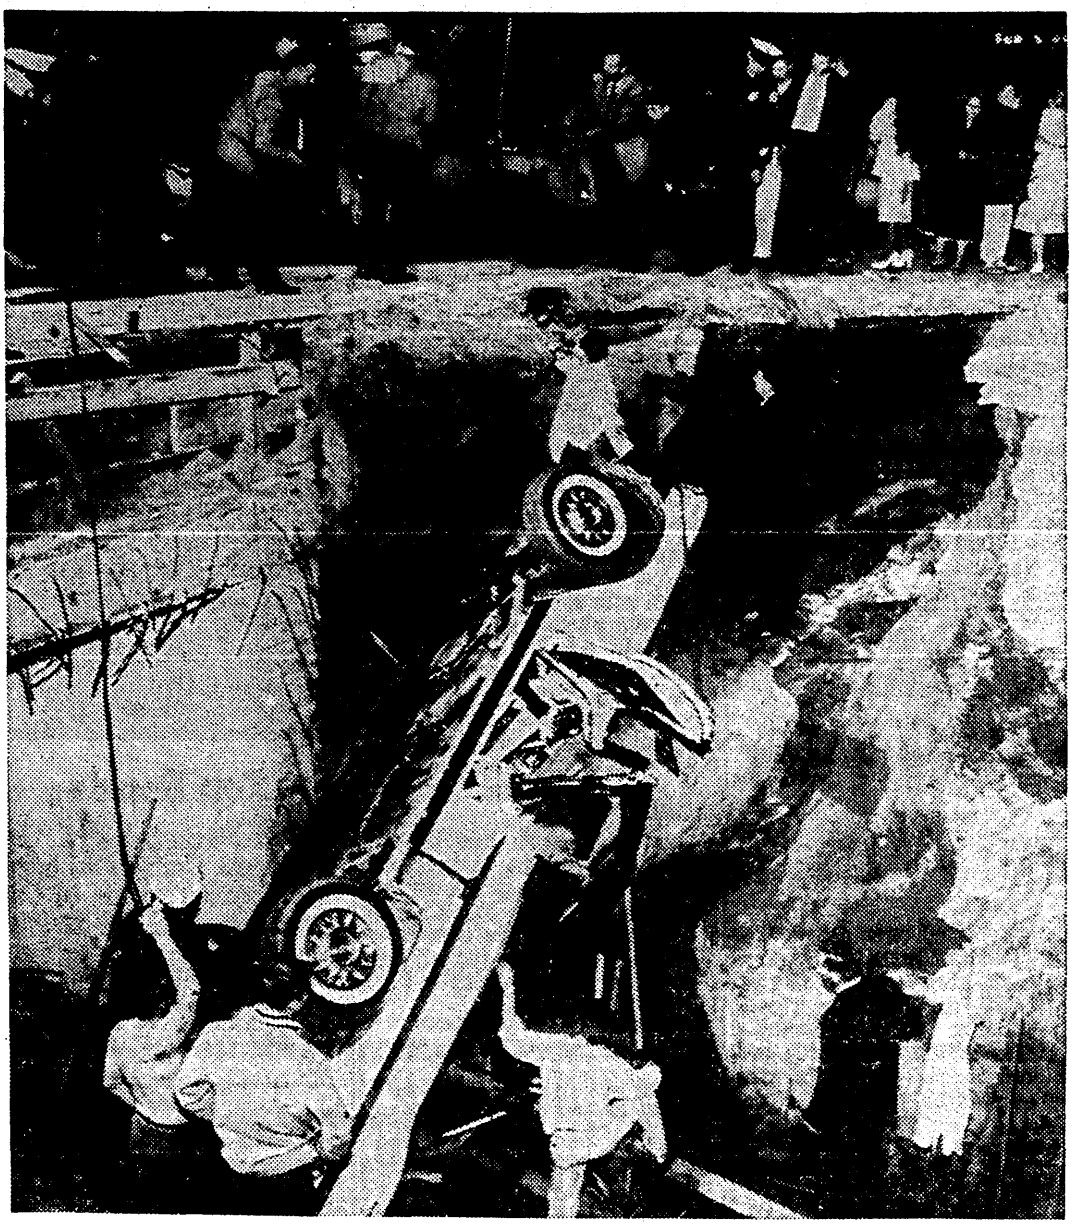
A deputy sheriff rescued the half - nude girl and captured the four youths after a wild, high-speed chase on the outskirts of Tallahassee. A special police investigator said the four boys admitted taking turns raping the girl. "They all admitted it," the investigator said. "They didn't say why they did it and that's all I'm going to say about this filthy mess."

Dr. R. L. Anderson, examining physician, said there was "no question about the girl being raped. She definitely was raped."

The youths were accused of forcing two young Negro couples from a parked car and of attempting to force both girls, aged 19 and 16, into their car apparently for intimacies. The younger girl broke away, fled and hid in terror while the white youths frightened their male companions away with an automatic shotgun and a switch - blade knife.

The Negroes had been at a college dance which broke up shortly before they were accosted at 1:30 a. m. at a lonely spot on the campus.

The 19-year-old girl told of being gagged with a diaper to prevent her screams and of being assaulted after her hands were bound behind her with a belt.



Plunge Into Ditch Fatal For Passenger

An automobile containing the body of Richard James Mooney of Minneapolis is raised from a 25-foot deep Los Angeles drainage ditch into which it plunged Friday night. The driver, Jack Dixon McBride, of Santa Monica, and another passenger, Miss Lois Gronefelt, an airline stewardess also of Santa Monica, were seriously injured. (AP Wirephoto)

Four Fined $100 Each In Whisky Case

NEW AUGUSTA, Miss. (AP)—Four men were fined $100 each in the court of Justice of the Peace Harvey Myers Saturday in connection with the disappearance of a truckload of bonded whisky valued at $3,500 here last Saturday.

Justice Myers assessed the fines against Charlie Ward Jr., and Ralph Sellers on charges of impersonating an officer; and against C. T. Merrill and Joe C. Sims on charges of illegal transport of whisky.

Merrill testified that their whisky truck was flagged down at 2 a. m. near Runnelstown in Perry County by Sellers and Ward and Perry County Constable Green Odom.

Merrill said Ward drive off with the load of whisky and that when the truck was returned it was empty.

Sellers and Ward pleaded innocent but neither testified in the justice of the peace hearing.

Odom said he had asked Ward and Sellers to help him stop the truck since he knew it was coming through. Odom testified that he told Ward to drive in the woods and destroy the whisky. Later, Odom said, they brought the truck to his house.

The whisky has never been found. No charges have been filed against Odom. The attorney for Ward and Sellers service notice of appeal.

GIVE YOUR CHILDREN A CHANCE!

Polio isn't licked yet! In fact, among children not vaccinated, paralytic polio cases actually increased in 1958 over 1957. More one-year-olds were stricken than any other age group.

If your youngsters are still not protected against this feared disease, insist that they start and complete the full series of polio shots NOW.

The 1959 polio season is fast approaching. The sooner your children are polio-protected, the safer their futures will be. And since polio strikes all ages —be sure to get your shots, too. See your doctor or health department NOW.

CAMPAIGN HEATS UP

Gartin Charges Slander In Race

LUCEDALE, Miss. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin charged Ross Barnett of Jackson Saturday with turning to slander in their campaigns for governor.

Gartin referred obviously to speeches Friday night by Barnett and his campaign manager, John Gregg.

In speeches, Barnett referred to former Gov. Hugh White as "Big Daddy," to outgoing Gov. J. P. Coleman as "Tall Daddy," and to Gartin as "Little Boy Blue."

Gregg said to elect Gartin would mean a "continuation of the same dictatorial, arrogant, self-seeking . . .conspiracy which is now in office."

Gartin denied the charge he would be ruled by Coleman, and turned onto Barnett, saying the Jackson attorney has no record of public service and his "sole objective has been the destruction of industry in this state ever since he first began practicing law. . ."

Gartin said his eight years in the lieutenant governor's office has permitted him to become instrumental in maintaining segregation and in balancing Mississippi's agriculture with industry.

Speaking from the same platform, Dist. Atty. Charles Sullivan of Clarksdale, a third candidate, scored Gartin for his announced support of Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass) for Democratic presidential nominee.

Both candidates said they were unaware the other had scheduled a rally from the same platform.

Sullivan read a newspaper clipping quoting Gartin as saying Kennedy was his present choice for presidential nominee.

Sullivan read an editorial from the Pittsburgh Courier, which he described as a spokesman for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

The editorial described Kennedy as the kind of forthright man Negroes would like to see in the White House.

Sullivan called Kennedy "the chief congressional protector of organized labor goons," and added that supporting him is "simply another step in the direction of moderation by the present governor that will destroy us."

Sullivan reiterated his plan to provide for a walk-out by the Mississippi delegation from the Democratic National Convention if necessary.

He proposed to have a mandatory meeting of the state convention to review the national convention action "and act appropriately."

Polio Victim Is Taken Off Cruise Ship

NORFOLK (UPI) — A Coast Guard cutter rendezvoused with a cruise ship off the Virginia coast Saturday, picked up a polio stricken crewman and sped him to a hospital.

Dr. J. A. Jennings of the U. S. Public Health Service, who treated Alex Marceta, 28, during the cutter Marion's two - hour run to Norfolk, said the ailing seaman was in satisfactory condition.

He was transferred to an ambulance when the Marion docked at Norfolk and sped to De Paul Hospital which is equipped with modern facilities for polio treatment.

A Coast Guard helicopter followed the Marion and delivered enough anti - polio serum to the Grace Line's 484 - foot Santa Paula to treat its crewmen and approximately 200 passengers.

The Santa Paula, newer sister ship to the Santa Rosa, continued its cruise to the Dutch West Indies.

The cruise ship radioed the Coast Guard for help when two doctors among its passengers confirmed that Marceta had polio.

He was kept under an oxygen tent and the ship turned back to meet the Marion. The Coast Guard sent out a portable iron lung aboard a helicopter but the Marion radioed it had enough oxygen and the 'copter was recalled.

Gen. LeRoy Burney of the U.S. Public Health Service in Washington said the case emphasized the "extreme need for immunization for all people going abroad."

However, the Health Service said polio is not quarantined under health service regulations and the Santa Paula was free to continue its cruise.

FEW DEFICIENT IN IODINE

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Iodine deficiency has become so rare in the U.S. that iodine treatment of various forms of goiter is almost always useless if not harmful, according to Dr. George Crile Jr. of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation.

BASTROP (Special) — Morehouse Parish deputies and city policemen were last night continuing their search for the two Negroes who cracked a rock over a Bastrop liquor dealer's head and fled on foot after a futile robbery attempt Friday night.

The victim was 55 - year - old Guy Stevenson, who said he was cut but not knocked down. He said he had never seen the Negroes before. Neither wore masks, he added.

The package liquor store where the robbery attempt occurred is on the Crossett Ark., highway. Stevenson said the pair ran away after swinging at him with a rock.

PLAN RETURN TO NATCHEZ

Mother Is Hopeful Son To See Better

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Seven-year-old Hugh Thornhill may return to his Natchez, Miss. home next week able to see better than at any time in his life.

His mother, Mrs. Louis Thornhill, said Hugh will undergo what is hoped will be his final examination Monday by San Francisco eye specialist Dr. William Ferguson. Mrs. Thornhill and her husband hope to fly home with Hugh on Tuesday if the examination is favorable.

Hugh, who suffers from Glaucoma, lost his right eye four years ago. Ferguson hopes to be able to treat his left eye without surgery.

Friday's examination, the fifth this week, showed considerable improvement.

"He still has a little pressure but it's not as high as it was before," his mother said. "Hugh's spirits couldn't be better. We went to the beach Thursday and he was able to see some shells to pick up. He said he was going to get them for his grandmother."

Hugh was brought here from Mississippi last January when hope for his left eye began to fade. Residents of Natchez raised a fund to send the boy here for treatment. His sight improved steadily and the Thornhills returned to Mississippi.

He was returned here this week for further treatment.

In the Wenatchee Mountain Range near Blewett Pass, Wash., it still is possible to see prospectors panning for gold.

Architect's Model

Pictured here is a model of new educational building and sanctuary for which plans are now being studied by congregation and committees of the First Presbyterian Church.

Presbyterian Church Plans New Building

Plans to build a new church educational building and sanctuary for the First Presbyterian Church here have been formulated and approved and money is now being raised to make the plans a reality, Dr. W. H. McFadden, pastor, announced today.

He said the general plan for the educational building had been accepted and that the contemporary Gothic sanctuary, along with other styles, was being considered by the building committee of the church.

The First Presbyterian Church will erect its new building on a 6½ acre lot bound by Royal and Stubbs Streets and by 11th and 14th Streets. The large acreage will enable the church to provide ample parking space, outdoor recreational facilities, and beautifully designed courts.

The Educational Building will contain the latest equipment and planning for the best possible Christian teachings. Separate departments are planned for each age. The complete building program will also contain a chapel, an administrative wing, and a sanctuary whic is shown in the model above as contemporary Gothic.

The project was designed by the firm of Rivers and Heuer, architechs. The congregation of the church appointed finance and building committee to consumate its building program in the near future.

Officials In Washington Hold Retreat

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Shortly before 5 o'clock last Friday afternoon, four officials of the U. S. State Department left their offices in Washington, got into a car and drove to a secluded old house on the banks of the Potomac about 10 miles south of the city.

They were joined there by similar groups from the Defense Department, Congress and other government agencies—20 men in all. They spent the entire week end in the old house.

A spy peeking through the unguarded windows could have seen them engaged in long, earnest conversations. But if a foreign agent did get wind of this rendezvous, he can relax.

The government officials were not talking about high strategy. They were talking about the Christian faith and its relevance to their lives. Their meeting was a "retreat" conducted by the noted Quaker philosopher, Dr. Elton Trueblood.

Week-end retreats for laymen are a relatively new and increasingly important aspect of U. S. religious life. More than 1,000 organized retreats were conducted in this country last year. And the movement is growing so rapidly the number easily may double this year.

This trend is heartening to Dr. Trueblood, former religious director of the U.S. Information Agency who now serves as professor of philosophy at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

"The retreat movement is one of the most genuine features of the current religious revival," he said in an interview. "It is capturing the interest of laymen from coast to coast. It seems to meet a deeply felt need of contemporary Chrstians."

Trueblood pointed out that retreats are not a modern invention. Jesus conducted frequent retreats for his disciples. He taught that even good works, such as healing the sick, must be laid aside occasionally to withdraw from the world for a period of prayer, study and meditation.

Modern Christians, especially men and women who are carrying heavy responsibilities, particularly need this kind of spiritual refreshment according to Trueblood.

"People today are so caught up in the immediacies of life that they have little chance to reflect on the ultimates," he said. "They need to get away from everyday pressures — from home and business and the telephone — long enough to take their bearings.

"The purpose of a retreat is to deepen your life both intellectually and spiritually so that you can go back and perform your daily work more adequately. It gives you a chance to see who you are and where you are going, and why."

Gordon Avenue Methodists To Hold Roll Call

A church roll call and homecoming will highlight today's activities at Gordon Avenue Methodist Church according to the minister, the Rev. W. M. Allen.

All present and former members of the church are urged to attend and register, the minister said.

A gift will be presented to the oldest charter member of the church, the newest member and the family with the most children present.

Mrs. Ferrington, chairman of the day's special events, said those attending the morning worship services should bring a covered dish and take part in the noon meal.

New Arizona Town Frowns On Baubles

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP)—Frivolities like liquor, lipstick, tobacco and ornate jewelry are forbidden to residents of southern Arizona's newest community.

But nevertheless Miracle Valley, founded only last summer as a "City of God" and a ministerial training ground, is growing rapidly.

Last October, the little settlement in Cochise County, 15 miles west of Bisbee, had a population of about 150. Now there are some 300 residents and newcomers are arriving weekly.

More than one-fourth of the residents are students who, upon completion of their training, will be expected to go forth and preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ under A. A. Allen, the controversial revivalist-faith healer who founded Miracle Valley.

Allen is head of A. A. Allen Revivals, Inc., of Dallas, Tex., and has a nationwide reputation for his tent meetings.

An eloquent and highly vocal evangelist, Allen claims that, through the intercession of God, he has cured many sick and restored a number of crippled persons at his spirited revivals.

Miracle Valley sprawls over some 2,400 acres of range land not far from the Mexican border near the old cattle town of Hereford.

Half the land was a gift from Urban Leindecker, a rancher-cowboy who now lives in a trailer in Mircle Valley and works for the betterment of the community.

Presbyterian Group Names New Minister

Mr. Thomas K. McElhinney, a student at Austin Theological Seminary, will fill the pulpit for the College Presbyterian Group at the nine o'clock services today.

Born in Iowa in 1934, Mr. McElhinney has made his home in New Orleans since 1939. He graduated from Tulane University in 1955. After serving in the Navy for two years, he entered Austin Seminary in 1957.

At the seminary, Mr. McElhinney is a member of the Mission's Committee and this year is serving as editor of the Student Theological Journal, a publication for student writing on subjects related primarily to theology. During his first year he worked in the Sunday School of an Austin church, and presently he preaches on week - ends in area churches. Last summer he served as the Student Assistant pastor of the Union Church of Monterrey, Mexico, a church sponsored by the National Council of Churches for Americans living in Mexico.

Mr. McElhinney is the husband of the former Alice Lewis of New Orleans and Natchez, Mississippi.

This young Christian worker will serve in the college area of Monroe during the summer of 1959, having been employed by the Home Mission Committee of Red River Presbytery. The public is invited to all services.

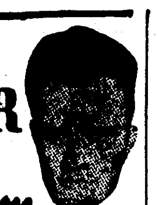
Church Of God Slates Revival

The Rev. Ray Elders will be the evangelist at a revival opening today at the First Church of God, Monroe, according to the pastor, Rev. Carl Owens.

The evangelist, a native of Hickman, Kentucky, will conduct services each evening at 7:30 at the church through May 10.

The pastor and evangelist extended an invitation to the public to attend the services.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham



QUESTION: My friend and I are both Christians. At our school we have a Scripture Union which my friend started. We now have a good crowd, but as far as we know only three of us are converted. We would very much like to lead others to our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Could you tell us how we can do this? M.S. and N.H.

ANSWER: You are doing a commendable thing by heading up a Scripture Union in your school, and you should be encouraged that so many are interested. You should also bear in mind Jesus' parable of the seed and the soil. Even the Master sower didn't achieve one hundred per cent results from His sowing of the Word. We have the Biblical promise: "Be not weary in well-doing for in due season ye shall reap if ye faint not."

Christians must learn the lesson of patience and perseverence. It is human to be anxious to see results, and become impatient if we don't see them. But in the parable of the talents the rewards were distributed, not in ratio to the results, but according to faithfulness. He said: "Thou hast been faithful in a few things, I will make you ruler over many." Betty Elliot has seen few converts among the Aucas, but her dedication to Christ has been in inspiration to Christians everywhere. Be faithful in the place where God has put you, and He will enlarge your sphere of usefulness when the time comes.

Architect's Model

Pictured here is a model of new educational building and sanctuary for which plans are now being studied by congregation and committees of the First Presbyterian Church.

Presbyterian Church Plans New Building

Plans to build a new church educational building and sanctuary for the First Presbyterian Church here have been formulated and approved and money is now being raised to make the plans a reality, Dr. W. H. McFadden, pastor, announced today.

He said the general plan for the educational building had been accepted and that the contemporary Gothic sanctuary, along with other styles, was being considered by the building committee of the church.

The First Presbyterian Church will erect its new building on a 6½ acre lot bound by Royal and Stubbs Streets and by 11th and 14th Streets. The large acreage will enable the church to provide ample parking space, outdoor recreational facilities, and beautifully designed courts.

The Educational Building will contain the latest equipment and planning for the best possible Christian teachings. Separate departments are planned for each age. The complete building program will also contain a chapel, an administrative wing, and a sanctuary whic is shown in the model above as contemporary Gothic.

The project was designed by the firm of Rivers and Heuer, architechs. The congregation of the church appointed finance and building committee to consumate its building program in the near future.

Officials In Washington Hold Retreat

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Shortly before 5 o'clock last Friday afternoon, four officials of the U. S. State Department left their offices in Washington, got into a car and drove to a secluded old house on the banks of the Potomac about 10 miles south of the city.

They were joined there by similar groups from the Defense Department, Congress and other government agencies—20 men in all. They spent the entire week end in the old house.

A spy peeking through the unguarded windows could have seen them engaged in long, earnest conversations. But if a foreign agent did get wind of this rendezvous, he can relax.

The government officials were not talking about high strategy. They were talking about the Christian faith and its relevance to their lives. Their meeting was a "retreat" conducted by the noted Quaker philosopher, Dr. Elton Trueblood.

Week-end retreats for laymen are a relatively new and increasingly important aspect of U. S. religious life. More than 1,000 organized retreats were conducted in this country last year. And the movement is growing so rapidly the number easily may double this year.

This trend is heartening to Dr. Trueblood, former religious director of the U.S. Information Agency who now serves as professor of philosophy at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.

"The retreat movement is one of the most genuine features of the current religious revival," he said in an interview. "It is capturing the interest of laymen from coast to coast. It seems to meet a deeply felt need of contemporary Chrstians."

Trueblood pointed out that retreats are not a modern invention. Jesus conducted frequent retreats for his disciples. He taught that even good works, such as healing the sick, must be laid aside occasionally to withdraw from the world for a period of prayer, study and meditation.

Modern Christians, especially men and women who are carrying heavy responsibilities, particularly need this kind of spiritual refreshment according to Trueblood.

"People today are so caught up in the immediacies of life that they have little chance to reflect on the ultimates," he said. "They need to get away from everyday pressures — from home and business and the telephone — long enough to take their bearings.

"The purpose of a retreat is to deepen your life both intellectually and spiritually so that you can go back and perform your daily work more adequately. It gives you a chance to see who you are and where you are going, and why."

Africa Theme At Christian Mission School

A capacity attendance at the "School of Missions" now in progress, at the First Christian Church, St. John and Oak Sts. voted last Sunday evening at send all offerings from the school to the "Albert Schweitzer" Hospital, on the Island of Haiti. This is to be the Missionary project of the 'School of Missions' in which all may have a share.

'Africa' will be the theme for this Sunday evening.

A film entitled "Mongonga" showing the work of Dr. John Ross in the Belgian Congo will be shown, Dr. Ross spoke at the church recently and is doing a wonderful work as a medical missionary in Africa.

The Mission School, now in the fifth week, meets each Sunday evening for a two hour session. There is a period of good fellowship when a snack supper is served. There are classes in Missionary instruction for all age groups; an assembly, when a film is shown, concerning the work of the Christian Church on Foreign Mission fields. A brief worship and communion service conclude the interesting Family program.

Gordon Avenue Methodists To Hold Roll Call

A church roll call and homecoming will highlight today's activities at Gordon Avenue Methodist Church according to the minister, the Rev. W. M. Allen.

All present and former members of the church are urged to attend and register, the minister said.

A gift will be presented to the oldest charter member of the church, the newest member and the family with the most children present.

Mrs. Ferrington, chairman of the day's special events, said those attending the morning worship services should bring a covered dish and take part in the noon meal.

New Arizona Town Frowns On Baubles

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP)—Frivolities like liquor, lipstick, tobacco and ornate jewelry are forbidden to residents of southern Arizona's newest community.

But nevertheless Miracle Valley, founded only last summer as a "City of God" and a ministerial training ground, is growing rapidly.

Last October, the little settlement in Cochise County, 15 miles west of Bisbee, had a population of about 150. Now there are some 300 residents and newcomers are arriving weekly.

More than one-fourth of the residents are students who, upon completion of their training, will be expected to go forth and preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ under A. A. Allen, the controversial revivalist-faith healer who founded Miracle Valley.

Allen is head of A. A. Allen Revivals, Inc., of Dallas, Tex., and has a nationwide reputation for his tent meetings.

An eloquent and highly vocal evangelist, Allen claims that, through the intercession of God, he has cured many sick and restored a number of crippled persons at his spirited revivals.

Miracle Valley sprawls over some 2,400 acres of range land not far from the Mexican border near the old cattle town of Hereford.

Half the land was a gift from Urban Leindecker, a rancher-cowboy who now lives in a trailer in Mircle Valley and works for the betterment of the community.

T. K. McELHINNEY

Presbyterian Group Names New Minister

Mr. Thomas K. McElhinney, a student at Austin Theological Seminary, will fill the pulpit for the College Presbyterian Group at the nine o'clock services today.

Born in Iowa in 1934, Mr. McElhinney has made his home in New Orleans since 1939. He graduated from Tulane University in 1955. After serving in the Navy for two years, he entered Austin Seminary in 1957.

At the seminary, Mr. McElhinney is a member of the Mission's Committee and this year is serving as editor of the Student Theological Journal, a publication for student writing on subjects related primarily to theology. During his first year he worked in the Sunday School of an Austin church, and presently he preaches on week - ends in area churches. Last summer he served as the Student Assistant pastor of the Union Church of Monterrey, Mexico, a church sponsored by the National Council of Churches for Americans living in Mexico.

Mr. McElhinney is the husband of the former Alice Lewis of New Orleans and Natchez, Mississippi.

This young Christian worker will serve in the college area of Monroe during the summer of 1959, having been employed by the Home Mission Committee of Red River Presbytery. The public is invited to all services.

Church Of God Slates Revival

The Rev. Ray Elders will be the evangelist at a revival opening today at the First Church of God, Monroe, according to the pastor, Rev. Carl Owens.

The evangelist, a native of Hickman, Kentucky, will conduct services each evening at 7:30 at the church through May 10.

The pastor and evangelist extended an invitation to the public to attend the services.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: My friend and I are both Christians. At our school we have a Scripture Union which my friend started. We now have a good crowd, but as far as we know only three of us are converted. We would very much like to lead others to our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Could you tell us how we can do this? M.S. and N.H.

ANSWER: You are doing a commendable thing by heading up a Scripture Union in your school, and you should be encouraged that so many are interested. You should also bear in mind Jesus' parable of the seed and the soil. Even the Master sower didn't achieve one hundred per cent results from His sowing of the Word. We have the Biblical promise: "Be not weary in well-doing for in due season ye shall reap if ye faint not."

Christians must learn the lesson of patience and perseverence. It is human to be anxious to see results, and become impatient if we don't see them. But in the parable of the talents the rewards were distributed, not in ratio to the results, but according to faithfulness. He said: "Thou hast been faithful in a few things, I will make you ruler over many." Betty Elliot has seen few converts among the Aucas, but her dedication to Christ has been in inspiration to Christians everywhere. Be faithful in the place where God has put you, and He will enlarge your sphere of usefulness when the time comes.

Dahlias Fine For Blossoms

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

From the gardener's standpoint, a plant of one of the fine varieties of dahlias is a good investment. Few flowering plants will provide more blossoms in a single season. The tall stalks and handsome foliage make a fine accent in a perennial bed or even on the lawn. There are so few summer flowering shrubs that dahlias and other large flowering plants like the crinums are being grown, more and more, in with the spireas these days.

AS SHRUBS

Dahlias can take the place of shrubs for people who have just moved into a bare new place with no planting. Even a few of these tuberous rooted perennials will fill up space and provide fine flowers to cut right away. Do not plant too many, however; they take a lot of room later on when you do plant shrubbery.

When you look at a dahlia, you are looking at one of the really elite among cultivated plants. It has been admired since before Columbus' visit to the New World. The Europeans did not hear about it till 1615 when a book appeared about the plants of New Spain. It was not till 1789 that Vincenzo Cervantes sent some seeds to the Royal Botanic Garden at Madrid. In those days, the monks knew more about plants than other people so it is not surprising to find that the director of the Botanic Garden was the Abbe Cavanilles. The seeds of the new plant came up and flowered in a year or so, and he named it in honor of a Swedish botanist, Andreas Dahl.

As soon as the news got around about the Dahlia, the English, the French and the Germans began to cultivate it and to develop new kinds from the original three that came from the first seeds. In the meantime, the famous Baron Humboldt, German naturalist and statesman had sent more seeds from Mexico. The French, in an effort to beat the Spanish to the cultivation of the cochineal insect, a strange little bug which provided a pink dye, had sent one of their explorers to Mexico, and he had also admired the Dahlia and sent home seeds. So the Dahlia was developed into all sorts of amazing shapes and color combinations.

Until the beginning of this century, however, the Dahlia was mostly a florist's and fancier's flower. It is amusing that the English jumped the gun and celebrated the 100th anniversary of the Dahlia in England ten years before it was due! The huge flowers fitted right into the decorations at the big world's fair at The Crystal Palace in 1889. Later on, they discovered that it was a printer's error that had done them wrong.

When gardeners took over the Dahlia for themselves, there were so many new varieties advertised that The Royal Horticultural Society of England had to hold a conference and straighten it all out. Since then, many new types have come into being. Today, one catalogue says, "The Dahlias of yesterday were beautiful, the dahlias of today are divine, but the dahlias of the future no one knows"!

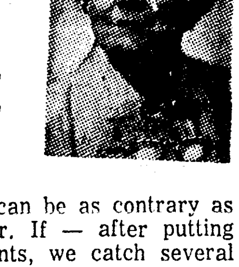
THE HOME SHIFT

Homemakers Observe Week



By MILDRED SWIFT

Nearly 7 million homemakers will observe the 14th National Home Demonstration Week from May 3 to 9. Most of these women live on farms and in rural nonfarm areas. Others live in towns and cities. Some are young, some older. Some newly married, others have children and even grandchildren. But all are eager to become more efficient homemakers and better citizens, which is a long range goal of the home demonstration program.

Home Demonstration work is an educational program in better homemaking planned by and for homemakers, and conducted cooperatively by the Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the State land-grant colleges and parish and city governments. Through it, families learn to apply the latest results of home economics research.

PRETTY!

The Confederate jasmine certainly makes a showing when it blooms. It's so fragrant, too This is one of our few evergreen blooming vines. It's a fairly fast grower and needs a little help to get started up or around the post or tree. It will grow in almost dense shade but prefers some sun. It will do fairly well in very hot sun too.

Last winter this vine looked as though it was pretty badly burned by the freeze. However, well established plants have put out leaves and are blooming.

CONTRARY

It sounds as though the Confederate Jasmine is a nice tempered little plant that gives us no trouble. But it can be as contrary as the oleander. If — after putting out the plants, we catch several warm winters, they grow off fast. But — while they're small if we have cold such as last winter, they freeze to the ground and have to come back out from the root.

This is discouraging. I saw one gardener try for four years to get a Confederate Jasmine to cover a trellis. Finally she was discouraged and planted an annual vine.

Several gardeners in this area have tried unsuccessfully for years to grow oleanders. The large plants in town got a good start when we had those three warm winters. You remember one winter was so warm the elephant ears didn't even freeze.

GARDENING

The Lady Banksia Rose was never so gorgeous. I have a granddaddy gray beard growing beside this rose and the effect was startlingly beautiful. When the wisteria was blooming in the tree over the two, I could hardly leave home.

Grancy gray beard, often called Granddaddy gray beard is truly named. The blooms look like a beard. They grow in our woods, but please don't transplant them. They're so pretty there. The plants are not too expensive. Their misty blooms are so gorgeous.

There was such a gorgeous grancey gray beard in Mrs. Ray Rinehart's yard, 807 Walnut and another on the corner of North Third and K Street.

IT'S TIME TO

Yes, time to divide and reset the bearded iris, just as soon as they quit blooming. There's another time too, in August when they're dormant. There's a time in between when they're setting bud and shouldn't be disturbed. I find if they're reset in the spring when we're having rains, they get off to a better start.

You remember, I'm sure, to work a handful if bonemeal in the soil when you're setting the iris, and to plant the rhizone very shallow. The big old parent rhizone can be discarded. It's served its day. First, of course, carefully remove any rooted plants from this.

If you haven't divided your violets, you can still do this job. They like some of that well decomposed humus from the compost heap. Or — or and — a mixture of cotton seed meal and bonemeal.

You can put out your chrysanthemum plants now on up into June. The idea in setting mum plants late is to shorten their growing season so they won't become unmanageable. Growing this plant from cuttings is better because they are less likely to be diseased than those grown from dividing old plants. Cuttings are supposed to make more vigorous plants, too.

LAWN TROUBLES

It seems the brown patch, chinch bug and others are trying to kill the St. Augustine grass. A mixture of terrachlor and DDT, sprayed on the lawn should take care of this. The feed and seed stores sell this mixture.

When I say this insecticide should take care of the trouble, remember this: By the time you see the grass dying your lawn is pretty well infected. No insecticide is going to work magic. The grass is dead. Period. You know how long it takes to get St. Augustine started again. The insecticide will take care of the disease and insects, if you spray it on with force, or sprinkle it on and wet down with a force. But — the insecticide does not replace the grass. You'll have to do that.

Some people have become discouraged with St. Augustine since the advent of these pests. Several are planting carpet grass seed. These can be purchased locally. Some like to mix these with white clover.

Carpet grass has a coarser blade than Bermuda and does not make so smooth a lawn. Both grasses require sun. Bermuda makes a nice lawn if you don't mind fighting it from your plants, and trees for the rest of your life. The two seed sell for about the same, require the same amount to get a good stand and take about the same length of time to germinate.

Whatever kind of lawn you have fertilize unless you have already done this. If you can get well decomposed barnyard fertilizer, this is wonderful for spreading over the lawn. Or use 8-8-8 or one of the non - burn fertilizers that cost a little more. Your garden is just like your body — if it is healthy and well fed, diseases just don't do the damage they do to a starved body or plant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Next time you're having a large number of guests in for the evening, place a bowl of vinegar in some inconspicuous place in the room. You will find the air will remain clean and fresh smelling in spite of heavy tobacco smoke.

For a quick birthday cake (inexpensive too), bake your favorite cake and cover with frosting. Any shape will be all right. In the center of the cake place a candy cane. From this tie tiny ribbons and take each one out to the edge of the cake. On the edge put a row of animal crackers.

STYLE NOTES

For evening, you might want to try this trick — wear ear clips in your hair. In Paris, the loveliest ear clips are the ones worn clipped into the hair just above the temples, instead of on the ear lobes.

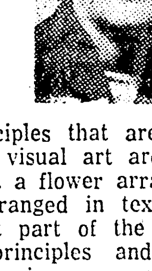
Women love to copy styles from the men. The return of the derby points this up. The modern derbies for women are very feminine and far from "horsey." The newest versions have a soft and continental look.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All nextweek the home economist for the National Livestock and Meat Board will give you food preparation programs. Don't miss these. She is a national authority on meats and you'll learn lots of new ideas. See you next Sunday.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Courses In Arranging



By MARY JARDINE

The creative art of flower arranging has rapidly become part of our American way of life. This subject has great appeal to beauty-conscious people of all ages. Classes in arrangement are given in college departments of art, landscape design, forestry, horticulture and home economics as well as in some high and elementary schools. Garden club members are serious students of the art of flower arrangement.

Recently at a flower show a fine musician remarked to me, "Seeing these beautiful arrangements is such a wonderful emotional experience, I feel unlifted as though I were listening to wonderful music or looking at fine paintings". One of the main objectives of flower shows is the aesthetic and emotional appeal and the other is educating the public in growing finer flowers and plants.

NEW BOOK

Louisiana's own Anna Hong Rutt has written a book that will appeal to all students in the flower arranging field. Recently published by MacMillan Co. the title is "The Art of Flower and Foliage Arrangement." As Mrs. Rutt herself points out "Because there are established principles and elements to understand, those who practice flower arrangement first need to study".

The book explains perceptively how the principles that are followed in any visual art are the best tools that a flower arranger can have. Arranged in textbook style the first part of the book covers art principles and elements. There is an excellent chapter on Period arrangements. All types of arrangements are covered including arrangements for the home, church, club. Christmas Decorations. Under the Making of Flower Arrangements there are chapters on preparation of materials, containers, mechanics and directions for making the designs. Exhibiting and judging in flower show is also covered.

School children will be encouraged and aided through her chapter on Arrangements by juniors. The book is designed to help the beginner and enlarge the understanding of the advanced student. We have two copies in the Garden Center Library also available at your favorite book store.

The Monroe Garden Club Flower Show "Flowers Around the World" was an outstanding success. Imagination and originality were most evident in the arrangement classes, as the exhibitors truly took us on a world tour in designs depicting each country. Design and interpretation are the things that have raised the caliber of arrangement from mere beauty to works of art.

AWARDS

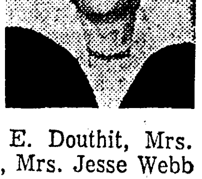
TriColor in the arrangement division went to Mrs. Luther French, reminiscent of the elegance of Madame du Pompadour.

Award of Merit went to Dr. Nat Gaston for the most outstanding cut specimen, the rose of Sterling Silver. This exquisite lavender rose, a hybrid tea created quite a stir.

Speaking of roses, why don't you try an old fashioned rose potpourri this year? It's a favorite of grandmother's time that is again becoming popular. To make one, put two quarts of rose petals (fragrant varieties) onto sheets of paper in a warm, dry room. Allow them to dry for about two days. Sprinkle them with a thin layer of table salt. Now, let your own tastes take over - you now add dried herbs like rosemary and majoram, the balsam and bay, dried flowers of other sweet-smelling plants like lavender, heliotrope, jasmine and dianthus. As you add more flowers and leaves, add more salt. When all have been dried and mixed, add the following spices: one fourth ounce each of powdered cloves, mace, cinnamon and all spice. One eighth ounce of cardamon seeds, powdered gum storax and powdered gum benzoin. These later two are sometimes difficult to find and one ounce of orris root will make a good substitute. Then add one ounce of violet sachet powder. Mix together thoroughly. Keep in a tight covered jar for three weeks, stirring often. It is then ready to use-with the lid slightly ajar.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Family Theme Of H. D. Week



By AUDREY DAWSON

Women of Ouachita Parish are joining the other 25,000 Louisiana Home Demonstration Club women in celebrating National Home Demonstration Week May 3-9th. The theme of the week is "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." The theme is most fitting for all progress - must begin with the family because the family is the basic unit of society. A better world in the future depends on better living in the home, good relationships in the home and other developments that help to build better citizens.

During this week we especially invite other homemakers to join one of the 24 clubs in the parish and receive the benefits of Home Demonstration work. This week, the clubs will pay tribute to the organization through club gatherings, displays of Home Demonstration work in store windows, radio broadcasts, tours and etc.

We surely appreciate the nice letter of congratulations and best wishes on our celebration of National Home Demonstration Club Week from Frances Kelso, of the Home Economics department of Northeast State College.

If you want to know more about Home Demonstration work in Ouachita Parish, call our office, FA 3-2251, or better come by the office, at 704 Cypress, West onroe.

SEWING WORKSHOP

Yours truly and Glenda Willet, Assoc. Home Demonstration Agent, completed the last workshop in simple sewing this week. The ones who took part are: Mrs. A. L. Wilbanks, Mrs. F. D. Howard, Mrs. L. E. Douthit, Mrs. David Mahoney, Mrs. Jesse Webb and Mrs. Milton Hale from Thrifty Homemakers Club and Mrs. W. H. Pogue, Mrs. T. C. Baird, and Mrs. W. A. Guy from Lamkin Club.

One hundred and three women in the parish have taken part in the sewing workshops this year. It has been a great pleasure for your columinst to work with this group of fine homemakers.

PATENT LEATHHER

All women consider patent leather synonymous with spring. Styles of shoes and bags vary with the years but the material, patent, has remained much the same - black and shiny but inclined toward troublesome cracking. But this year, we of the feminine role, have good news. Something happened to patent leather. It may look the same, but a new finish makes it highly resistant to cracking. The manufacturer's tests show that the new leather called, "Luxury" patent has worn 25 times as long as conventional patents without losing its luster and good appearance. It can be washed with soap and water with no harmful effects.

'DRESS REVUE'

One of the highlights of our clothing program for this year will be the parish - wide casual dress contest next Saturday at 9 o'clock at the Agricultural Building, W. Monroe.

The business houses of the Twin Cities have been most generous in furnishing awards for the top placing in each of the 5 divisions of the contest. There will be cash awards, electric mixer, electric skillet, steam iron, dress lengths and notions, dressmaker shears, and many other valuable awards. We really appreciate their most generous gifts which will surely help make our dress revue a huge success. The public is invited.

'HINTS IN SEWING'

It seems as though I can't get away from talking about sewing this week. Guess it's just the time of the year - spring, when all women turn their thoughts to sewing. Check the pressure of your presser foot when sewing wash and wear fabrics. As the surfaces tend to be more slippery and sometimes the two layers do not travel at the same speed.

To try - cut two strips at least 2 inches by 8 inches of the fabric you are using with the 2 long edges on the straight grain. Match these edges and start at the top, take one or two stitches down. Smooth out fabric keeping edges even. An inch above the bottom, pin the two layers together, placing pin crosswise. Now stitch down to pin. If there is extra material or a pleat on top this means that pressure on presser foot is too heavy. Lighten pressure by giving a slight counter clockwise turn to screw at top of presser bar. Repeat test and adjustment until the 2 layers of fabric travel evenly. A thought — A gossiper is like an old shoe on which the tongue never stays in place.

THE HOME SHIFT

Homemakers Observe Week

By MILDRED SWIFT

Nearly 7 million homemakers will observe the 14th National Home Demonstration Week from May 3 to 9. Most of these women live on farms and in rural nonfarm areas. Others live in towns and cities. Some are young, some older. Some newly married, others have children and even grandchildren. But all are eager to become more efficient homemakers and better citizens, which is a long range goal of the home demonstration program.

Home Demonstration work is an educational program in better homemaking planned by and for homemakers, and conducted cooperatively by the Extension Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the State land-grant colleges and parish and city governments. Through it, families learn to apply the latest results of home economics research.

PRETTY!

The Confederate jasmine certainly makes a showing when it blooms. It's so fragrant, too This is one of our few evergreen blooming vines. It's a fairly fast grower and needs a little help to get started up or around the post or tree. It will grow in almost dense shade but prefers some sun. It will do fairly well in very hot sun too.

Last winter this vine looked as though it was pretty badly burned by the freeze. However, well established plants have put out leaves and are blooming.

CONTRARY

It sounds as though the Confederate Jasmine is a nice tempered little plant that gives us no trouble. But it can be as contrary as the oleander. If — after putting out the plants, we catch several warm winters, they grow off fast. But — while they're small if we have cold such as last winter, they freeze to the ground and have to come back out from the root.

This is discouraging. I saw one gardener try for four years to get a Confederate Jasmine to cover a trellis. Finally she was discouraged and planted an annual vine.

Several gardeners in this area have tried unsuccessfully for years to grow oleanders. The large plants in town got a good start when we had those three warm winters. You remember one winter was so warm the elephant ears didn't even freeze.

GARDENING

The Lady Banksia Rose was never so gorgeous. I have a granddaddy gray beard growing beside this rose and the effect was startlingly beautiful. When the wisteria was blooming in the tree over the two, I could hardly leave home.

Grancy gray beard, often called Granddaddy gray beard is truly named. The blooms look like a beard. They grow in our woods, but please don't transplant them. They're so pretty there. The plants are not too expensive. Their misty blooms are so gorgeous.

There was such a gorgeous grancey gray beard in Mrs. Ray Rinehart's yard, 807 Walnut and another on the corner of North Third and K Street.

IT'S TIME TO

Yes, time to divide and reset the bearded iris, just as soon as they quit blooming. There's another time too, in August when they're dormant. There's a time in between when they're setting bud and shouldn't be disturbed. I find if they're reset in the spring when we're having rains, they get off to a better start.

You remember, I'm sure, to work a handful if bonemeal in the soil when you're setting the iris, and to plant the rhizone very shallow. The big old parent rhizone can be discarded. It's served its day. First, of course, carefully remove any rooted plants from this.

If you haven't divided your violets, you can still do this job. They like some of that well decomposed humus from the compost heap. Or — or and — a mixture of cotton seed meal and bonemeal.

You can put out your chrysanthemum plants now on up into June. The idea in setting mum plants late is to shorten their growing season so they won't become unmanageable. Growing this plant from cuttings is better because they are less likely to be diseased than those grown from dividing old plants. Cuttings are supposed to make more vigorous plants, too.

LAWN TROUBLES

It seems the brown patch, chinch bug and others are trying to kill the St. Augustine grass. A mixture of terrachlor and DDT, sprayed on the lawn should take care of this. The feed and seed stores sell this mixture.

When I say this insecticide should take care of the trouble, remember this: By the time you see the grass dying your lawn is pretty well infected. No insecticide is going to work magic. The grass is dead. Period. You know how long it takes to get St. Augustine started again. The insecticide will take care of the disease and insects, if you spray it on with force, or sprinkle it on and wet down with a force. But — the insecticide does not replace the grass. You'll have to do that.

Some people have become discouraged with St. Augustine since the advent of these pests. Several are planting carpet grass seed. These can be purchased locally. Some like to mix these with white clover.

Carpet grass has a coarser blade than Bermuda and does not make so smooth a lawn. Both grasses require sun. Bermuda makes a nice lawn if you don't mind fighting it from your plants, and trees for the rest of your life. The two seed sell for about the same, require the same amount to get a good stand and take about the same length of time to germinate.

Whatever kind of lawn you have fertilize unless you have already done this. If you can get well decomposed barnyard fertilizer, this is wonderful for spreading over the lawn. Or use 8-8-8 or one of the non - burn fertilizers that cost a little more. Your garden is just like your body — if it is healthy and well fed, diseases just don't do the damage they do to a starved body or plant.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Next time you're having a large number of guests in for the evening, place a bowl of vinegar in some inconspicuous place in the room. You will find the air will remain clean and fresh smelling in spite of heavy tobacco smoke.

For a quick birthday cake (inexpensive too), bake your favorite cake and cover with frosting. Any shape will be all right. In the center of the cake place a candy cane. From this tie tiny ribbons and take each one out to the edge of the cake. On the edge put a row of animal crackers.

STYLE NOTES

For evening, you might want to try this trick — wear ear clips in your hair. In Paris, the loveliest ear clips are the ones worn clipped into the hair just above the temples, instead of on the ear lobes.

Women love to copy styles from the men. The return of the derby points this up. The modern derbies for women are very feminine and far from "horsey." The newest versions have a soft and continental look.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

All nextweek the home economist for the National Livestock and Meat Board will give you food preparation programs. Don't miss these. She is a national authority on meats and you'll learn lots of new ideas. See you next Sunday.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Many Courses In Arranging

By MARY JARDINE

The creative art of flower arranging has rapidly become part of our American way of life. This subject has great appeal to beauty-conscious people of all ages. Classes in arrangement are given in college departments of art, landscape design, forestry, horticulture and home economics as well as in some high and elementary schools. Garden club members are serious students of the art of flower arrangement.

Recently at a flower show a fine musician remarked to me, "Seeing these beautiful arrangements is such a wonderful emotional experience, I feel unlifted as though I were listening to wonderful music or looking at fine paintings". One of the main objectives of flower shows is the aesthetic and emotional appeal and the other is educating the public in growing finer flowers and plants.

NEW BOOK

Louisiana's own Anna Hong Rutt has written a book that will appeal to all students in the flower arranging field. Recently published by MacMillan Co. the title is "The Art of Flower and Foliage Arrangement." As Mrs. Rutt herself points out "Because there are established principles and elements to understand, those who practice flower arrangement first need to study".

The book explains perceptively how the principles that are followed in any visual art are the best tools that a flower arranger can have. Arranged in textbook style the first part of the book covers art principles and elements. There is an excellent chapter on Period arrangements. All types of arrangements are covered including arrangements for the home, church, club. Christmas Decorations. Under the Making of Flower Arrangements there are chapters on preparation of materials, containers, mechanics and directions for making the designs. Exhibiting and judging in flower show is also covered.

School children will be encouraged and aided through her chapter on Arrangements by juniors. The book is designed to help the beginner and enlarge the understanding of the advanced student. We have two copies in the Garden Center Library also available at your favorite book store.

The Monroe Garden Club Flower Show "Flowers Around the World" was an outstanding success. Imagination and originality were most evident in the arrangement classes, as the exhibitors truly took us on a world tour in designs depicting each country. Design and interpretation are the things that have raised the caliber of arrangement from mere beauty to works of art.

AWARDS

TriColor in the arrangement division went to Mrs. Luther French, reminiscent of the elegance of Madame du Pompadour.

Award of Merit went to Dr. Nat Gaston for the most outstanding cut specimen, the rose of Sterling Silver. This exquisite lavender rose, a hybrid tea created quite a stir.

Speaking of roses, why don't you try an old fashioned rose potpourri this year? It's a favorite of grandmother's time that is again becoming popular. To make one, put two quarts of rose petals (fragrant varieties) onto sheets of paper in a warm, dry room. Allow them to dry for about two days. Sprinkle them with a thin layer of table salt. Now, let your own tastes take over - you now add dried herbs like rosemary and majoram, the balsam and bay, dried flowers of other sweet-smelling plants like lavender, heliotrope, jasmine and dianthus. As you add more flowers and leaves, add more salt. When all have been dried and mixed, add the following spices: one fourth ounce each of powdered cloves, mace, cinnamon and all spice. One eighth ounce of cardamon seeds, powdered gum storax and powdered gum benzoin. These later two are sometimes difficult to find and one ounce of orris root will make a good substitute. Then add one ounce of violet sachet powder. Mix together thoroughly. Keep in a tight covered jar for three weeks, stirring often. It is then ready to use-with the lid slightly ajar.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Family Theme Of H. D. Week

By AUDREY DAWSON

Women of Ouachita Parish are joining the other 25,000 Louisiana Home Demonstration Club women in celebrating National Home Demonstration Week May 3-9th. The theme of the week is "Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World." The theme is most fitting for all progress - must begin with the family because the family is the basic unit of society. A better world in the future depends on better living in the home, good relationships in the home and other developments that help to build better citizens.

During this week we especially invite other homemakers to join one of the 24 clubs in the parish and receive the benefits of Home Demonstration work. This week, the clubs will pay tribute to the organization through club gatherings, displays of Home Demonstration work in store windows, radio broadcasts, tours and etc.

We surely appreciate the nice letter of congratulations and best wishes on our celebration of National Home Demonstration Club Week from Frances Kelso, of the Home Economics department of Northeast State College.

If you want to know more about Home Demonstration work in Ouachita Parish, call our office, FA 3-2251, or better come by the office, at 704 Cypress, West onroe.

SEWING WORKSHOP

Yours truly and Glenda Willet, Assoc. Home Demonstration Agent, completed the last workshop in simple sewing this week. The ones who took part are: Mrs. A. L. Wilbanks, Mrs. F. D. Howard, Mrs. L. E. Douthit, Mrs. David Mahoney, Mrs. Jesse Webb and Mrs. Milton Hale from Thrifty Homemakers Club and Mrs. W. H. Pogue, Mrs. T. C. Baird, and Mrs. W. A. Guy from Lamkin Club.

One hundred and three women in the parish have taken part in the sewing workshops this year. It has been a great pleasure for your columinst to work with this group of fine homemakers.

PATENT LEATHHER

All women consider patent leather synonymous with spring. Styles of shoes and bags vary with the years but the material, patent, has remained much the same - black and shiny but inclined toward troublesome cracking. But this year, we of the feminine role, have good news. Something happened to patent leather. It may look the same, but a new finish makes it highly resistant to cracking. The manufacturer's tests show that the new leather called, "Luxury" patent has worn 25 times as long as conventional patents without losing its luster and good appearance. It can be washed with soap and water with no harmful effects.

'DRESS REVUE'

One of the highlights of our clothing program for this year will be the parish - wide casual dress contest next Saturday at 9 o'clock at the Agricultural Building, W. Monroe.

The business houses of the Twin Cities have been most generous in furnishing awards for the top placing in each of the 5 divisions of the contest. There will be cash awards, electric mixer, electric skillet, steam iron, dress lengths and notions, dressmaker shears, and many other valuable awards. We really appreciate their most generous gifts which will surely help make our dress revue a huge success. The public is invited.

'HINTS IN SEWING'

It seems as though I can't get away from talking about sewing this week. Guess it's just the time of the year - spring, when all women turn their thoughts to sewing. Check the pressure of your presser foot when sewing wash and wear fabrics. As the surfaces tend to be more slippery and sometimes the two layers do not travel at the same speed.

To try - cut two strips at least 2 inches by 8 inches of the fabric you are using with the 2 long edges on the straight grain. Match these edges and start at the top, take one or two stitches down. Smooth out fabric keeping edges even. An inch above the bottom, pin the two layers together, placing pin crosswise. Now stitch down to pin. If there is extra material or a pleat on top this means that pressure on presser foot is too heavy. Lighten pressure by giving a slight counter clockwise turn to screw at top of presser bar. Repeat test and adjustment until the 2 layers of fabric travel evenly. A thought — A gossiper is like an old shoe on which the tongue never stays in place.

Auctioneer Is Master At Art

By NORMAN MOSS

LONDON (AP) — The bidding moved from one point in the auction room to another, finally reaching $616,000 — by far the highest offer ever bid for a single painting.

Auctioneer Peter Wilson, a tall, stately figure in white tie and tails, surveyed the crowd of socialites, celebrities and international art dealers with the calm of a teacher conducting a spelling bee.

This was a historic moment in the art world. The crowd held its breath.

At last, Wilson broke the tension: "Won't SOMEBODY offer any more?"

NEW RECORDS

Laughter rippled through the room and the oil painting of a boy in a red waistcoat—"Garcon Au Gilet Rouge."—by Paul Cezanne was bought for the price one would pay for a small atomic reactor.

This was the highlight of the sale last October of seven impressionist paintings from America's Goldschmidt collection, which broke all price records for paintings with its $616,000 top bid and its $2,186,000 total.

The sale catapulted modern painting into a new money bracket, helped establish London as the capital of the art dealing world, and Peter Wilson of Sotheby's as its leading auctioneer.

"That guy," said Eric Goldschmidt, still perspiring after the sale of his collection, "was as cool as a cucumber. He's just too English to be true."

LEISURE AT WORK

Wilson, 46, knows his job. He can shoot the bidding up from $500 to $5,000 in 90 seconds with leisurely flicks of his finger.

There is no sign of tension or strain. Out of the corner of his eye he sees instantly whether the buyer in the corner has upped the bidding or just brushed a fly off his nose.

Wilson believes his calm manner is good business psychology.

"At an American auction," he explains, "you've got bids being shouted out and boys running up and down the aisle and a tremendous atmosphere of excitement all over the place.

SPENDING "NORMAL"

"I don't think it's really a good thing to give a buyer the idea that it's a fantastic sum of money he's going to have to pay to get something. Let him think it's just a Normal, everyday sort of thing. "Give him the idea that it's perfectly ordinary to toss down, say, a hundred thousand sovereigns for a picture."

Wilson is the grandson of Lord Riversdale, the famous patron of the arts who married the widow of John Jacob Astor. He is the son of a socialite army officer. He was educated at Eton, favorite school for bluebloods, and at Oxford University.

He joined Sotheby's in 1936 as a sort of junior expert in their antique furniture department. Now his specialty is paintings.

Today, as well as being an auctioneer, he is the chairman of Sotheby's, said to be the biggest art dealing firm in the world.

Always in search of the biggest that's up for sale, Wilson flys to the United States an average of three times a year and to European capitals more often.

While his calm and nonchalance are ever present, he's known in the trade as a fast-moving businessman, of a kind that breaks with the staid, conservative traditions of the London art dealers.

In a typical piece of quick-off-the-mark enterprise, he flew to Cairo a few weeks after King Farouk was overthrown in 1952 to try to persuade the Egyptian authorities to let Sotheby's sell Farouk's fabulous art collection. The Egyptians had said it would be sold for the benefit of the national coffers.

Wilson looked over the whole collection and advised the Egyptians that the part made up of erotic paintings, drawings, sculptures and books could not be sold in public anywhere.

FAROUK SALE FANTASTIC

Threats of legal action by Farouk forced the Egyptians to hold the sale of the major collection in Cairo instead of London, but Sotheby's and Peter Wilson helped them organize it.

"It was the most fantastic sale I've ever had anything to do with," said Wilson.

"It was held in the Kubba Palace. A blazing hot sun was beating down. Everything was late, everything was delayed. If we did things like that here, our clients would be up in arms against us.

"Then an Egyptian army major who was running the show stood up and announced that any buyer who spent over 10,000 pounds would be allowed to see Farouk's 'erotic museum.'

"This was his idea of a bonus prize! I was horrified. I thought everybody would be furiously insulted, but they just laughed."

Humanity-Treason

THE BLACK DIARIES OF ROGER CASEMENT, With an Account of his life and Times. By Peter Singleton-Gates and Maurice Girodias. Grove. $7.50.

A loyal Englishman as well as Irishman up to World War I, when he was about 50, Casement performed distinguished services for the country which accused him of treason and executed him for it.

A third of his life was spent in Africa, and humanity in general is indebted to him beyond reckoning for his detailed exposure of the horrible brutalities inflicted on slaves in the Belgian Congo by soldiers of King Leopold II. It is one of the most shocking records left us by the Victorian 19th Century. Casement's diaries, and they parable survey among maltreated Indians of Peru.

After filling honorably some consular posts, he enlisted in the cause of Irish freedom. Landed from a German submarine at the time of the abortive Easter uprising of 1916, he was captured. Despite protests from English and Americans, he was condemned under a law half a millenium old and, the only one ever to lose his life for it, hanged.

This book contains a long drawn out account of the background plus, as the title indicates, what purport to be Casement's diaries, and they show him to be an incorrigible pervert. Never available before to the public, they were however passed around clandestinely in the hope they would deter attempts to have him reprieved. They provide a curious historical footnote of a certain significance, nothing momentous, though, and nothing to excite the salacious - minded if only because they come in a singularly amateurish and stiff book.

'Naked Maja' Opens Today At Paramount

One of the most colorful eras in European history, and that era's two most dynamic personalities — these are ingredients that have gone into "The Naked Maja," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release.

The film is set in Spain in the closing days of the 18th Century, when the empire seethed under the corrupt rule of Manuel Godoy, power behind the throne of Carlos IV and his villainous Queen Maria Luisa, played by Lea Padovani.

The central characters are Francisco Goya, one of the greatest painters the world has ever known; and Maria, 13th Duchess of Alba, known as "The most notorious woman in Spanish History."

"The Naked Maja" stars Ava Gardner as the passionate Duchess, and Anthony Franciosa as the brilliant and volatile Goya. It is a daring and realistic recreation of the tumultuous love affair that shook 18th Century Spain with its implications and intrigues.

Filmed on location in Italy in colorful Technirarma, "The Naked Maja" is a Titanus Production, produced by Goffredo Lombardo and directed by Henry Koster. Giorgio Prosperi and Norman Corwin, wrote the screen play from an original story by Talbot Jennings and Saul Guiseppe Rotunno was director of photography, and the musical score was composed and conducted by Angelo Francesco Lavagnino.

Death Is An Artist, Is Top Suspense Novel

DEATH IS AN ARTIST By Stephen Gardiner (Ives Washburn, Inc., $2.95).

Entertaining London studio life background, some lively people, and sound detection characterize this first mystery by a promising young writer who should offer much more good reading in the future.

As a friend of the family, Edward Blake was asked by glamorous Louise Chance to persuade her famous artist husband, Nick, to give her a divorce so she could marry the man she really loved. Blake, unsuccessful in this painful mission, was surprised and shocked a few days later to be brought by the police to Nick's studio to help solve his murder. Puzzled by one or two discrepancies in this apparently open-and-shut case, Blake, a former intelligence man who is willing to co-operate with the police up to a point, tells the fascinating story of how he strikes out on his own in investigations that take him to Scotland and France before he comes up with a solution worthy of O'Henry's most surprising ones.

Greenwich Village Heyday

THE IMPROPER BOHEMIANS: A Re-creation of Greenwich Village in Its Heyday. By Allen Churchill. Dutton. $5.

Looking over the distinguished company occupying the platform at National Institute of Arts and Letters ceremonies a year ago, Malcolm Cowley noticed that every single person had been at one time a resident of Greenwich Village.

It is with this persuasive observation that Churchill ends his exciting book. But to begin the name - throwing which is an amazing part of his account, he goes back to 1910, the start of the two decades of the Village's heyday. Mrs. Edward Dodge, who became the friend of the Steins in Florence and today's Mabel Dodge Luhan, lived at 23 Fifth Ave. Among those she entertained were Carl Van Vechten, Jo Davidson, Lincoln Steffens, Walter Lippman, Hutchins Hapgood, Max Eastman, Frank Harris, Margaret Sanger, Harry Kemp, Alan Seeger, Amy Lowell, Emma Goldman and big Bill Haywood.

A decade or so later, the people who lived on this "Left Bank of the United States" as Churchill rightly calls it included Sherwood Anderson, Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, Reginald Marsh, John Sloan, William Glackens, George Luks, Carl Ruggles and Edgard Varese, who lives there still.

John Reed, Mabel Dodge, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Eugene O'Neill and Maxwell Bodenheim were the denizens whose lives are told in fullest detail here, and who enjoyed or suffered crucial years in their careers in the shadow of Washington Arch and the neighborhood of Washington Square.

But it was "enjoyed" more than "suffered." Rents were cheap; they drank tea — yes, tea — and ate modestly and danced in the Mad Hatter, Crumperie, Samovar, Black Parrot, Mouse Trap, Pollywooge. And no one had inhibitions. In later years it got rougher; there would be the Village mayoress who danced nude, and the pitiable end of Maxwell Bodenheim.

Churchill describes the personal idiosyncracies, the wild parties, the love affairs, the quarrels, the accomplishments and the failures of a horde of creative and near - creative men and women. They wrote and painted, they lived and loved, they drank, danced and made merry madly. For people who knew the glamorous Village and also for unlucky people who didn't, this is the grand essential book.

Robert Frost used to argue, and no doubt still does, that the Village did not produce, it was sterile. Perhaps it was just a period of incubation. In the pages of this book you do not find Frost, Faulkner, Heminway, Wolfe, even Fitzgerald. Churchill estimates the Villages "two main contributions to American culture are to be found in the masses and in the Provincetown Players." Perhaps he might have added the Anderson - Heap Little Review which among other things kept on printing Joyce's "Ulysses" almost as fast as the post office burned it up.

Ouachita Parish Librarian

Last week I told you about a variety of new non - fiction titles which had been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. It was most interesting to see how many people asked for these books by title. Today I want to discuss some of our new fiction titles as well as non - fiction. Each day we are adding new books to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and more and more the public is helping us get the books we need. Remember that we appreciate gifts of money or books to help our book collection grow. With our increased circulation since the new library was opened, it is essential that we add more and more books.

"Theresa's Choice" by Lady Rachel Cecil is a warm attractive novel of London and county society. A very fine historical novel is "The Sword and the Promise" by Benjamin Siegel. This story is laid at the time of the Emperor Hadrian and has its setting in Greece and Rome. "Acres of Afternoon" by Babs H. Deal has its setting in an Alabama town of the present day and deals with the young people of the town.

"Danger, Marines at Work" by Robert O. Fuller is a humorous story of marines in the South Pacific area. It is not nearly as good as Brinkley's "Don't Go Near the Water," but it does have some good lines in it. "The Quality of Mercy" by Anne Miller Downes is another story of the pioneer days in North Carolina and Tennessee. It is well done and makes interesting reading. "The Third Statue" by Martin Shane will be welcomed by all who read "Twelve Girls in the Garden." It is another story of international intrigue, mixed with archaeology. "The Lion and the Rose" by Jane Oliver, is another story based on the life of Mary Queen of Scots. Miss Oliver has done a great deal of original research and has produced a fresh and inspiring story, most sympathetic to Mary.

"The Wilderness" by Carter A. Vaughan is a novel of the French and Indian war of 1745 and has its setting in New England. "The Hours Before Dawn" by Celia Fremlin is an exciting story of suspense with the setting in London. It is one which will appeal especially to young mothers. "Tales of the Caribbean" is the title of Garland Roark's new book. It is especially well done and is well worth reading. "The Firey Night" by Joan Vatsej is a rich satisfying novel set in Egypt during the turbulent, complex time just before King Farouk's ouster. Novels of present day Egypt are rare and this one will fill a definite place. An interesting mystery story is "Beauty Is a Beast" by Kathleen Moore Knight, while a new western is "Montana Masquerade" by Allan Vaughan Elston.

Our subject collection is growing every day and there are some very interesting new titles added this week. In the field of science we have added "Systemic Organic Chemistry" by Muldoon and Blake; "Compact Heat Exchangers" by Kays and London; "Darwin and the Darwinian Revolution" by Gertrude Himmelfarb; "Basic Organic Chemistry" by Louis F. Fieser; "Physical Chemistry" by Neil K. Adam and "Chemical Dictionary" by Ingo Hackch. In the field of social science new books are: "The Clubwoman's Entertainment Book" by Lawrence Brings; "What We Are For" by Arthur Larsen; "The Charm of Politics" by R. H. S. Crossman; "The American High School Today" by James B. Conant; "Cities in the motor Age" by Wilfred Owen and "A Primer for Profit in the Stock Market" by Harry Kahn, Jr.

New biographies are "The Last Days of Lincoln" by Mark Van Doren; "The Babe and I" by Mrs. Babe Ruth; "Made de Lafayette" by Constance Wright and "Conversations with Toscanini" by B. H. Hagen.

Point Of View Subject 5 Men, One Woman

POINT OF VIEW. By W. Somerset Maugham. Doubleday. $4.50.

The subjects of these essays are five men, or groups, including one woman not made very welcome: Goethe; an Indian Swami named Maharshi; English Archbishop John Tillotson; Maupassant, Kipling, James, Chekhov and Katherine Mansfield as short story writers; and a trio of French journalists, Jules Renard, Paul Leautaud and the two inseparable Goncourt brothers Jules and Edmond.

In one essay Maugham remarks that fiction requires not necessarily outstanding intelligence, but only a special kind of intelligence, a creative bent, a knack. With a high order of intelligence a man knows too much to take sides, to commit himself, to allow the heart to be too intimately engaged. Maugham has just this type of intelligence, aloof, remote, almost unfriendly, and maybe it's a handicap to the novelist or short story writer in him but it's a wonderful boon to the essayist. You may not agree with him; you may think less of "The Sorrows of Werther," or quite a lot more of Mansfield — whose stories were never Maugham's kind. But nevertheless it is Maugham's comments and reflections which alone, whether or not you approve, give this book its flavor — never so harsh as to be acid or cynical, never so loving as to be purely Christian. I would think Maugham had been trained not to be a doctor but a surgeon, for this is the cold, clean, merciless but salutary probing of the operating room, and it is fascinating.

Maugham tells his publisher this is his last book. Prima donnas can change their minds; and if he does, I would prefer it to be nonfiction.

BROADWAY

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some of the more ambitious plans for the next Broadway season already are well under way.

Mary Martin and Sir John Gielgud are a couple of the stars involved whose mere presence will set the customers to clamoring for tickets long before their vehicles reach the stage.

Miss Martin, currently lolling on her Brazilian plantation after a strenuous road season and two TV spectaculars in one day, is set for "The Sound of Music." This will have the music of Richard Rodgers, the lyrics of Oscar Hammerstein and a libretto by the celebrated team of Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse. That line-up is about as top-drawer as you can get.

Sir John, who bowled over everyone this season with a brief local engagement, after a long tour, in his Shakespearean "readings," which he called "The Ages of Man," will appear in and direct "Much Ado About Nothing."

He will put this production together in the summer for the Cambridge Drama Festival in Boston, opening Aug. 24. An eight-week stand in New York is scheduled to begin Sept. 14. "Much Ado" was one of the star's great Shakespearean triumphs in Britain seven years ago, but he has never done it here.

Sir John will play Benedick and Margaret Leighton will be Beatrice. A few British actors will be brought over, but most of the cast will consist of Americans.

"The Sound of Music" will be Miss Martin's second starring effort in a work written by Rodgers and Hammerstein. The first, of course, was the fabulously successful "South Pacific." Also, she toured for more than a year in "Annie Get Your Gun," which they produced but did not write.

The new work is based on the real - life story of the famous Trapp singing family of Austria. Those who are familiar with the material call it a "great love story." Rehearsals are scheduled to start Sept. 3, which means the New York until late in November at the earliest.

Another major talent committed to next season is Peter Ustinov. He will star in and direct a revised version of an old play of his, "Paris Not So Gay." The original version was done in Britain some years back. It is an ironic comedy about the Trojan War's Paris.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

Completion of a one-week run of "Detective Story" at the Monroe Little Theatre and a performance of "Magnificent Obsession" by a cast of Northeast students under the direction of George Brian highlighted a late flurry of lively arts on the local scene last week.

The final concert of the Twin City Symphony is scheduled for Thursday. Conductor Harry Lemert has announced the performance will feature members of the all - city student string orchestra.

The spring membership campaign for the Crossett Community Concert Association wound up assuring three concerts for the 1959-60 season, according to E. M. Godat, president.

ON SCHEDULE

Scheduled to appear in Crossett are the Hunter Dramatic Chorus; the Medleys, duo-pianists, and the St. Louis Trio, an instrumental ensemble. This marks the first report of a concert organization in the area which has made its bookings for the coming season. Remaining to be heard from are Monroe - West Monroe, Ruston and Alexandria.

Financing orchestras and opera companies has long been a problem in some localities. Aside from the "straight" support of patrons, the voice of Jack Benny's violin has — in its own way — made sweet music for orchestral boards of directors in Kansas City, New Orleans and Washington, D. C., to name only a few cities.

A firm believer in America's private enterprise system, Benny doesn't throw his fiddling away. In the last mentioned city, his concert raised $41,600 for the orchestra's sustaining fund. And knowing about Benny's violin technique from his television appearances, we can say with certainty that his audiences paid through the ears as well as the pocket book. But who is going to question a performer who can produce notes stamped "paid" from notes which may range from "sour" to "slightly fermented" on the magic scale of tonal color?

MUSIC WEEK

Federated Women's music clubs throughout the nation this week will observe National Music Week. It will be recalled last week's column cited the national meeting of this federation as accurately establishing the death of "rock 'n roll." Locally, the Musical Coterie, the Opera Guild and the Fine Arts club have planned special musical programs to commemorate the week. It might be added that the state organization has a keen eye for the future in that it provides a nationally established proving ground for young performers and composers in the musical field. A young musician placing in the state competitions as set up by the federated clubs can consider himself "in the game" for more serious musical study or perhaps the professional field.

IGOR STILL EAGER

Concert baritone Igor Gorin, who appeared in Monroe several years ago on the Community Concerts bill of fare, created a sensation in New Orleans in the title role of the opera "Rigoletto."

While one reviewer pointed to his success in the part as "a surprise," audiences who have watched Gorin's career since he appeared as a singing barber in one of the Marx Brothers' movies (he carefully avoids mention of the date) would not be so taken aback.

In sharp contrast to many of the more unstable operatic stars — who seem to surprise even themselves at times — Igor Gorin continues to push patiently towards perfection. Constant study keeps him reminded that he has not already reached the top. With such a philosophy, it is no wonder that Igor Gorin was hailed as "the finest Rigoletto New Orleans has seen."

HOW OLD IS ENOUGH?

Folks shopping for gifts often ask us how old a boy or girl has to be to enjoy a camera.

Well, that's always a tough question to answer since so much depends on the youngster. But as a rule, a ten-or eleven-year-old can have a whale of a good time with an inexpensive Brownie snapshot camera.

And by the way — if you're sending a youngster off to camp this summer, a new Brownie Camera and a supply of film make a wonderful going-away present. But it's a present you should give well in advance. That way, your youngster can practice shooting a roll or two of film before he leaves. Then he'll be fairly sure to get the pictures he wants at camp.

A good rugged camera for camp life . . . or the neighborhood . . . is the Brownie Star in any of its three models: The Starlet, the Starflash, and the Starflex.

A youngster who can tune a TV set will have no trouble at all mastering the use of a Brownie Star Camera. It's just a matter of aiming and shooting. (Maybe you'll borrow the Star some afternoon because it takes color slides and color snapshots, as well as black-and-whites.)

Prices for the Star Cameras are in the little league. As little as $5.95 starts a youngster off on a hobby that can well last a lifetime.

Auctioneer Is Master At Art

By NORMAN MOSS

LONDON (AP) — The bidding moved from one point in the auction room to another, finally reaching $616,000 — by far the highest offer ever bid for a single painting.

Auctioneer Peter Wilson, a tall, stately figure in white tie and tails, surveyed the crowd of socialites, celebrities and international art dealers with the calm of a teacher conducting a spelling bee.

This was a historic moment in the art world. The crowd held its breath.

At last, Wilson broke the tension: "Won't SOMEBODY offer any more?"

NEW RECORDS

Laughter rippled through the room and the oil painting of a boy in a red waistcoat—"Garcon Au Gilet Rouge."—by Paul Cezanne was bought for the price one would pay for a small atomic reactor.

This was the highlight of the sale last October of seven impressionist paintings from America's Goldschmidt collection, which broke all price records for paintings with its $616,000 top bid and its $2,186,000 total.

The sale catapulted modern painting into a new money bracket, helped establish London as the capital of the art dealing world, and Peter Wilson of Sotheby's as its leading auctioneer.

"That guy," said Eric Goldschmidt, still perspiring after the sale of his collection, "was as cool as a cucumber. He's just too English to be true."

LEISURE AT WORK

Wilson, 46, knows his job. He can shoot the bidding up from $500 to $5,000 in 90 seconds with leisurely flicks of his finger.

There is no sign of tension or strain. Out of the corner of his eye he sees instantly whether the buyer in the corner has upped the bidding or just brushed a fly off his nose.

Wilson believes his calm manner is good business psychology.

"At an American auction," he explains, "you've got bids being shouted out and boys running up and down the aisle and a tremendous atmosphere of excitement all over the place.

SPENDING "NORMAL"

"I don't think it's really a good thing to give a buyer the idea that it's a fantastic sum of money he's going to have to pay to get something. Let him think it's just a Normal, everyday sort of thing. "Give him the idea that it's perfectly ordinary to toss down, say, a hundred thousand sovereigns for a picture."

Wilson is the grandson of Lord Riversdale, the famous patron of the arts who married the widow of John Jacob Astor. He is the son of a socialite army officer. He was educated at Eton, favorite school for bluebloods, and at Oxford University.

He joined Sotheby's in 1936 as a sort of junior expert in their antique furniture department. Now his specialty is paintings.

Today, as well as being an auctioneer, he is the chairman of Sotheby's, said to be the biggest art dealing firm in the world.

Always in search of the biggest that's up for sale, Wilson flys to the United States an average of three times a year and to European capitals more often.

While his calm and nonchalance are ever present, he's known in the trade as a fast-moving businessman, of a kind that breaks with the staid, conservative traditions of the London art dealers.

In a typical piece of quick-off-the-mark enterprise, he flew to Cairo a few weeks after King Farouk was overthrown in 1952 to try to persuade the Egyptian authorities to let Sotheby's sell Farouk's fabulous art collection. The Egyptians had said it would be sold for the benefit of the national coffers.

Wilson looked over the whole collection and advised the Egyptians that the part made up of erotic paintings, drawings, sculptures and books could not be sold in public anywhere.

FAROUK SALE FANTASTIC

Threats of legal action by Farouk forced the Egyptians to hold the sale of the major collection in Cairo instead of London, but Sotheby's and Peter Wilson helped them organize it.

"It was the most fantastic sale I've ever had anything to do with," said Wilson.

"It was held in the Kubba Palace. A blazing hot sun was beating down. Everything was late, everything was delayed. If we did things like that here, our clients would be up in arms against us.

"Then an Egyptian army major who was running the show stood up and announced that any buyer who spent over 10,000 pounds would be allowed to see Farouk's 'erotic museum.'

"This was his idea of a bonus prize! I was horrified. I thought everybody would be furiously insulted, but they just laughed."

-THE ARTS-

Greenwich Village Heyday

THE IMPROPER BOHEMIANS: A Re-creation of Greenwich Village in Its Heyday. By Allen Churchill. Dutton. $5.

Looking over the distinguished company occupying the platform at National Institute of Arts and Letters ceremonies a year ago, Malcolm Cowley noticed that every single person had been at one time a resident of Greenwich Village.

It is with this persuasive observation that Churchill ends his exciting book. But to begin the name - throwing which is an amazing part of his account, he goes back to 1910, the start of the two decades of the Village's heyday. Mrs. Edward Dodge, who became the friend of the Steins in Florence and today's Mabel Dodge Luhan, lived at 23 Fifth Ave. Among those she entertained were Carl Van Vechten, Jo Davidson, Lincoln Steffens, Walter Lippman, Hutchins Hapgood, Max Eastman, Frank Harris, Margaret Sanger, Harry Kemp, Alan Seeger, Amy Lowell, Emma Goldman and big Bill Haywood.

A decade or so later, the people who lived on this "Left Bank of the United States" as Churchill rightly calls it included Sherwood Anderson, Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, Reginald Marsh, John Sloan, William Glackens, George Luks, Carl Ruggles and Edgard Varese, who lives there still.

John Reed, Mabel Dodge, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Eugene O'Neill and Maxwell Bodenheim were the denizens whose lives are told in fullest detail here, and who enjoyed or suffered crucial years in their careers in the shadow of Washington Arch and the neighborhood of Washington Square.

But it was "enjoyed" more than "suffered." Rents were cheap; they drank tea — yes, tea — and ate modestly and danced in the Mad Hatter, Crumperie, Samovar, Black Parrot, Mouse Trap, Pollywooge. And no one had inhibitions. In later years it got rougher; there would be the Village mayoress who danced nude, and the pitiable end of Maxwell Bodenheim.

Churchill describes the personal idiosyncracies, the wild parties, the love affairs, the quarrels, the accomplishments and the failures of a horde of creative and near - creative men and women. They wrote and painted, they lived and loved, they drank, danced and made merry madly. For people who knew the glamorous Village and also for unlucky people who didn't, this is the grand essential book.

Robert Frost used to argue, and no doubt still does, that the Village did not produce, it was sterile. Perhaps it was just a period of incubation. In the pages of this book you do not find Frost, Faulkner, Heminway, Wolfe, even Fitzgerald. Churchill estimates the Villages "two main contributions to American culture are to be found in the masses and in the Provincetown Players." Perhaps he might have added the Anderson - Heap Little Review which among other things kept on printing Joyce's "Ulysses" almost as fast as the post office burned it up.

Humanity-Treason

THE BLACK DIARIES OF ROGER CASEMENT, With an Account of his life and Times. By Peter Singleton-Gates and Maurice Girodias. Grove. $7.50.

A loyal Englishman as well as Irishman up to World War I, when he was about 50, Casement performed distinguished services for the country which accused him of treason and executed him for it.

A third of his life was spent in Africa, and humanity in general is indebted to him beyond reckoning for his detailed exposure of the horrible brutalities inflicted on slaves in the Belgian Congo by soldiers of King Leopold II. It is one of the most shocking records left us by the Victorian 19th Century. Casement's diaries, and they parable survey among maltreated Indians of Peru.

After filling honorably some consular posts, he enlisted in the cause of Irish freedom. Landed from a German submarine at the time of the abortive Easter uprising of 1916, he was captured. Despite protests from English and Americans, he was condemned under a law half a millenium old and, the only one ever to lose his life for it, hanged.

This book contains a long drawn out account of the background plus, as the title indicates, what purport to be Casement's diaries, and they show him to be an incorrigible pervert. Never available before to the public, they were however passed around clandestinely in the hope they would deter attempts to have him reprieved. They provide a curious historical footnote of a certain significance, nothing momentous, though, and nothing to excite the salacious - minded if only because they come in a singularly amateurish and stiff book.

Death Is An Artist, Is Top Suspense Novel

DEATH IS AN ARTIST By Stephen Gardiner (Ives Washburn, Inc., $2.95).

Entertaining London studio life background, some lively people, and sound detection characterize this first mystery by a promising young writer who should offer much more good reading in the future.

As a friend of the family, Edward Blake was asked by glamorous Louise Chance to persuade her famous artist husband, Nick, to give her a divorce so she could marry the man she really loved. Blake, unsuccessful in this painful mission, was surprised and shocked a few days later to be brought by the police to Nick's studio to help solve his murder. Puzzled by one or two discrepancies in this apparently open-and-shut case, Blake, a former intelligence man who is willing to co - operate with the police up to a point, tells the fascinating story of how he strikes out on his own in investigations that take him to Scotland and France before he comes up with a solution worthy of O'Henry's most surprising ones.

'Naked Maja' Opens Today At Paramount

One of the most colorful eras in European history, and that era's two most dynamic personalities — these are ingredients that have gone into "The Naked Maja," which opens today at the Paramount Theatre through United Artists release.

The film is set in Spain in the closing days of the 18th Century, when the empire seethed under the corrupt rule of Manuel Godoy, power behind the throne of Carlos IV and his villainous Queen Maria Luisa, played by Lea Padovani.

The central characters are Francisco Goya, one of the greatest painters the world has ever known; and Maria, 13th Duchess of Alba, known as "The most notorious woman in Spanish History."

"The Naked Maja" stars Ava Gardner as the passionate Duchess, and Anthony Franciosa as the brilliant and volatile Goya. It is a daring and realistic recreation of the tumultuous love affair that shook 18th Century Spain with its implications and intrigues.

Filmed on location in Italy in colorful Technirarma, "The Naked Maja" is a Titanus Production, produced by Goffredo Lombardo and directed by Henry Koster. Giorgio Prosperi and Norman Corwin, wrote the screen play from an original story by Talbot Jennings and Saul Guiseppe Rotunno was director of photography, and the musical score was composed and conducted by Angelo Francesco Lavagnino.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Variety Of New Non-Fiction Titles

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Last week I told you about a variety of new non - fiction titles which had been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. It was most interesting to see how many people asked for these books by title. Today I want to discuss some of our new fiction titles as well as non - fiction. Each day we are adding new books to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library and more and more the public is helping us get the books we need. Remember that we appreciate gifts of money or books to help our book collection grow. With our increased circulation since the new library was opened, it is essential that we add more and more books.

"Theresa's Choice" by Lady Rachel Cecil is a warm attractive novel of London and county society. A very fine historical novel is "The Sword and the Promise" by Benjamin Siegel. This story is laid at the time of the Emperor Hadrian and has its setting in Greece and Rome. "Acres of Afternoon" by Babs H. Deal has its setting in an Alabama town of the present day and deals with the young people of the town.

"Danger, Marines at Work" by Robert O. Fuller is a humorous story of marines in the South Pacific area. It is not nearly as good as Brinkley's "Don't Go Near the Water," but it does have some good lines in it. "The Quality of Mercy" by Anne Miller Downes is another story of the pioneer days in North Carolina and Tennessee. It is well done and makes interesting reading. "The Third Statue" by Martin Shane will be welcomed by all who read "Twelve Girls in the Garden." It is another story of international intrigue, mixed with archaeology. "The Lion and the Rose" by Jane Oliver, is another story based on the life of Mary Queen of Scots. Miss Oliver has done a great deal of original research and has produced a fresh and inspiring story, most sympathetic to Mary.

"The Wilderness" by Carter A. Vaughan is a novel of the French and Indian war of 1745 and has its setting in New England. "The Hours Before Dawn" by Celia Fremlin is an exciting story of suspense with the setting in London. It is one which will appeal especially to young mothers. "Tales of the Caribbean" is the title of Garland Roark's new book. It is especially well done and is well worth reading. "The Firey Night" by Joan Vatsej is a rich satisfying novel set in Egypt during the turbulent, complex time just before King Farouk's ouster. Novels of present day Egypt are rare and this one will fill a definite place. An interesting mystery story is "Beauty Is a Beast" by Kathleen Moore Knight, while a new western is "Montana Masquerade" by Allan Vaughan Elston.

Our subject collection is growing every day and there are some very interesting new titles added this week. In the field of science we have added "Systemic Organic Chemistry" by Muldoon and Blake; "Compact Heat Exchangers" by Kays and London; "Darwin and the Darwinian Revolution" by Gertrude Himmelfarb; "Basic Organic Chemistry" by Louis F. Fieser; "Physical Chemistry" by Neil K. Adam and "Chemical Dictionary" by Ingo Hackch. In the field of social science new books are: "The Clubwoman's Entertainment Book" by Lawrence Brings; "What We Are For" by Arthur Larsen; "The Charm of Politics" by R. H. S. Crossman; "The American High School Today" by James B. Conant; "Cities in the motor Age" by Wilfred Owen and "A Primer for Profit in the Stock Market" by Harry Kahn, Jr.

New biographies are "The Last Days of Lincoln" by Mark Van Doren; "The Babe and I" by Mrs. Babe Ruth; "Made de Lafayette" by Constance Wright and "Conversations with Toscanini" by B. H. Hagen.

Point Of View Subject 5 Men, One Woman

POINT OF VIEW. By W. Somerset Maugham. Doubleday. $4.50.

The subjects of these essays are five men, or groups, including one woman not made very welcome: Goethe; an Indian Swami named Maharshi; English Archbishop John Tillotson; Maupassant, Kipling, James, Chekhov and Katherine Mansfield as short story writers; and a trio of French journalists, Jules Renard, Paul Leautaud and the two inseparable Goncourt brothers Jules and Edmond.

In one essay Maugham remarks that fiction requires not necessarily outstanding intelligence, but only a special kind of intelligence, a creative bent, a knack. With a high order of intelligence a man knows too much to take sides, to commit himself, to allow the heart to be too intimately engaged. Maugham has just this type of intelligence, aloof, remote, almost unfriendly, and maybe it's a handicap to the novelist or short story writer in him but it's a wonderful boon to the essayist. You may not agree with him; you may think less of "The Sorrows of Werther," or quite a lot more of Mansfield — whose stories were never Maugham's kind. But nevertheless it is Maugham's comments and reflections which alone, whether or not you approve, give this book its flavor — never so harsh as to be acid or cynical, never so loving as to be purely Christian. I would think Maugham had been trained not to be a doctor but a surgeon, for this is the cold, clean, merciless but salutary probing of the operating room, and it is fascinating.

Maugham tells his publisher this is his last book. Prima donnas can change their minds; and if he does, I would prefer it to be nonfiction.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some of the more ambitious plans for the next Broadway season already are well under way.

Mary Martin and Sir John Gielgud are a couple of the stars involved whose mere presence will set the customers to clamoring for tickets long before their vehicles reach the stage.

Miss Martin, currently lolling on her Brazilian plantation after a strenuous road season and two TV spectaculars in one day, is set for "The Sound of Music." This will have the music of Richard Rodgers, the lyrics of Oscar Hammerstein and a libretto by the celebrated team of Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse. That line-up is about as top-drawer as you can get.

Sir John, who bowled over everyone this season with a brief local engagement, after a long tour, in his Shakespearean "readings," which he called "The Ages of Man," will appear in and direct "Much Ado About Nothing."

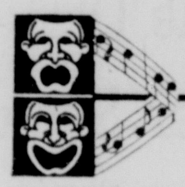
He will put this production together in the summer for the Cambridge Drama Festival in Boston, opening Aug. 24. An eight-week stand in New York is scheduled to begin Sept. 14. "Much Ado" was one of the star's great Shakespearean triumphs in Britain seven years ago, but he has never done it here.

Sir John will play Benedick and Margaret Leighton will be Beatrice. A few British actors will be brought over, but most of the cast will consist of Americans.

"The Sound of Music" will be Miss Martin's second starring effort in a work written by Rodgers and Hammerstein. The first, of course, was the fabulously successful "South Pacific." Also, she toured for more than a year in "Annie Get Your Gun," which they produced but did not write.

The new work is based on the real - life story of the famous Trapp singing family of Austria. Those who are familiar with the material call it a "great love story." Rehearsals are scheduled to start Sept. 3, which means the New York until late in November at the earliest.

Another major talent committed to next season is Peter Ustinov. He will star in and direct a revised version of an old play of his, "Paris Not So Gay." The original version was done in Britain some years back. It is an ironic comedy about the Trojan War's Paris.



RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

Completion of a one-week run of "Detective Story" at the Monroe Little Theatre and a performance of "Magnificent Obsession" by a cast of Northeast students under the direction of George Brian highlighted a late flurry of lively arts on the local scene last week.

The final concert of the Twin City Symphony is scheduled for Thursday. Conductor Harry Lemert has announced the performance will feature members of the all - city student string orchestra.

The spring membership campaign for the Crossett Community Concert Association wound up assuring three concerts for the 1959-60 season, according to E. M. Godat, president.

ON SCHEDULE

Scheduled to appear in Crossett are the Hunter Dramatic Chorus; the Medleys, duopianists, and the St. Louis Trio, an instrumental ensemble. This marks the first report of a concert organization in the area which has made its bookings for the coming season. Remaining to be heard from are Monroe - West Monroe, Ruston and Alexandria.

Financing orchestras and opera companies has long been a problem in some localities. Aside from the "straight" support of patrons, the voice of Jack Benny's violin has — in its own way — made sweet music for orchestral boards of directors in Kansas City, New Orleans and Washington, D. C., to name only a few cities.

A firm believer in America's private enterprise system, Benny doesn't throw his fiddling away. In the last mentioned city, his concert raised $41,600 for the orchestra's sustaining fund. And knowing about Benny's violin technique from his television appearances, we can say with certainty that his audiences paid through the ears as well as the pocket book. But who is going to question a performer who can produce notes stamped "paid" from notes which may range from "sour" to "slightly fermented" on the magic scale of tonal color?

MUSIC WEEK

Federated Women's music clubs throughout the nation this week will observe National Music Week. It will be recalled last week's column cited the national meeting of this federation as accurately establishing the death of "rock 'n roll." Locally, the Musical Coterie, the Opera Guild and the Fine Arts club have planned special musical programs to commemorate the week. It might be added that the state organization has a keen eye for the future in that it provides a nationally established proving ground for young performers and composers in the musical field. A young musician placing in the state competitions as set up by the federated clubs can consider himself "in the game" for more serious musical study or perhaps the professional field.

IGOR STILL EAGER

Concert baritone Igor Gorin, who appeared in Monroe several years ago on the Community Concerts bill of fare, created a sensation in New Orleans in the title role of the opera "Rigoletto."

While one reviewer pointed to his success in the part as "a surprise," audiences who have watched Gorin's career since he appeared as a singing barber in one of the Marx Brothers' movies (he carefully avoids mention of the date) would not be so taken aback.

In sharp contrast to many of the more unstable operatic stars — who seem to surprise even themselves at times — Igor Gorin continues to push patiently towards perfection. Constant study keeps him reminded that he has not already reached the top. With such a philosophy, it is no wonder that Igor Gorin was hailed as "the finest Rigoletto New Orleans has seen."

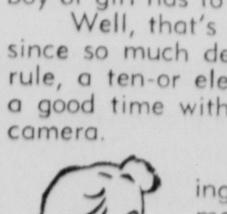
HOW OLD IS ENOUGH?

Folks shopping for gifts often ask us how old a boy or girl has to be to enjoy a camera.

Well, that's always a tough question to answer since so much depends on the youngster. But as a rule, a ten-or eleven-year-old can have a whale of a good time with an inexpensive Brownie snapshot camera.



And by the way — if you're sending a youngster off to camp this summer, a new Brownie Camera and a supply of film make a wonderful going-away present. But it's a present you should give well in advance. That way, your youngster can practice shooting a roll or two of film before he leaves. Then he'll be fairly sure to get the pictures he wants at camp.

A good rugged camera for camp life . . . or the neighborhood . . . is the Brownie Star in any of its three models: The Starlet, the Starflash, and the Starflex.

A youngster who can tune a TV set will have no trouble at all mastering the use of a Brownie Star Camera. It's just a matter of aiming and shooting. (Maybe you'll borrow the Star some afternoon because it takes color slides and color snapshots, as well as black-and-whites.)

Prices for the Star Cameras are in the little league. As little as $5.95 starts a youngster off on a hobby that can well last a lifetime.

HE IS STILL BOSS

Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Is Boss After 29 Years

By PAUL SANDERS

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—Rafael Leonidas Trujillo, aging generalissimo of this little tropical land, still seems very much the boss after nearly 29 years in power.

Some Dominicans, and foes around the Caribbean, would like to see him go and democracy established in the Dominican Republic. The country never has had a democratic system in its turbulent history, the bloodiest in Latin America before Trujillo took over.

No handpicked successor is in evidence.

Now 68, the usually soft-spoken but iron-fisted Trujillo rules by dealing out a combination of welfare, theatrics, ruthless suppression of political opposition, economic development, employment and efficient administration.

In some ways he acts like a perpetual political candidate. If there's a flood or serious fire, Trujillo is on the job dispensing relief. He is out in full dress at major celebrations.

His controlled press and radio lets Dominicans have only the news he thinks they should have. Foreign publications carrying anything remotely anti-Trujillo are suppressed.

The sunbathed republic has a population of nearly three million—almost three times what it was 30 years ago—and covers 19,333 square miles, about twice the size of Vermont.

Trujillo's propaganda machine, playing up to national pride, ceaselessly reminds the country of his record in making a once bankrupt and revolt-ridden country financially sound and prosperous by Caribbean standards. The 1958 income per capita was $242.

Trujillo's program, including his brain-washing machine, has been effective—but not entirely so.

Dissidents — their numbers and unity difficulty to ascertain — believe he has outlived his usefulnses and should get out.

To a visitor Trujillo appears to have a man-sized grip on the country, particularly among the working and peasant classes. It is among these people, two-thirds of them colored or mulatto, that the welfare programs and propaganda is most effective.

What opposition there is seems concentrated among the well-educated younger people who have been abroad and know what political freedom means. But Dominicans are hesitant to talk about politics, and Trujillo has a well-organized intelligence system keeping tab on things.

To threats of invasion by the exiles—supposedly with the help of volunteers from Cuba and Venezuela—Trujillo replied in typical fashion.

He strengthened his armed forces, implied that he might counter attack and organized an "anti-Communist foreign legion." The legion is made up largely of Dominicans. Trujillo likes to make people think all his foes are Reds or fellow travelers.

He is reputed to have an efficient army numbering around 18,000 and a good little air force by Caribbean standards.

Brother Hector, 51, was given the presidency by election in 1952, and re-elected in 1957 for another five-year term. Hector formerly commanded the National Police and also has the title of generalissimo by act of Congress.

The dictator's oldest son, 30-year-old Gen. Rafael Leonidas Trujillo Jr., who figured as a playboy in Hollywood last year, is chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Gen. Jose Garcia Trujillo, a nephew, is secretary of defense, and Col. Luis Rafael Trujillo, another nephew, secretary of war and aviation.

Back in 1918 the republic's finances and politics had been so chaotic that President Woodrow Wilson sent the Marines to occupy the country. They stayed until 1924—and produced Trujillo.

Then 27 and standing 5 feet 7 and a lithe 127 pounds, Trujillo entered the new Dominican National Guard late in 1918. The Guard was organized by the Marines to provide a "nonpolitical" army-police force.

Under President Horacio Vasquez, Trujillo rose to be commander of the National Guard, which had been named the National Police.

When Vasquez changed the rules to get himself re-elected, another revolt started. Trujillo kept his police on the sidelines. Vasquez was forced out.

In elections held Aug. 16, 1930, Trujillo, then 39, was chosen president.

Only 18 days after Trujillo took office, a vicious hurricane hit the capital. More than 1,000 persons were killed and 4,000 injured. Hundreds of flimsy dwellings were flattened.

The way Trujillo tackled disaster relief made a lasting impression on Dominicans. He declared martial law, called for help from the United States, put into effect a swift relief and rebuilding program.

There were sporadic attempts at revolt in the early years of what the Dominican Congress has labeled the "Era of Trujillo." But his political - military machine steamrollered the opposition.

HOPE TO AVERT STRIKE

Steel Pact Talks Begin Thursday

By J. ROBERT SHUBERT

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Bargainers for the United Steelworkers Union and 12 major steel producing companies will sit down in New York Tuesday to begin 1959 wage talks, outcome of which may set the direction of the nation's economy for many months.

An eventual strike is feared, but there are hopes that a peaceful solution can be found.

On the virtual eve of the talks a union spokesman told United Press International. He could make no prediction of the outcome, and a U.S. Steel Corp. executive, who asked that his name not be used, said "you could approach the executives of this company and get a bet either way—that there will be a strike, or there won't. They just don't know."

Two months ago a gathering of steel news writers, balloting seretly, voted 19 to 0 that there would be a strike. But opinion has swung since then, and now about a third are confident that there will be no steelworkers' walkout. The improved outlook appears to be based on the willingness of both sides to get an early start in the negotiations.

The task before the negotiators is to write new wage contracts to replace the three-year agreements now in effect in the bellwether steel industry. They have until midnight June 30 to do the job.

If they fail to write an agreement by that time, picket lines will go up at the gates of the steel mills from Sparrows Point, Md., to Fontana, Calif.—from Birmingham, Ala., to Chicago, Ill. The flow of steel from the furnaces, now running at a rate of almost 2,650,000 tons a week, would be cut off. A half-million basic steelworkers would be idle.

Shaping up as dominant influences in the negotiations, which traditionally set a pattern for most of the country's heavy industries, are:

—Inflation—The wage-price spiral. The union has contended that the steel industry can dip into its profits and put "a billion dollars" into the pay envelopes of its employes. The industry says any unwarranted pay boost would be inflationary.

—Automation — The replacement of men by machines. The USW has charged that although steel production is roaring back from recession levels, employment has not kept pace because of higher output per man hour. The union wants full-employment provisions in any settlement.

Heading the USW negotiating team in the crucial talks will be President David J. McDonald, 56, the Pittsburgh-born career unionist who took over the top post in the nation's second largest union when Philip Murray died in 1952.

In the time McDonald has spearheaded the USW bargaining, the average hourly earnings of steel workers have zoomed to $3.03 an hour, compared to $1.99 at the time he moved across the hall from his office as secretary-treasurer to take over Murray's desk.

No. 1 man on the industry's side of the bargaining table will be R. Conrad Cooper, executive vice president-personnel of U.S. Steel. This year will be Cooper's first in the industry's key spot. John A. Stephens, U.S. Steel vice president industrial relations, who topped the industry group in negotiations since 1943, retired last year.

Cooper, 55, a former University of Minnesota football center, will be no stranger to the proceedings. A steel executive since 1937, he was Stephens' right-hand man at the bargaining table.

In preliminary skirmishing this year, McDonald keyed his contract program to higher wages and increased employment. He has indicated that he will press for extended vacations for older employes—an extra three months every five years—to create 30,000 new jobs in the steel industry.

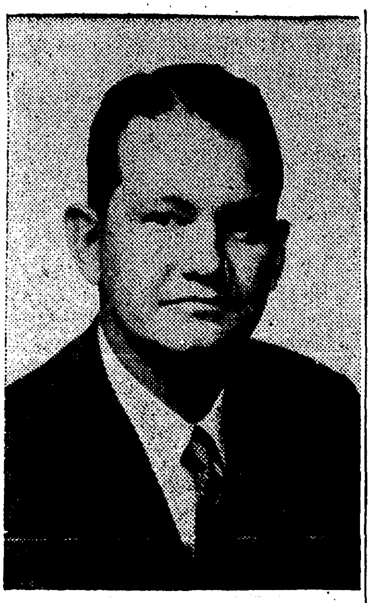
The industry has proposed that the union forego a wage increase for another year to combat inflation and promises "to exert every effort" to avoid increases in prices.

McDonald asks the companies to freeze prices and negotiate a wage increase based on the increased output of the workers. The industry states that any price freeze would violate the anti-trust laws.

ALLERGY CAUSES

SAYRE, Pa. (UPI) — Infections, emotional upsets and glandular disorders trigger most allergies, according to Dr. James M. Steele. He said many persons, undergo intensive but futile tests for a sensitizing agent when allergy is suspected.

A steel pipeline, 14 feet in diameter and 3½ miles long, carries water from a dam to a hydro - electric plant in northeastern Pennsylvania.



M'Sween To Speak

Harold B. McSween, representative to Congress from Louisiana's Eighth Congressional District, will be the featured speaker at an organizational meeting of the Louisiana Free Enterprise Association scheduled for Monroe Monday at 1:30 p.m. at the Frances Hotel. The meeting is a "business in politics" meeting of business, farm and industrial leaders in the 14 parishes of the Fifth Congressional District.

New Parker Case Negro Goes North

CHICAGO (AP) — Another Mississippi Negro questioned in the Mack Charles Parker case has shown up in Chicago.

Norman James Malachi, 36, of Lumberton, Miss., was the new arrival.

A Chicago Negro newspaper, The Defender, said Malachi left Lumberton by bus early Tuesday after a sister, who lives in Chicago, had sent money.

The Defender reported Malachi gave the same story, that he was drunk on the night of Feb. 24, when Parker was alleged to have raped the 24-year-old white woman who was in a disabled car while her husband had gone for help.

The Defender, in copyrighted story, said Malachi remembered Parker's stopping at a filling station for gas, and Malachi passed out after that. He said he got home after midnight, and that Parker took him to his home.

Another Mississippi Negro, Lee C. Underwood, 20, was brought to Chicago by Defender reporters last week, and repudiated a story that Parker told him he was going to tape a white woman the night Parker, Malachi, Underwood and two others were riding around in Parker's car. Underwood told Chicago newsmen that officers had intimidated him into making a statement incriminating Parker. Poplarville officials denied Underwood's story of intimidation.

Two days before his trial date Parker was taken from jail at Poplarville by a band of hooded men, and neither he nor his abductors have been found.

Negro To Defy Threats Against Moving In Home

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI)—A prominent Springfield Negro said Saturday that despite threats he will move into his $28,000 new home in an all-white section of Springfield.

Lindsay B. Johnson Jr., 41-year-old head of the mailing department at the Eastern States Farmers Exchange, said he received telephone threats against moving to the home, on South Branch Parkway.

A rock was hurled Friday into fresh plater of the home which will be finished in July.

Johnson is a member of the human relations committee of the Mayors' Citizens Action Commission. The group is headed by another Negro, Dr. Walter English.

Johnson said the first threats came last February when he started to build the home. Two days ago a truckload of sandstone rock was dumped on the lawn, police said Saturday they knew who did it.

Police said the last incident of this kind in Springfield occurred 10 years ago when Dr. Maceo McGoodwin was threatened when he moved into a then-new housing development. Dr. McGoodwin since has moved to another all-white neighborhood.

Half a mile from the Johnson's new home lives a Negro dentist, Dr. O. L. K. Fraser, who said he had had no trouble.

Iraq Is Alarmed By Infiltrators

CAIRO (AP)—A new invasion of Iraq—probably on a minor scale—was reported under way Saturday.

The radio in Iraq's capital, Baghdad, reported the presence of infiltrators in Iraqi. The broadcast called on the people to assist the popular resistance forces in catching foreign infiltrators.

The radio blamed the United Arab Republic, saying it had sent in foreigners in cooperation with "American imperialism."

FOR RADIATION SICKNESS

Drugs Creating Partial Shield

NEW YORK (AP)—New drugs are creating a partial shield against radiation sickness hazards of the atomic age.

They can cleanse the body of radioactive plutonium, one material used or produced in atomic power plants and some nuclear weapons.

When breathed in or swallowed, plutonium tends to concentrate in bones and other tissues. Its radiations may cause radiation sickness, or cancers, or even death through damage to body cells depending on size of the dose of plutonium.

Plutonium conceivably might be released and spread through some accident to an atomic power plant despite strict safety regulations.

The drugs, known as chelating agents, have an affinity for plutonium and some other metallic atoms. They seize plutonium and conduct it out of the body through normal elimination precesses.

One of the new drugs is nicknamed DTPA. At the Hanford, Wash., laboratories operated by General Electric Co. for the Atomic Enery Commission, Dr. V. H. Smith injected it into rats which had been given plutonium.

The drug reduced by 90 per cent the amount of plutonium deposited in the animals' bones, he reports.

DTPA also has some effect, but not so great, in removing plutonium from the bones and soft tissues after it has become firmly bound to the tissues, Dr. Smith adds.

At the AEC's Argonne National Laboratory near Chicago, Dr. Jack Schubert and associates find that DTPA and another drug, BAETA, can remove some of the plutonium from rats' bodies even if the treatment is not started until days after they are poisoned with plutonium.

Repeated treatment with either drug for an extended period apparently could remove most of the plutonium deposited in animal or human bodies, Dr. Schubert said.

DTPA appears to be more effective than earlier drugs which had ability to remove plutonium.

Neither DTPA nor BAETA seems to have much if any effect in gitting rid of strontium-90, one of the most dangerous radioactive elements in atomic fallout.

Chemical agents that might rinse strontium from the body are still being sought. So are drugs which might offset the damage done by exposure to some other radioactive materials, or by exposure to heavy doses of X-rays.

Stock Mart Prices Dip Moderately

By ED MORSE

AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite impressive corporate earnings reports for the first quarter the stock market sagged moderately this week.

It was the first weekly decline in three weeks.

Brokers regarded the performance as further consolidation of the market's most recent advance to record highs which topped out in the prior week. Some of the biggest gainers were subjected to a degree of profit taking which they could well afford.

Meanwhile, as April came to an end it was estimated that about nine billion dollars was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in The Associated Press average during the month.

Volume for April was 75,886,965 shares, the largest for any April since 1930 when 111,041,000 shares changed hands.

During the month, solid gains were made by motors, chemicals, electrical equipments, steels and drugs. Aircrafts were lower. Coppers and oils were mixed.

In the week just ended, the AP 60-stock average dipped 70 cents to $227.20.

In the midst of profit taking and switching to consolidate gains of the latest bullish drive the interest of traders still lay in the so-called "imagination" stocks represented by electronics, rocket fuels and some photographic issues.

The week's volume was 17,775,705 shares compared with 17,788,350 in the previous week.

U.S. Government and corporate bonds declined again this week. The government market showed signs Friday of halting the monthlong slide which plunged prices to their lowest levels in more than a quarter-century.

All sectors of the corporate market, except foreign bonds, were at 1959 lows. Down sharply were industrials and utilities, followed by rails and investment quality issues. Foreign bonds posted a slight advance. Trading totaled $29,587,500 par value for the week, down from $30,184,000 last week.

Highway Crash In State Fatal For Woman, 50

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—A collision involving two cars and a truck killed Mrs. Clara Linzay, 50, Pineville, and injured four other persons, including Mrs. Linzay's two sons.

The crash, early Saturday, occurred four miles south of Cheneyville on U. S. highway 71.

Dalton C. Linzay, 25, driver of one of the cars, was critically injured, and Durwood R. Linzay, 22, was reported in critical condition, at Alexandria Hospital.

State police said the driver of the other car, Odell Cooper, 27, Baton Rouge, Negro, was charged with negligent homicide. His passenger was Clarence Carter, 31, also a Negro of Baton Rouge.

Cooper and Carter were treated for slight injuries.

Car Engine Battle To Flare Into Open

DETROIT (UPI)—A battle over where the engine of a car belongs, carried on by automotive engineers for years, will flare into the open soon with introduction of a small Chevrolet with a rear engine.

Until now this question has been largely academic because only a few foreign cars place the engine behind the driver and American manufacturers weren't worried about competition from imports.

But three foreign cars with rear engines have been selling increasingly well and now General Motors plans to put the engine of its small car in the rear.

With General Motors on one side and Ford and Chrysler, both planning front-engine small cars, on the other, ad agencies are preparing to do battle.

Engineers generally agree there is not much problem with a small rear engine on a very small car. But when the car becomes bigger, a rear engine causes steering problems because too much weight in the rear makes a car unstable. It then tends to "oversteer," the engineers say, meaning the more it veers from a straight path, the more it wants to turn. This, naturally, is dangerous.

It is because a rear engine puts too much weight on the rear axle, that most previous attempts to build a rear-engine car have failed. But this hasn't stopped automotive engineers from dreaming about the advantages of a rear engine.

These advantages include:

—Cost savings because of simplicity of design. Putting the engine next to the wheels which power the car eliminates many parts necessary when the engine is in the front.

—More passenger space. The hump and tunnel running down the length of the floor can be eliminated.

—Better economy. Elimination of some parts cuts down the weight and improves economy.

—Better traction. More weight on the rear wheel prevents them from slipping as easily.

—Ability to turn more sharply. The engine no longer restricts the degree to which the front wheels can be turned.

—Better visibility. The front hood can be lowered and the passenger compartment moved closer to the front of the car.

But there are some rear engine disadvantages:

—More difficulty in cooling the engine. A front engine is cooled by the airstream passing through the radiator at the front while the passenger compartment blocks off this airstream from a rear engine.

— More difficult is protecting the engine from dust. A front engine is ahead of the dust.

—The need for longer control lines. Controls still must be connected to the driver, in front.

—Less luggage space.

Death Parts Couple Wed For 72 Years

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Grant were separated Saturday for the first time in 72 years of marriage, by death.

Grant, 92, died in the Masonic Home. His wife was at his side as she had been for all but his working hours since they spoke their wedding vows.

They renewed the vows on their 60th and 70th anniversaries. The latter ceremony was performed by a son, the Rev. Charles Grant, of St. Paul, Minn.

Their constant companionship began with courtship. On his 70th anniversary, Grant said he couldn't recall how long the courtship lasted but "it was long enough."

As young married people they worked side by side in a cigar factory. Later, Grant became custodian of schools in the nearby Reamstown area and was, of necessity, separated from his wife when he went to work.

He said in an interview that other than on those occasions he couldn't recall having been away from Mrs. Grant.

He acknowledged quarrels with his wife, asseritng, "They will come. One person must give in."

The couple had gone to a convalescent home together and when Grant was transferred to the Masonic Home last Tuesday she went with him.

The Rev. Mr. Grant and another son, Clifford, of East Orange, N. J., survive.

Advisory Group For Education Elects Chairman

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (AP) — State Sen. Clifton Wade of Fayetteville, Ark., was elected chairman of the legislative advisory council of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) Saturday.

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, Tallahassee, Fla., executive director of the board of control of Florida, outlined SREB services to the individual states in planning higher educational programs.

He said that only through a cooperative program can the South develop its full potential in educational resources.

The legislators from 16 states who constitute the council made plans for a southwide legislative work conference on higher education to be held Oct. 15-17 at Louisville, Ky.

Delegations of legislators from the 16 states will participate in the conference. At least one university president from each of the states will be invited.

Primary attention will be given to the role of southern universities and colleges in conducting research for the economic development of the region.

States cooperating in the SREB are Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

NEW SENATE ROW UNLIKELY

Ike May Select Career Man For Envoy To Brazil

WASHINGTON (AP)—If he takes senatorial advice, President Eisenhower probably will name a career man to fill the Brazilian ambassadorship Clare Boothe Luce didn't accept.

The controversy over Mrs. Luce's exchange of barbs with Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) has left the Senate anxious to avoid any further political brawls over Latin American diplomatic posts.

Selection of a noncontroversial career officer to take over at Rio de Janeiro obviously would please both Republicans and Democrats interested in offsetting any possible damage done to good neighbor relations.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon's comment that it will be difficult to find anybody who can fill the post as ably as Mrs. Luce appeared to point to a belief on his part that an experienced diplomat must be chosen. Mrs. Luce formerly served as ambassador to Italy.

Nixon described Brazil as one of the most important diplomatic posts in the world. With that in mind, some Republicans think Eisenhower may pick a seasoned career man for the job.

Although Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind) has proposed that the Senate censure Morse for telephoning Mrs. Luce's doctor to ask if she had undergone psychiatric treatments, Republican leaders evidently would rather forget the whole matter.

Capehart's proposal was laughed off by Democratic leaders. They obviously feel that Morse could more than take care of himself in any such affair. Morse said he would welcome the opportunity.

The Republicans know they have some trouble ahead on the President's appointment of Ogden Reid Jr., former editor of the New York Herald Tribune, as ambassador to Israel.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has raised doubts about Reid's qualifications. But Fulbright and other critics are likely to lean over backward to avoid the kind of a row kicked up over Mrs. Luce's nomination.

Former Oil Boom Town Has Troubles

EARLSBORO, Okla. (AP)—This little agriculture town, callused to periods of boom and bust, is broke again but not out.

It became a roaring oil town in 1926 when a 10,000-barrel-per-day wildcat oiler gushed in southeast of town.

In a two-month period the population—now less than 300 — increased from 250 to 7,500. Earlsboro was considered one of the wildest boom towns of the West.

Lots that had sold for less than $100 soared to nearly $4,000. Others brought as much as $10,000. The trouble of today was born during this period of extravaganza.

Residents approved $225,000 in bonds for water and sewer works. Three years later the central Oklahoma town's prosperity bubble popped.

Oil proration became law; the depression years came and citizens left. The water system quit working because of pollution and there were no funds for repairs.

The town's 100-room hotel, at one time the young state's fanciest, was abandoned. Practically the only thing left was the $225,000 in bonds which came due in 1938. New 20-year refunding bonds were issued for the old.

Last week, with debts of $145,000 and tax evaluations of $74,000 Earlsboro filed a bankruptcy petition in Oklahoma City's U. S. Dsitrict Court. Wanted is approval of a plan of composition that town trustees hope will solve Earlsboro's financial dilemma.

Most Grain Prices End Week Steady

By GIL MAYO

AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—A heavy volume of grain futures trading this week virtually canceled out all gains and losses of last week on the Board of Trade except in wheat.

Prices swung over a broad range early in the week but held comparatively steady thereafter most pits while May wheat remained in steady decline until Friday. By that time it had skidded a total of 18 cents a bushel in four weeks. Once it slipped to within three cents of a new low price for the crop year.

With commercial demand very slow or absent, trade interest centered more and more on evening up commitments in the May contracts. There was some bullish sentiment in corn, rye and soybeans especially but small to moderate price bulges on short covering found willing sellers where profits could be made by liquidation.

As is usually the case when a contract approaches maturity on the board, prices of the nearby contract are influenced mainly by the necessity to even up commitments. Normally, only a small percentage of open interests in the contracts ever are settled by actual grain changing hands.

Wheat closed the week ⅛-4¾ cents a bushel lower with the extreme setback on May at $1.93¼-⅛; corn ⅜-1 cent higher, May $1.25⅜; oats ⅝-1⅜ higher, May 66⅛-¼; rye 2¾ higher to ¼ lower, May $1.40¼-40, and soybeans ¼ lower to ¼ higher, May $2.28⅞-29.

ON ALL MAJOR FRONTS

Business Rolling At Record Clip

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel management and steel labor squared off for a showdown on wages this week as the economy boiled along at a record clip.

The stakes were high — extra millions of dollars in wage and fringe benefits for 500,000 unionized steelworkers and the added chance of a steel price boost that could give the economy a new inflationary push.

Top policymakers of the United Steelworkers of America mapped strategy for upcoming contract talks even as the nation's two biggest steel producers announced near-record earnings for January February-March.

The lush steel earnings gave union chief David J. McDonald just the ammunition he wanted.

"Common equity demands," he said, "that steelworkers share equitably in these immense profits, made possible in part by their efforts."

Steel profits were expected to figure prominently in the contract negotiations Starting May 5. United States Steel Corp., biggest in the industry and traditionally the pace-setter in wage and price matters, reported a net profit of 106½ million dollars, up 40 per cent from a year ago.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, reported net income of $46,900,000, nearly double what it earned in the first quarter of recession 1958.

At week's end both sides were standing pat. The union held firmly to its contention that the steel companies can afford to boost wages without jacking up the price of steel. Soft-spoken, bespectacled Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel, outlined the industry's stand—that the one way to prevent another price rise is to keep wages as they are.

The approaching steel-wage hassle found the economy booming on all major fronts.

Steel production reached for another weekly record as mills raced to beat a possible strike deadline when contracts expire June 30.

New car sales picked up momentum. Some of the larger medium-priced makes were a bit sticky but the so-called low-priced three of Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth and the "compact" Ramblers and Larks were going like a house afire. General Motors lifted its first quarter profit 54 per cent from a year ago to 293 million dollars and Chrysler announced a profit of more than 17 million dollars, compared with a 15-million-dollar loss in the same quarter last year.

The brilliant profits performance was not confined to steels and motors. Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) reported its first quarter earnings up 14 per cent, Westinghouse Electric Corp. up 12 per cent and Textron Inc. up 133 per cent.

Stock sales totaled 17,775,705 shares in the latest week compared to 17,788,350 shares in the previous week and 12,434,330 in the same 1958 week. Bond sales had a par value of $29,587,500 this week against $30,184,000 last week and $26,448,000 in the corresponding week last year.

The First National City Bank of New York added up first quarter profits of 798 corporations and found the total 46 per cent higher than in the same quarter last year—good news for all concerned, including the federal income tax collector.

The Commerce Clearing House of Chicago had some grim news about taxes this week. It concerns the "average" U.S. family head, a man 29 years old with a wife, two small children, a mortgaged home, a low priced car and an annual income of $5,200. Between now and the time he retires, the association said, he'll pay out 25.3 per cent of his income in taxes. That figures out to $5.05 per working day, $25.23 a week, $1,311.70 a year. For the remaining 36 years of his working life, it adds up to $47,221.

Briefly over the business scene: U.S. Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers Union signed a contract ending a 22-day strike at 18 plants in 11 states. . .Department store sales in the week ended April 25 scored a four per cent gain over the like 1958 week. . U.S. exports of commercial goods showed an increase in March for the first time in five months. . . Retail sales of television sets forged ahead of the year-ago pace in March for the first time in 1959. . .Shoe production in March was the largest on record—57 million pairs. . .Prices of lumber, cellophane and worsted fabrics went up this week. . Average prices in the new Sears Roebuck summer sale catalogue are down 10 per cent from the spring - summer book. . .President Eisenhower removed mandatory controls on oil imported from Canada and Mexico. . .Detroit hears that General Motors will be the first of the Big Three to introduce a compact car. The rear-engined auto will be called the "Corvair." Due to come next are Ford's "Falcon" and Chrysler's "Valiant."

MANY BUYING STOCKS

Capitalism Ranks Growing By Leaps

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don't look now Mr. Khrushchev, but the ranks of American capitalism are growing by leaps and bounds.

Not only are more and more people buying stock but each year thousands try their hand at running their own businesses.

Sure, some fail in the business world. But many also are very successful in parlaying their modest investment into a handsome annual income. And they are their own bosses, a point not to be overlooked.

A few years ago city dwellers were buying chicken ranches and mink farms with the idea of becoming bloated plutocrats. Today they are opening motels, car washes and drive-ins selling everything from ice cream to pizza pies.

Many of these people never had any experience running a business before. But they hit upon the basic ingredient for success: Give the public what it wants at a price it is willing to pay. It's as simple as that.

Many of the nation's new entrepreneur got into business by joining up with the drive-in franchise operations, such as Rayco seat covers, Carvel ice cream and McDonald's hamburgers.

The company selling the franchise helps the neophyte businessman by selecting the site for the drive-in, building the store, arranging for the buying of supplies, helping to hire employes, and training the operator.

The businessman, of course, puts up some capital and agrees to turn over a percentage of his gross income to the franchise operation.

Ray Kroc, head of the McDonald hamburger chain which has drive-ins operating from Connecticut to California, explains the success of the franchise idea this way:

"The franchised drive-in unit is the answer to an American dream—a business with a minimum investment and almost a surefire guarantee of a five-figure annual income. We're teaching people how to become successful small businessmen."

Kroc said although more than 80 per cent of McDonald's operators had no previous business experience, the chain has not experienced a single failure in its 11-year history.

He said profits on a $27,000 cash outlay have run as high as $25,000 to $70,000 annually for operators who previously were shoe clerks, veterinarians, engineers, salesmen farmers and dentists.

Kroc said the demand to open McDonald units is so great that there now is a year's wait between registration and opening day for a new operator.

He predicted that the present 100 units in operation would sell to 1,000 by 1965.

Add to this total the number of new ice cream, pizza pie, auto seat cover, motel and other drive-in units being opened on the nation's highways and byways and you have a formidable phalanx of new capitalists.

Stock Mart Prices Dip Moderately

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite impressive corporate earnings reports for the first quarter the stock market sagged moderately this week.

It was the first weekly decline in three weeks.

Brokers regarded the performance as further consolidation of the market's most recent advance to record highs which topped out in the prior week. Some of the biggest gainers were subjected to a degree of profit taking which they could well afford.

Meanwhile, as April came to an end it was estimated that about nine billion dollars was added to the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the rise in The Associated Press average during the month.

Volume for April was 75,886,965 shares, the largest for any April since 1930 when 111,041,000 shares changed hands.

During the month, solid gains were made by motors, chemicals, electrical equipments, steels and drugs. Aircrafts were lower. Coppers and oils were mixed.

In the week just ended, the AP 60-stock average dipped 70 cents to $227.20.

In the midst of profit taking and switching to consolidate gains of the latest bullish drive the interest of traders still lay in the so-called "imagination" stocks represented by electronics, rocket fuels and some photographic issues.

The week's volume was 17,775,705 shares compared with 17,788,350 in the previous week.

U.S. Government and corporate bonds declined again this week. The government market showed signs Friday of halting the month-long slide which plunged prices to their lowest levels in more than a quarter-century.

All sectors of the corporate market, except foreign bonds, were at 1959 lows. Down sharply were industrials and utilities, followed by rails and investment quality issues. Foreign bonds posted a slight advance. Trading totaled $29,587,500 par value for the week, down from $30,184,000 last week.

Highway Crash In State Fatal For Woman, 50

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—A collision involving two cars and a truck killed Mrs. Clara Linzay, 50, Pineville, and injured four other persons, including Mrs. Linzay's two sons.

The crash, early Saturday, occurred four miles south of Chenyville on U. S. highway 71.

Dalton C. Linzay, 25, driver of one of the cars, was critically injured, and Durwood R. Linzay, 22, was reported in critical condition, at Alexandria Hospital.

State police said the driver of the other car, Odell Cooper, 27, Baton Rouge, Negro, was charged with negligent homicide. His passenger was Clarence Carter, 31, also a Negro of Baton Rouge.

Cooper and Carter were treated for slight injuries.

Car Engine Battle To Flare Into Open

DETROIT (UPI)—A battle over where the engine of a car belongs, carried on by automotive engineers for years, will flare into the open soon with introduction of a small Chevrolet with a rear engine.

Until now this question has been largely academic because only a few foreign cars place the engine behind the driver and American manufacturers weren't worried about competition from imports.

But three foreign cars with rear engines have been selling increasingly well and now General Motors plans to put the engine of its small car in the rear.

With General Motors on one side and Ford and Chrysler, both planning front-engine small cars, on the other, ad agencies are preparing to do battle.

Engineers generally agree there is not much problem with a small rear engine on a very small car. But when the car becomes bigger, a rear engine causes steering problems because too much weight in the rear makes a car unstable. It then tends to "oversteer," the engineers say, meaning the more it veers from a straight path, the more it wants to turn. This, naturally, is dangerous.

It is because a rear engine puts too much weight on the rear axle, that most previous attempts to build a rear-engine car have failed. But this hasn't stopped automotive engineers from dreaming about the advantages of a rear engine.

These advantages include:

—Cost savings because of simplicity of design. Putting the engine next to the wheels which power the car eliminates many parts necessary when the engine is in the front.

—More passenger space. The hump and tunnel running down the length of the floor can be eliminated.

—Better economy. Elimination of some parts cuts down the weight and improves economy.

—Better traction. More weight on the rear wheel prevents them from slipping as easily.

—Ability to turn more sharply. The engine no longer restricts the degree to which the front wheels can be turned.

—Better visibility. The front hood can be lowered and the passenger compartment moved closer to the front of the car.

But there are some rear engine disadvantages:

—More difficulty in cooling the engine. A front engine is cooled by the airstream passing through the radiator at the front while the passenger compartment blocks off this airstream from a rear engine.

— More difficult is protecting the engine from dust. A front engine is ahead of the dust.

—The need for longer control lines. Controls still must be connected to the driver, in front.

—Less luggage space.

Death Parts Couple Wed For 72 Years

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. (AP) —Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Grant were separated Saturday for the first time in 72 years of marriage, by death.

Grant, 92, died in the Masonic Home. His wife was at his side as she had been for all but his working hours since they spoke their wedding vows.

They renewed the vows on their 60th and 70th anniversaries. The latter ceremony was performed by a son, the Rev. Charles Grant, of St. Paul, Minn.

Their constant companionship began with courtship. On his 70th anniversary, Grant said he couldn't recall how long the courtship lasted but "it was long enough."

As young married people they worked side by side in a cigar factory. Later, Grant became custodian of schools in the nearby Reamstown area and was, of necessity, separated from his wife when he went to work.

He said in an interview that other than on those occasions he couldn't recall having been away from Mrs. Grant.

He acknowledged quarrels with his wife, asseritng, "They will come. One person must give in."

The couple had gone to a convalescent home together and when Grant was transferred to the Masonic Home last Tuesday she went with him.

The Rev. Mr. Grant and another son, Clifford, of East Orange, N. J., survive.

Advisory Group For Education Elects Chairman

POINT CLEAR, Ala. (AP) — State Sen. Clifton Wade of Fayetteville, Ark., was elected chairman of the legislative advisory council of the Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) Saturday.

Dr. J. Broward Culpepper, Tallahassee, Fla., executive director of the board of control of Florida, outlined SREB services to the individual states in planning higher educational programs.

He said that only through a cooperative program can the South develop its full potential in educational resources.

The legislators from 16 states who constitute the council made plans for a southwide legislative work conference on higher education to be held Oct. 15-17 at Louisville, Ky.

Delegations of legislators from the 16 states will participate in the conference. At least one university president from each of the states will be invited.

Primary attention will be given to the role of southern universities and colleges in conducting research for the economic development of the region.

States cooperating in the SREB are Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

NEW SENATE ROW UNLIKELY

Ike May Select Career Man For Envoy To Brazil

WASHINGTON (AP)—If he takes senatorial advice, President Eisenhower probably will name a career man to fill the Brazilian ambassadorship Clare Boothe Luce didn't accept.

The controversy over Mrs. Luce's exchange of barbs with Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore) has left the Senate anxious to avoid any further political brawls over Latin American diplomatic posts.

Selection of a noncontroversial career officer to take over at Rio de Janeiro obviously would please both Republicans and Democrats interested in offsetting any possible damage done to good neighbor relations.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon's comment that it will be difficult to find anybody who can fill the post as ably as Mrs. Luce appeared to point to a belief on his part that an experienced diplomat must be chosen. Mrs. Luce formerly served as ambassador to Italy.

Nixon described Brazil as one of the most important diplomatic posts in the world. With that in mind, some Republicans think Eisenhower may pick a seasoned career man for the job.

Although Sen. Homer Capehart (R-Ind) has proposed that the Senate censure Morse for telephoning Mrs. Luce's doctor to ask if she had undergone psychiatric treatments, Republican leaders evidently would rather forget the whole matter.

Capehart's proposal was laughed off by Democratic leaders. They obviously feel that Morse could more than take care of himself in any such affair. Morse said he would welcome the opportunity.

The Republicans know they have some trouble ahead on the President's appointment of Ogden Reid Jr., former editor of the New York Herald Tribune, as ambassador to Israel.

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, has raised doubts about Reid's qualifications. But Fulbright and other critics are likely to lean over backward to avoid the kind of a row kicked up over Mrs. Luce's nomination.

Former Oil Boom Town Has Troubles

EARLSBORO, Okla. (AP)—This little agriculture town, callused to periods of boom and bust, is broke again but not out.

It became a roaring oil town in 1926 when a 10,000-barrel-per-day wildcat oiler gushed in southeast of town.

In a two-month period the population—now less than 300 — increased from 250 to 7,500. Earlsboro was considered one of the wildest boom towns of the West.

Lots that had sold for less than $100 soared to nearly $4,000. Others brought as much as $10,000. The trouble of today was born during this period of extravaganza.

Residents approved $225,000 in bonds for water and sewer works. Three years later the central Oklahoma town's prosperity bubble popped.

Oil proration became law; the depression years came and citizens left. The water system quit working because of pollution and there were no funds for repairs.

The town's 100-room hotel, at one time the young state's fanciest, was abandoned. Practically the only thing left was the $225,000 in bonds which came due in 1938. New 20-year refunding bonds were issued for the old.

Last week, with debts of $145,000 and tax evaluations of $74,000 Earlsboro filed a bankruptcy petition in Oklahoma City's U. S. Dsitrict Court. Wanted is approval of a plan of composition that town trustees hope will solve Earlsboro's financial dilemma.

Most Grain Prices End Week Steady

By GIL MAYO
AP Business News Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—A heavy volume of grain futures trading this week virtually canceled out all gains and losses of last week on the Board of Trade except in wheat.

Prices swung over a broad range early in the week but held comparatively steady thereafter in most pits while May wheat remained in steady decline until Friday. By that time it had skidded a total of 18 cents a bushel in four weeks. Once it slipped to within three cents of a new low price for the crop year.

With commercial demand very slow or absent, trade interest centered more and more on evening up commitments in the May contracts. There was some bullish sentiment in corn, rye and soybeans especially but small to moderate price bulges on short covering found willing sellers where profits could be made by liquidation.

As is usually the case when a contract approaches maturity on the board, prices of the nearby contract are influenced mainly by the necessity to even up commitments. Normally, only a small percentage of open interests in the contracts ever are settled by actual grain changing hands.

Wheat closed the week ⅛-4¾ cents a bushel lower with the extreme setback on May at $1.93¼-⅛; corn ⅜-1 cent higher, May $1.25⅜; oats ⅝-1⅜ higher, May 66⅛-¼; rye 2¾ higher to ¼ lower, May $1.40¼-40, and soybeans ¼ lower to ¼ higher, May $2.28⅞-29.

First of Roman emperors was Augustus (Gaius Julius Caesar Octavianus) who ruled from 27 B. C. to 14 A. D.

ON ALL MAJOR FRONTS

Business Rolling At Record Clip

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel management and steel labor squared off for a showdown on wages this week as the economy boiled along at a record clip.

The stakes were high — extra millions of dollars in wage and fringe benefits for 500,000 unionized steelworkers and the added chance of a steel price boost that could give the economy a new inflationary push.

Top policymakers of the United Steelworkers of America mapped strategy for upcoming contract talks even as the nation's two biggest steel producers announced near-record earnings for January February-March.

The lush steel earnings gave union chief David J. McDonald just the ammunition he wanted.

"Common equity demands," he said, "that steelworkers share equitably in these immense profits, made possible in part by their efforts."

Steel profits were expected to figure prominently in the contract negotiations Starting May 5. United States Steel Corp., biggest in the industry and traditionally the pace-setter in wage and price matters, reported a net profit of 106½ million dollars, up 40 per cent from a year ago.

Bethlehem Steel Corp., the nation's second largest producer, reported net income of $46,900,000, nearly double what it earned in the first quarter of recession 1958.

At week's end both sides were standing pat. The union held firmly to its contention that the steel companies can afford to boost wages without jacking up the price of steel. Soft-spoken, bespectacled Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel, outlined the industry's stand—that the one way to prevent another price rise is to keep wages as they are.

The approaching steel-wage hassle found the economy booming on all major fronts.

Steel production reached for another weekly record as mills raced to beat a possible strike deadline when contracts expire June 30.

New car sales picked up momentum. Some of the larger medium-priced makes were a bit sticky but the so-called low-priced three of Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth and the "compact" Ramblers and Larks were going like a house afire. General Motors lifted its first quarter profit 54 per cent from a year ago to 293 million dollars and Chrysler announced a profit of more than 15 million dollars, compared with a 15-million-dollar loss in the same quarter last year.

The brilliant profits performance was not confined to steels and motors. Standard Oil Co. (N.J.) reported its first quarter earnings up 14 per cent, Westinghouse Electric Corp. up 12 per cent and Textron Inc. up 133 per cent.

Stock sales totaled 17,775,705 shares in the latest week compared to 17,788,350 shares in the previous week and 12,434,330 in the same 1958 week. Bond sales had a par value of $29,587,500 this week against $30,184,000 last week and $26,448,000 in the corresponding week last year.

The First National City Bank of New York added up first quarter profits of 798 corporations and found the total 46 per cent higher than in the same quarter last year—good news for all concerned, including the federal income tax collector.

The Commerce Clearing House of Chicago had some grim news about taxes this week. It concerns the "average" U.S. family head, a man 29 years old with a wife, two small children, a mortgaged home, a low priced car and an annual income of $5,200. Between now and the time he retires, the association said, he'll pay out 25.3 per cent of his income in taxes. That figures out to $5.05 per working day, $25.23 a week, $1,311.70 a year. For the remaining 36 years of his working life, it adds up to $47,221.

Briefly over the business scene: U.S. Rubber Co. and the United Rubber Workers Union signed a contract ending a 22-day strike at 18 plants in 11 states. . .Department store sales in the week ended April 25 scored a four per cent gain over the like 1958 week. . U.S. exports of commercial goods showed an increase in March for the first time in five months. . . Retail sales of television sets forged ahead of the year-ago pace in March for the first time in 1959. . .Shoe production in March was the largest on record—57 million pairs. . .Prices of lumber, cellophane and worsted fabrics went up this week. . Average prices in the new Sears Roebuck summer sale catalogue are down 10 per cent from the spring - summer book. . .President Eisennower removed mandatory controls on oil imported from Canada and Mexico. . .Detroit hears that General Motors will be the first of the Big Three to introduce a compact car. The rear-engined auto will be called the "Corvair." Due to come next are Ford's "Falcon" and Chrysler's "Valiant."

MANY BUYING STOCKS

Capitalism Ranks Growing By Leaps

NEW YORK (UPI)—Don't look now Mr. Khrushchev, but the ranks of American capitalism are growing by leaps and bounds.

Not only are more and more people buying stock but each year thousands try their hand at running their own businesses.

Sure, some fail in the business world. But many also are very successful in parlaying their modest investment into a handsome annual income. And they are their own bosses, a point not to be overlooked.

A few years ago city dwellers were buying chicken ranches and mink farms with the idea of becoming bloated plutocrats. Today they are opening motels, car washes and drive-ins selling everything from ice cream to pizza pies.

Many of these people never had any experience running a business before. But they hit upon the basic ingredient for success: Give the public what it wants at a price it is willing to pay. It's as simple as that.

Many of the nation's new entrepreneur got into business by joining up with the drive-in franchise operations, such as Rayco seat covers, Carvel ice cream and McDonald's hamburgers.

The company selling the franchise helps the neophyte businessman by selecting the site for the drive-in, building the store, arranging for the buying of supplies, helping to hire employes, and training the operator.

The businessman, of course, puts up some capital and agrees to turn over a percentage of his gross income to the franchise operation.

Ray Kroc, head of the McDonald hamburger chain which has drive-ins operating from Connecticut to California, explains the success of the franchise idea this way:

"The franchised drive-in unit is the answer to an American dream —a business with a minimum investment and almost a surefire guarantee of a five-figure annual income. We're teaching people how to become successful small businessmen."

Kroc said although more than 80 per cent of McDonald's operators had no previous business experience, the chain has not experienced a single failure in its 11-year history.

He said profits on a $27,000 cash outlay have run as high as $25,000 to $70,000 annually for operators who previously were shoe clerks, veterinarians, engineers, salesmen farmers and dentists.

Kroc said the demand to open McDonald units is so great that there now is a year's wait between registration and opening day for a new operator.

He predicted that the present 100 units in operation would sell to 1,000 by 1965.

Add to this total the number of new ice cream, pizza pie, auto seat cover, motel and other drive-in units being opened on the nation's highways and byways and you have a formidable phalanx of new capitalists.

FOR DRAMA CRITICS

Holes In Ticket Present Symbols

NEW YORK (AP)—Somebody—probably a Broadway producer on opening night—once said holes are punched in the free tickets mailed to drama critics to remind them of a similar aperture in the producer's head.

For who else would be nutty enough to ask 65 inveterate hecklers, together with their wives, to come in and not only tell him how to run his busines but even blab it all over town and put him out of business if they don't like the way it's being run?

Did Daniel put out place cards in the lions den?

No, but that's show biz, as they say on Broadway when they can't think of anything else to say.

Rightly or wrongly the critics, particularly the critics of New York's seven metropolitan dailies and the two major wire services, are reputed to have the power of life and death over a play. "The nine assassins" and "the nine deadly egos," they have been called, among other things, by the disgruntled.

CLAUSES

In this day of zooming production costs and theater lease "stop clauses" that require a show to do $12,000 a week business or vacate, few plays can live with mixed reviews. Virtually none can survive unanimously poor ones.

For this reason the most engrossing drama on any opening night takes place on the house side of the footlights: the drama of watching drama critics watch a drama.

"Brooks was smiling . . . my wife saw him."

"Somebody said Walter was scribbling furiously in that first scene. . . ."

These slender snippets of information, flashed to the mourners' bench at the back of the theater where the producer and his associates suffer through the agonies of a first night, can carry a world of meaning. They may mean that Brooks Atkinson, critic of the New York Times, and Walter Kerr, his confrere on the Herald Tribune, are about to anoint the evening's offering with a happy hyperbole of theatrical success: "Dynamic," "magical," "magnificent" or similar superlatives to dangle from the marquee next day.

But if perchance the assembled critics are nodding or squirming or peeking at timetables, then gloom engulfs the whole proceedings, a gloom that frequently is heightened by words like "inane," "dreary" and "ill-advised" in the morning reviews.

DESPITE

Despite their desire to remain aloof and uncontaminated, the critics cannot avoid being the center of all eyes at an opening. This is their night. All the wearing weeks of rehearsal, the long nights of rewriting, the struggle to win backers, the strain of trying to weld 50 or more egos into one dramatic whole—all this and $100,000 or more of backers' money is aimed at them.

Aside from a scattering of celebrities like Hope Hampton, Marlene Dietrich and Kim Novak, radiant in low-cut gowns, and a few diehard first nighters like retired corset manufacturer Ira Katzenberg, who hasn't missed an opening in 38 yeas, the house is about evenly divided into two hostile groups. The first, hoping for a flop, includes producers who passed up the show, actors who failed to get parts, directors bypassed for another, and a host of gloating designers and technicians who are convinced the evening is doomed for lack of their professional presence.

The other faction, by far the most vocal, includes relatives, friends, agents and creditors of the producer, author, director, actors, dancers, backers and others financially involved in the production. As soon as the curtain goes up, these partisans will clap wildly for the scenery, stage a minor demonstration for the first bit players to appear, laugh and shout "Bravo," greet the star with an ovation worthy of a presidential candidate, cry "Author, author" with the fever of a lynching party and cheer and stomp their feet through endless curtain calls, by which time the critics have long fled into the night.

BIGWIGS

Many theatrical bigwigs, either for the sake of propriety or in the interest of cutting down analyst fees, avoid attending their own openings. Some spend the night ducking in and out of a nearby bar, returning with the inevitable question "How's it going?" and receiving the stock answer, "Great." Few would ever dream of asking a critic for off-the-cuff review, but occasionally anxiety gets the better of them. Even Rodgers and Hammerstein, with a million-dollar advance and rave notices out of town, have been known to approach critics in the lobby and tremulously inquire: "Should we go back to playing piano in a bar?"

Seldom in agreement, the critics are seldom wrong when unanimous.

In the theater no news is rarely good news. Broadway without the barbs and blessings of the critics would be like Broadway without lights. And opening night would be just like any other night.

75TH BIRTHDAY FRIDAY

Former President Truman Still Spry

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—In an age when emotional pressure often is an excuse for emotional collapse, Harry S. Truman still acts like a man who never had anything more pressing on his mind than the next lodge meeting.

Approaching 75, there is still about him a hearty self-confidence, a fighting sense of optimism, uncomplicated way of looking at himself and the world.

With his brisk stride, his defiant smile, his galoping pride, his trigger-like readiness to put his foot into his mouth or a fight, there is little about this man to suggest that he once was President of the United States.

Or that he: Presided over the dawn of the atomic age, the end of a world war, the entrance of the United States into the United Nations, the winning of an election even his best friends had wrapped in black crepe, the decision to fight in Korea and get public approval later, the dismissal of a fiercely popular general, and a host of other incredible strains and stresses that might have bent the psyche of other mortals.

HISTORY

History may record Truman as a great president or a poor president but in either case it will have to agree that this was one of the bounciest egos ever to wrestle with affairs of state. There was, and is, about Truman, a rare and enviable rhythm: problem, study, decision, action, no regrets.

Now on the threshold of his diamond jubilee—his birthday is this Friday—Truman still radiates all the healthy outgoingness of a man who has no regrets.

As always, he walks, he talks, he comes to judgments with a zing. His repartee, his grin, his unlined face, his unthinned hair, his proudly straight shoulders and visible chip, his trim 176-pound frame, his erect carriage, unchanged from that of the captain who led Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, in the first World War, continue to mystify his friends and neighbors.

But to Harry Truman, there is no mystery. A man needs a simple formula to live by and his, as always, is work hard, walk fast, sleep tight and learn to relax.

Nearly every fine morning at seven, he swings out of the large, white frame house at Truman Road and Delaware. He may take off in almost any direction, and he'll cover about a mile or a mile and a half.

CONFIDED

"I don't do this for show," he confided to a newsman on a recent ramble. "I do it because I think it will help me live longer."

Truman was stepping along at a lively clip of 120 steps to the minute, explaining: "I don't beleive in anything slower. If you just stroll along, you might just as well stay home and get your exercise in a rocking chair."

Truman's favorite subject is American history, to which he has contributed his own share, but he also pays loving attention to the small, neighborly world and lore of his own Independence.

His roots here go deep. Here Truman attended grade and high school. One of his schoolmates Elizabeth Virginia Wallace, whom he married in June 1919. Here daughter Margaret was born in 1924. Here in due course Margaret was maried to Clirfton Daniel, a New York newspaperman, before a beaming Truman clan. Margaret has since presented the ex-president with a grandson, and another grandchild is on the way.

All this is a familiar story to Independence — and everything about Independence is familiar to Truman. He pointed proudly to "the best-kept lawn in town," at the home of his friend Louis L. Compton. A little farther down Delaware Street, Truman pointed to another home.

Throughout the walk, there were greetings from friends and from strangers who recognized him. Some said, "Hi, Hary." Others greeted him with "Good morning, Mr. Truman," or "Good morning, Mr. President." Some motorists slowed down, tooted their horns, and waved. Truman acknowledged them all.

Sometimes, he walks the six blocks to the stately Truman Library, where he has his office. He gets there early, often ahead of his staff consisting of a personal secretary, an administrative secretary, and a stenographer.

In the library repose the papers and records of a public life that started modestly enough as a judge of the Jackson County Court in 1922 and, via two terms in the U.S. Senate, reached the vice presidency of the United States in 1944.

LIMIT

The Senate, Harry Truman has often said, was the limit of his ambitions in public life—until that day in April 1945, when the Missourian took office as the nation's 32nd president.

Truman keeps busy. He has written his memoirs, is the active elder statesman of the Democratic party, writes, reads, and, in his comfortably appointed office, applies himself to mountains of mail.

Invitations to make speeches and attend functions pour in. Only a fraction can be accepted. Last month Truman was in Southern California for a series of talks. There was a political address at Omaha, and a ceremony in connection with the Oregon Centennial wagon train. In Lamar, Mo.,

86 SURRENDER, JAILED

Panama Seeking Last Of Rebels

By MILTON CARR
United Press International

PANAMA CITY (UPI) —Eighty-five men and a sloe-eyed girl who came from Cuba to conquer Panama were clapped in jail Saturday and the National Guard went into the jungle after other rebels who chose flight rather than unconditional surrender.

Panamanian women, including the widow of the late President Jose Remon, paraded before the foreign office and the palace of President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr. in a demonstration against the invasion plot that fizzled.

They demanded that the government refuse to grant safe conduct into exile for invasion leader Roberto (Tito) Arias, who is in asylum at the Brazilian Embassy.

Six Cubans who refused to surrender Friday were seized six miles up the coast from the rebel landing site at Nombre de Dios.

National Guard patrols went into the hills to try to find several fleeing Panamanians who joined the invaders after they landed from Cuba last Saturday.

The government said it believed the invaders surrendered only half their arms and it was trying to locate the rest.

There remained fear that two more boat loads of "liberators" were en route from Cuba, despite Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's denunciation of the plan to overthrow the De La Guardia regime.

The original invaders were hauled into Panama City in a noisy caravan of six buses after a landing barge trip from their beachhead headquarters up the coast. All seemed cheerful.

Lodged in the National Guard jail, they shouted out the window: "This is not finished yet. We are not through."

The government said they would be prosecuted. But since they surrendered quickly, they were expected to get off lightly. One theory was that they would be tried after a few months of "cooling off" in jail and then given suspended sentences.

Their surrender Friday to representatives of the organization of American States brought a sudden happy ending to a plot that had thrown Central America into turmoil and brought the United States and the other American nations into the situation.

The 700 inhabitants of Nombre de Dios, a town discovered and named by Christopher Columbus, seemed saddened at the sudden end of the invasion. During their one week occupation of the fishing village, the invaders had made friends.

Village maidens in Sunday finery strolled arm-in-arm with invaders down the dirt streets as the surrender occurred.

The "liberators," some with parrots perched on their shoulders embraced townspeople and exchanged home addresses with them.

The threat to Panama was over. But there were matters remaining to be cleared up, including what to do with the leader of the revolt, Robert (Tito) Arias. He was in the sanctuary of the Brazilian embassy in Panama. His wife, Dame Margot Fonteyn, one of the world's great ballerinas, had been deported.

Officers Probe Confession Of Slaying In 1917

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP) — Police said Saturday that a man's volunteered account of a slaying nearly 42 years ago in Reno has been checked out—and there was such a slaying.

An unemployed night watchman, Frank Schoen, 64, was booked at his own insistence for investigation of murder. He was quoted as saying that while he and another man were trying to pull off a holdup, a third man intervened and was shot by Schoen's accomplice.

Police Sgt. Russell Watson said Reno officers found that Vasily Tiletentka, a student, was killed Sept. 15, 1917, in downtown Reno when he tried to stop two men from robbing a third.

Reno officers told Watson they would try to bring Schoen to Nevada and investigate the case further.

Detroit was captured temporarily by the British in the War of 1812.

Swimming Tips, Safety Outlined

The YMCA has drawn on 75 years of experience to compile some professional tips on water safety, according to Robert C. McKee, associate youth secretary of the Twin Cities Young Men's Christian Association.

"Swimming is one of the oldest, most useful and beneficial sports. Nearly everyone, young, old and even the handicapped can enjoy it," McKee said.

"But, five to seven thousand Americans drown each year because of simple carelessness that sometimes blinds swimmers to basic safety rules," he added.

Last year the YMCA's in the United States gave swimming instructions to 478,327 persons. The "Y" owns more than 630 swimming pools throughout the United States, officials noted.

The first and most important water safety rule, according to the "Y," is to learn to swim well. Many people who go into the water, even into strange water, ignore the need for skilled professional training. The poor swimmer is a constant menace to himself and to others.

NON-SWIMMERS

Non - swimmers pose an even greater threat, according to YMCA water safety experts. Until they learn the basic fundamentals the only advice is to stay out of the water. A life guard should always be present, and one should never swim alone, they urge. Warning signs should be looked for and obeyed. Many people have been injured by diving into shallow water and many others have been infected by polluted water because they ignored warning signs, local authorities said.

Personal safety often depends on physical condition. Plunging back into cold water without resting after exertion may cause a black -out from a sudden rise in blood pressure. It may also cause painful disabling cramps.

"Recognizing one's physical limitations," McKee explained, "and refusing invitations to competitive swimming when you're not in shape is no disgrace. Endangering a rescuer's life by collapsing from overexertion is. If you do compete, race toward, not away from the shore, and have a third person present."

The water's depth and the current's strength cannot be measured from the surface but it is a good idea to know both before going swimming. If you are trapped in a strong current, "Y" experts say don't fight it. Swim across the current and gradually work your way in toward shore.

McKee pointed out that the greatest water menaces are the "would be hero" and the "water show off." Performing dangerous stunts to impress people soonor or later causes an accident. Rescue attempts by unqualified swimmers multiply tragedies.

Water safety not only applies to swimming but also to boating and skin diving. Only good swimmers should go boating or attempt skin diving. When getting into a small boat, it should be done at the stern or bow for greater stability. Diving should never be done from a boat.

If an emergency should occur, the best policy is to keep calm. If a boat capsizes, stay with the boat. If a swimmer is in trouble and you are not a rescue expert, try reaching him with a pole or clothing or throw him something buoyant to hang on. It may be possible to reach the swimmer by hanging on to a dock or float with your free hand.

RESPIRATION

Even if a rescued swimmer appears to be in a hopeless condition, artificial respiration may still revive him. To give artificial respiration, kneel on one knee and face the victim's head. Place the victim's hands palm - over- hand under his cheek. Rock forward with your hands flat on the victim's shoulder blades. Lift your hips to shift part of the weight, rock forward and press firmly. Slide back smoothly, lift and pull toward you the victim's upper arms, then lower them to the ground. Repeat the cycle 12 times a minute.

Recognizing the need for water safety instructions, the Twin Cities YMCA has always placed emphasis upon an aquatic program during the summer months. As soon as the new YMCA building is completed, it will be possible to offer water safety instructions the year round. Last summer more than 200 boys and girls were taught to swim in the YMCA- YWCA Day Camp.

In addition to the Day Camp program, the "Y" offers throughout the summer, there are several aquatic institutes which enable advanced swimmers to qualify as junior or senior lifesavers. "Learn to Swim" classes will again be offered to the youth of the Twin Cities area during the month of August, McKee said.

FOR DRAMA CRITICS

Holes In Ticket Present Symbols

NEW YORK (AP)—Somebody—probably a Broadway producer on opening night—once said holes are punched in the free tickets mailed to drama critics to remind them of a similar aperture in the producer's head.

For who else would be nutty enough to ask 65 inveterate hecklers, together with their wives, to come in and not only tell him how to run his busines but even blab it all over town and put him out of business if they don't like the way it's being run?

Did Daniel put out place cards in the lions den?

No, but that's show biz, as they say on Broadway when they can't think of anything else to say.

Rightly or wrongly the critics, particularly the critics of New York's seven metropolitan dailies and the two major wire services, are reputed to have the power of life and death over a play. "The nine assassins" and "the nine deadly egos," they have been called, among other things, by the disgruntled.

CLAUSES

In this day of zooming production costs and theater lease "stop clauses" that require a show to do $12,000 a week business or vacate, few plays can live with mixed reviews. Virtually none can survive unanimously poor ones.

For this reason the most engrossing drama on any opening night takes place on the house side of the footlights: the drama of watching drama critics watch a drama.

"Brooks was smiling . . . my wife saw him."

"Somebody said Walter was scribbling furiously in that first scene. . . ."

These slender snippets of information, flashed to the mourners' bench at the back of the theater where the producer and his associates suffer through the agonies of a first night, can carry a world of meaning. They may mean that Brooks Atkinson, critic of the New York Times, and Walter Kerr, his confrere on the Herald Tribune, are about to anoint the evening's offering with a happy hyperbole of theatrical success: "Dynamic," "magical," "magnificent" or similar superlatives to dangle from the marquee next day.

But if perchance the assembled critics are nodding or squirming or peeking at timetables, then gloom engulfs the whole proceedings, a gloom that frequently is heightened by words like "inane," "dreary" and "ill-advised" in the morning reviews.

DESPITE

Despite their desire to remain aloof and uncontaminated, the critics cannot avoid being the center of all eyes at an opening. This is their night. All the wearing weeks of rehearsal, the long nights of rewriting, the struggle to win backers, the strain of trying to weld 50 or more egos into one dramatic whole—all this and $100,000 or more of backers' money is aimed at them.

Aside from a scattering of celebrities like Hope Hampton, Marlene Dietrich and Kim Novak, radiant in low-cut gowns, and a few diehard first nighters like retired corset manufacturer Ira Katzenberg, who hasn't missed an opening in 38 yeas, the house is about evenly divided into two hostile groups. The first, hoping for a flop, includes producers who passed up the show, actors who failed to get parts, directors bypassed for another, and a host of gloating designers and technicians who are convinced the evening is doomed for lack of their professional presence.

The other faction, by far the most vocal, includes relatives, friends, agents and creditors of the producer, author, director, actors, dancers, backers and others financially involved in the production. As soon as the curtain goes up, these partisans will clap wildly for the scenery, stage a minor demonstration for the first bit players to appear, laugh and shout "Bravo," greet the star with an ovation worthy of a presidential candidate, cry "Author, author" with the fever of a lynching party and cheer and stomp their feet through endless curtain calls, by which time the critics have long fled into the night.

BIGWIGS

Many theatrical bigwigs, either for the sake of propriety or in the interest of cutting down analyst fees, avoid attending their own openings. Some spend the night ducking in and out of a nearby bar, returning with the inevitable question "How's it going?" and receiving the stock answer, "Great." Few would ever dream of asking a critic for off-the-cuff review, but occasionally anxiety gets the better of them. Even Rodgers and Hammerstein, with a million-dollar advance and rave notices out of town, have been known to approach critics in the lobby and tremulously inquire: "Should we go back to playing piano in a bar?"

Seldom in agreement, the critics are seldom wrong when unanimous.

In the theater no news is rarely good news. Broadway without the barbs and blessings of the critics would be like Broadway without lights. And opening night would be just like any other night.

75TH BIRTHDAY FRIDAY

Former President Truman Still Spry

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP)—In an age when emotional pressure often is an excuse for emotional collapse, Harry S. Truman still acts like a man who never had anything more pressing on his mind than the next lodge meeting.

Approaching 75, there is still about him a hearty self-confidence, a fighting sense of optimism, uncomplicated way of looking at himself and the world.

With his brisk stride, his defiant smile, his galoping pride, his trigger-like readiness to put his foot into his mouth or a fight, there is little about this man to suggest that he once was President of the United States.

Or that he: Presided over the dawn of the atomic age, the end of a world war, the entrance of the United States into the United Nations, the winning of an election even his best friends had wrapped in black crepe, the decision to fight in Korea and get public approval later, the dismissal of a fiercely popular general, and a host of other incredible strains and stresses that might have bent the psyche of other mortals.

HISTORY

History may record Truman as a great president or a poor president but in either case it will have to agree that this was one of the bounciest egos ever to wrestle with affairs of state. There was, and is, about Truman, a rare and enviable rhythm: problem, study, decision, action, no regrets.

Now on the threshold of his diamond jubilee—his birthday is this Friday—Truman still radiates all the healthy outgoingness of a man who has no regrets.

As always, he walks, he talks, he comes to judgments with a zing. His repartee, his grin, his unlined face, his unthinned hair, his proudly straight shoulders and visible chip, his trim 176-pound frame, his erect carriage, unchanged from that of the captain who led Battery D, 129th Field Artillery, in the first World War, continue to mystify his friends and neighbors.

But to Harry Truman, there is no mystery. A man needs a simple formula to live by and his, as always, is work hard, walk fast, sleep tight and learn to relax.

Nearly every fine morning at seven, he swings out of the large, white frame house at Truman Road and Delaware. He may take off in almost any direction, and he'll cover about a mile or a mile and a half.

CONFIDED

"I don't do this for show," he confided to a newsman on a recent ramble. "I do it because I think it will help me live longer."

Truman was stepping along at a lively clip of 120 steps to the minute, explaining: "I don't beleive in anything slower. If you just stroll along, you might just as well stay home and get your exercise in a rocking chair."

Truman's favorite subject is American history, to which he has contributed his own share, but he also pays loving attention to the small, neighborly world and lore of his own Independence.

His roots here go deep. Here Truman attended grade and high school. One of his schoolmates Elizabeth Virginia Wallace, whom he married in June 1919. Here daughter Margaret was born in 1924. Here in due course Margaret was maried to Clirfton Daniel, a New York newspaperman, before a beaming Truman clan. Margaret has since presented the ex-president with a grandson, and another grandchild is on the way.

All this is a familiar story to Independence — and everything about Independence is familiar to Truman. He pointed proudly to "the best-kept lawn in town," at the home of his friend Louis L. Compton. A little farther down Delaware Street, Truman pointed to another home.

Throughout the walk, there were greetings from friends and from strangers who recognized him. Some said, "Hi, Hary." Others greeted him with "Good morning, Mr. Truman," or "Good morning, Mr. President." Some motorists slowed down, tooted their horns, and waved. Truman acknowledged them all.

Sometimes, he walks the six blocks to the stately Truman Library, where he has his office. He gets there early, often ahead of his staff consisting of a personal secretary, an administrative secretary, and a stenographer.

In the library repose the papers and records of a public life that started modestly enough as a judge of the Jackson County Court in 1922 and, via two terms in the U.S. Senate, reached the vice presidency of the United States in 1944.

LIMIT

The Senate, Harry Truman has often said, was the limit of his ambitions in public life—until that day in April 1945, when the Missourian took office as the nation's 32nd president.

Truman keeps busy. He has written his memoirs, is the active elder statesman of the Democratic party, writes, reads, and, in his comfortably appointed office, applies himself to mountains of mail.

Invitations to make speeches and attend functions pour in. Only a fraction can be accepted. Last month Truman was in Southern California for a series of talks. There was a political address at Omaha, and a ceremony in connection with the Oregon Centennial wagon train. In Lamar, Mo.,

86 SURRENDER, JAILED

Panama Seeking Last Of Rebels

By MILTON CARR
United Press International

PANAMA CITY (UPI) —Eighty-five men and a sloe-eyed girl who came from Cuba to conquer Panama were clapped in jail Saturday and the National Guard went into the jungle after other rebels who chose flight rather than unconditional surrender.

Panamanian women, including the widow of the late President Jose Remon, paraded before the foreign office and the palace of President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr. in a demonstration against the invasion plot that fizzled.

They demanded that the government refuse to grant safe conduct into exile for invasion leader Roberto (Tito) Arias, who is in asylum at the Brazilian Embassy.

Six Cubans who refused to surrender Friday were seized six miles up the coast from the rebel landing site at Nombre de Dios.

National Guard patrols went into the hills to try to find several fleeing Panamanians who joined the invaders after they landed from Cuba last Saturday.

The government said it believed the invaders surrendered only half their arms and it was trying to locate the rest.

There remained fear that two more boat loads of "liberators" were en route from Cuba, despite Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's denunciation of the plan to overthrow the De La Guardia regime.

The original invaders were hauled into Panama City in a noisy caravan of six buses after a landing barge trip from their beachhead headquarters up the coast. All seemed cheerful.

Lodged in the National Guard jail, they shouted out the window: "This is not finished yet. We are not through."

The government said they would be prosecuted. But since they surrendered quickly, they were expected to get off lightly. One theory was that they would be tried after a few months of "cooling off" in jail and then given suspended sentences.

Their surrender Friday to representatives of the organization of American States brought a sudden happy ending to a plot that had thrown Central America into turmoil and brought the United States and the other American nations into the situation.

The 700 inhabitants of Nombre de Dios, a town discovered and named by Christopher Columbus, seemed saddened at the sudden end of the invasion. During their one week occupation of the fishing village, the invaders had made friends.

Village maidens in Sunday finery strolled arm-in-arm with invaders down the dirt streets as the surrender occurred.

The "liberators," some with parrots perched on their shoulders embraced townspeople and exchanged home addresses with them.

The threat to Panama was over. But there were matters remaining to be cleared up, including what to do with the leader of the revolt, Robert (Tito) Arias. He was in the sanctuary of the Brazilian embassy in Panama. His wife, Dame Margot Fonteyn, one of the world's great ballerinas, had been deported.

Officers Probe Confession Of Slaying In 1917

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP) — Police said Saturday that a man's volunteered account of a slaying nearly 42 years ago in Reno has been checked out—and there was such a slaying.

An unemployed night watchman, Frank Schoen, 64, was booked at his own insistence for investigation of murder. He was quoted as saying that while he and another man were trying to pull off a holdup, a third man intervened and was shot by Schoen's accomplice.

Police Sgt. Russell Watson said Reno officers found that Vasily Tiletentka, a student, was killed Sept. 15, 1917, in downtown Reno when he tried to stop two men from robbing a third.

Reno officers told Watson they would try to bring Schoen to Nevada and investigate the case further.

Detroit was captured temporarily by the British in the War of 1812.

New Feed Mill Being Installed

CHOUDRANT (Special) — A 75-ton automatic feed mill is now being installed next to the McGhee Feed Store here, with completion of the $70,000 project expected within the next month, it was announced yesterday.

The 21 employees of the concern have contracts to feed more than one-half million broilers in Ouachita, Lincoln, Union and Jackson parishes, owners said.

A modern hatchery and brooder farm are included in the firm's operations.

FOLLOW THAT SIGN

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Jack Collins of suburban Bayside tells of driving home one night when a neon sign ahead reminded him that he'd enjoy a coffee break.

But the sign seemed to get no closer. Collins stepped on the gas and finally drew alongside the sign, which turned out to be on the rear of another car.

New Feed Mill Being Installed

CHOUDRANT (Special) — A 75-ton automatic feed mill is now being installed next to the McGhee Feed Store here, with completion of the $70,000 project expected within the next month, it was announced yesterday.

The 21 employees of the concern have contracts to feed more than one - half million broilers in Ouachita, Lincoln, Union and Jackson parishes, owners said.

A modern hatchery and brooder farm are included in the firm's operations.

FOLLOW THAT SIGN

MILWAUKEE UPI) — Jack Collins of suburban Bayside tells of driving home one night when a neon sign ahead reminded him that he'd enjoy a coffee break.

But the sign seemed to get no closer. Collins stepped on the gas and finally drew alongside the sign, which turned out to be on the rear of another car.

(2) Card Of Thanks

THERE are not enough words to express the deep-felt gratitude for all the kindnesses shown us during the long illness of C. W. Coleman. We want to thank each church, organization and individual for the financial help, the many nice gifts, the encouraging words and the long hours of sitting with C. W. He loved all of you very much and wished so many times that he could have personally thanked you. Our special thanks go to the doctors at the Delhi Clinic and the men at Thompson's Drug.

MOVERS NEEDED!

Would you like to earn an average of $1,000 per month? Many successful van operators do this regularly driving for Aero Mayflower Transit Co., Inc., under 48-state contract.

"I net over $1,000 per month, have paid for two tractors, own a new car, new household furniture, and have built up a nice bank account since joining Mayflower's contract fleet in 1953," says George Robinson. We are expanding Mayflower's service and need additional van operators 25 years or older to go into business for themselves with Mayflower. We furnish company paid training, if needed, at no cost. SOPHISTICATED MODERN BRICK CONTEMPORARY
FOR THE FUN OF CASUAL LIVING

Topping this quality-all-the-way home is a beautiful white marble lifetime roof. And inside . . . the spacious living room has interesting rough brick fireplace (your children will really thrill at hanging their stockings here at Christmas-time!). There's also 3 cozy bedrooms with double sliding door closets; and the kitchen-dining area with its birch cabinets will be the setting of many hours spent visiting with your friends over coffee. The carport can double as a rainy day play area—and the storage has plenty of room for "his" lawn equipment and even the children's bikes. Flowering shrubs are already planted for you on the extra deep lot that has space for a garden spot and plenty of play area for your young ones. And as an added dividend—it's in the perfect grade school location you've been wanting (just a hop, skip, and jump to Highland School)—with the sort of companions you'd pick for your children in this lovely neighborhood. $540 including closing and $85 per month is all it takes (nothing more) to move in immediately!

SOPHISTICATED MODERN BRICK CONTEMPORARY
FOR THE FUN OF CASUAL LIVING

Topping this quality-all-the-way home is a beautiful white marble lifetime roof. And inside . . . the spacious living room has interesting rough brick fireplace (your children will really thrill at hanging their stockings here at Christmas-time!). There's also 3 cozy bedrooms with double sliding door closets; and the kitchen-dining area with its birch cabinets will be the setting of many hours spent visiting with your friends over coffee. The carport can double as a rainy day play area—and the storage has plenty of room for "his" lawn equipment and even the children's bikes. Flowering shrubs are already planted for you on the extra deep lot that has space for a garden spot and plenty of play area for your young ones. And as an added dividend—it's in the perfect grade school location you've been wanting (just a hop, skip, and jump to Highland School)—with the sort of companions you'd pick for your children in this lovely neighborhood. $540 including closing and $85 per month is all it takes (nothing more) to move in immediately!

I'M POSITIVE MY ATTACKERS WERE THE TWO TREMBLEYS, SIR!
IMPOSSIBLE! THOSE THIEVES ARE DOING A FIVE-YEAR PRISON TERM!
SARGE! THERE'S A MAN STAGGERING TOWARD OUR OUTPOST—BURT PURDY! WHAT'S HAPPENED TO YOU?
R-ROBBED— S-SHOT BY THE TREMBLEYS!

STEVE CANYON
MILTON CANIFF
PATRONESS, COL. CANYON STATES THAT AN AMERICAN AIR FORCE WOMAN DOCTOR HAS DISAPPEARED WITHIN YOUR SCHOOL!
COL. CANYON MUST BE JOKING! THERE IS NO SUCH PERSON
BUT HE CLAIMS TO HAVE BROUGHT HER HERE HIMSELF...
THIS IS EASILY RESOLVED! WON'T YOU COME IN AND QUESTION THE YOUNG LADIES?
STUDENTS, THE POLICE ARE SEEKING AN AMERICAN WOMAN DOCTOR. IF ANY ONE OF YOU HAS SEEN OR HEARD OF SUCH A PERSON, PLEASE STEP FORWARD
— YOU SEE, COMANDANTE, COL. CANYON'S YANKEE IMAGINATION MUST BE AT WORK
MADAME, A FORMAL CHARGE HAS BEEN PLACED — I MUST SEARCH THE PREMISES...
BY ALL MEANS, PLEASE FOLLOW ME, SEÑORES!
MY ASSISTANT WILL BRING A BLUE PRINT-SO THAT YOU MAY EXAMINE EACH CRANNY!
STEVE AND THE POLICE LOOK INTO EVERY INCH OF THE OLD HOUSE, BUT THERE IS NO TRACE OF DEEN WILDERNESS...
THE LAST AREA OF SEARCH IS THE INFIRMARY... THE ONLY PATIENT IS THE STUDENT DEEN SAVED AFTER THE RAT BITE...
MY DEAR, THESE GENTLEMEN HOLD THE ABSURD NOTION THAT WE HAVE AN AMERICAN WOMAN DOCTOR PRACTICING HERE...
YOU HAVE BEEN ILL... DID SUCH A PERSON TREAT YOU?
NO, PATRONESS-
...AS STEVE AND THE OTHERS TURN TO LEAVE THE ROOM, THE PATIENT PICKS UP THE BOOK SHE HAS BEEN READING... AND POINTEDLY SHOWS THE TITLE ONLY TO STEVE — AS HER EYES MAKE A SILENT PLEA...
ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL
